PREFACE

How many people are born into this world, who, for various reasons, have never consciously seen their father or mother, their grandfather or grandmother, and certainly not their great-grandfather or great-grandmother. But from all these ancestors they have received mental, moral and physical impress.

If all the Bridge family descending from John Bridge, the Puritan, and now living, could in a moment be brought into some vast hall, the editor of this work believes there would be observed very many noticeable and identical characteristics, mingled of course with diverse appearance in physiognomy, physical build, mental alertness and spiritual apprehension.

Philosophers, in conversation, declare their belief that "in her life we 'shall know as we are known.'" But we certainly do not know one another now. Yet how interesting it would be if the leading characteristics of our widely divergent ancestors could be revealed to us. We should doubtless, in most cases we hope, be glad to know our old-time parentage. This desire has led many to gather and record the leading facts concerning the life of a family. This is peculiarly the case in our own country, and our National Government has been so much impressed with the value of this line of research that it has published and has on sale at the Library of Congress a very substantial volume of thirteen hundred pages, giving the titles of several thousand genealogies extant in 1919. Among these thousands of such publications is the one published by the Rev. William F. Bridge, in 1884, entitled, "An Account of the Descendants of John Bridge, Cambridge, 1632."

The lapse of years and the opportunities of wider investigation furnish to the present editor the occasion and the demand for the publication of a new volume, presenting as it does a much broader aspect of the Bridge family as a whole. Many hundred names not found in the former book are enrolled in this new work. So far as possible, through many years of personal research, very extensive correspondence and the vigorous activities of skilled collaborators, the main facts as to birth, marriage and death of each individual are recorded. In a large number of cases, a more or less extended account or characterization of individuals is given. The limitations of space and the general character of the book would not allow entering into an individual portraiture of the men and women here enrolled.

Who that is wise to discern the influence of man upon man can but have noted distinguishing characteristics in specified families, such as the Adams family, the Field family, the Harrison family, the Parker family, not to mention the many others of eminent distinction. One feels assured that those who examine the present volume will not be led to any depreciation of the Bridge family in comparison with the others mentioned.

To any one who takes even a glance at the personalities mentioned in this volume there must come, the writer believes, a conviction that John Bridge's descendants as a whole have been of a very high and noble character. In his investigations he has discovered not one who has been guilty of maladministration in public office, of desecration of the sacred desk, of noted immorality in public life; but, on the other hand, the high qualities of virtue, of justice, of generosity, of consecration to public service, are observable all along the line from John Bridge, who set a glorious public example, down to the humblest member of the family today whose name is just now being inserted in its own natal position.

Almost any reader of the history of our country for the past two hundred years must have noted the surprising proportion of the mental, moral and spiritual leaders of this nation whose ancestry has its root in New England soil. The present work will prove to its readers that, from John Bridge, the Puritan, down to the present day, his descendants, with their intermarried relations, have held most worthy positions of influence not only in New England but throughout our great domain.

Any genealogist who has made a wide examination of such volumes as have been published in England or America in the last fifty years will, on examination of this volume, find a few distinctive and special features. The most notable of these is observable in the method taken by the editor in following the four family lines one after the other — the four sons of Matthew, Jr., the grandson of John Bridge, the Puritan. The decision to follow this course came after much consideration of its value as a method in comparison with those of other genealogies. The descendants of each of the four families can the more easily examine their own line of descent without mental complication with any of the other three. It may be that family pride may, in some measure, have led to this course.

The editor has encountered many difficulties in the preparation of this volume, especially in connection with names and dates. Names are spelled in a variety of ways. The old-time name Ann is often modified into Anna, Anne, Annie. Nathaniel is sometimes cut down into Nathan. A man's first name is sometimes, by his children, replaced by his second name. Henry is sometimes called Harry. And, especially in the early years, a good and full name is diminished to the size of a pet name, as Nabby, Polly and Sally, etc.; and, in modern days, to Jennie, Lottie, Betty and even Kitty. As to dates, a man's sons will differ distinctly as to the date of birth of their father; daughters will not agree as to their mother's birthday or even as to each other's birthday. Frequently, the year of one's death varies according to the supposed knowledge of different parties. The dates of birth and death as found on tombstones may differ widely from those given in family records. The dates of baptisms are sometimes mentioned as the dates of birth. Strange freaks of memory attend the statements concerning marriages as to place, month or year. In very many cases, the day of the month of a birth, marriage or death, will be stated differently by nearest relatives.

These peculiarities are of such a character as to have demanded most careful scrutiny and investigations in most cases; and the editor is compelled to believe that, notwithstanding his utmost carefulness, there will be found lamentable divergencies from the real facts in the case. He asks, therefore, sympathetic consideration on the part of all the Bridge tribe.

The "Old Family Bible" of former days is now an antique, and one fears that few of even highly cultivated families can boast of clearly reliable family records. Many score of questionnaires and blanks, sent by him through all parts of the country, have been returned to the editor with the merest number of questions answered, but accompanied with the following note: "Write to —— who knows all our family." Upon sending a similar blank or questionnaire to the new address, a similar response has often been received.

As a new "Bridge Genealogy" will doubtless be desirable within two or three score years from the present date of publication, it can but be hoped that the coming generation will reinstate the "Old Family Bible," at least as a genealogical record.

A LONG-LIVED AND PRODUCTIVE FAMILY

William Richard Cutter, in his "Genealogical and Personal Memoirs," volume I, page 1, etc., gives one hundred early families (named by William H. Whitmore, City Registrar of Boston, in two chapters of Windsor's "Memorial History of Boston"), and says, "Of the first forty families named, at least twelve families became entirely extinct." Whitmore also says, "With few exceptions, the names of the Colonial, or first period, disappear early in the Eighteenth Century." Not so with the Bridge family, demonstrating fine vitality for nearly three hundred years to the present day. But not a single notice of a Bridge person or family appears in Cutter's eight volumes! A very strange lack of research through abundant records.

The editor has been impressed with a fact which has come to his attention repeatedly as he has passed through the nearly three hundred years of genealogical notation in this volume, and this is the large number of descendants of John Bridge who have reached or passed the Biblical "three score years and ten" allotted to man. This feature, doubtless, was presented to his mind by reason of having himself gone far beyond that number of years. Naturally, the question came: "Is the Bridge family a long-lived family; and, if so, to what extent?" He believes the readers of each of the four lines of descent will be pleased to note this special feature in connection with their own line.

The question of longevity of an individual, a nation, a race or a world is a subject widely discussed by students of genealogy; but, so far as known, no genealogist makes any definite allusion to the length of years of the individual members of a family in the genealogical statements themselves.

The present volume, after giving the name of a man or a woman, presents first the birth and then the death of such a person. It has been comparatively easy, therefore, when noting these two dates, to discover the length of said life. The thought of indicating by an underscore the duration of the lives of persons reaching or passing seventy years seemed to the present editor a happy one, and he hopes that few omissions will be noted where persons have reached their "three score years and ten" and the fact unfortunately be not indicated.

Samuel J. Bridge, the publisher of the former Genealogy, in sending a copy of that work to the librarian of the Worcester Antiquarian Society, Worcester, Mass., said:

"Dear Sir: No one who has not had to do with the tracing of ancestry can conceive of the work it involves, as it is a dreadful and endless undertaking. We have been nearly three years engaged in the work, and have, at last, reached the end. The Lord be praised! The book contains over 1200 names, descendants of John Bridge, 1632. I am surprised to find so many that have held high positions in the Country. The book includes: a President of the United States, Members of the Cabinet, Foreign Ministers and Consuls, Judges of the Supreme and Superior Courts, Judges of Probate and Registers of Probate, Presidential Electors, United States Attorney General, United States Marshal, United States Officers of the Customs, United States Officers of the Navy and Army, Officers of Note in the War of the Revolution, High Sheriffs, Deputy Sheriffs, Mayors of Cities, Members of the Governor's Council, Select men, and other municipal officers, Postmasters, eminent Lawyers and Ministers, Physicians and Engineers, Geologists, Professors, Teachers, Merchants, Horticulturists, Planters, Landscape Gardeners, Agriculturists, etc., etc. No family in New England can show a better record; we have much to be proud and thankful for. Place the book on the shelves of your Library, where it will be found by the descendants a Century hence."

In the preparation of this volume, the editor has been indebted to a large number of co-workers. It would, indeed, be a pleasure to mention many of them by name and he cannot refrain from specifying a few. A remarkable fact in this connection is that Miss Annie M. Kilham, Mrs. Waldo Adams and the present editor, who were mentioned by the former editor, in his preface, as co-workers with him in that 1884 volume, are co-workers in this new volume. Mrs. E. I. Lovett and Mr. Charles A. Bridge, also mentioned in the former preface, have passed to the Beyond. The editor's chief assistant is a cultured and trained genealogist, Mr. John W. Fairbank, of Boston, who was the special editor, after the decease of its originator, of the "Fairbanks Genealogy" published in 1897. Miss Cora M. Bridge, of Canastota, N. Y., and Mr. Selden D. Bridge, of Oneida, N. Y., gave exceedingly important help in connection with the genealogy of the Central New York family. Mr. Marion A. Bridge of Columbus, Ohio, was the signal helper in preparing the line of descent of the families in the Samuel line, who settled in the States of the Middle West. Only by close investigation were they traced to the original stock. The editor's personal helper was Miss Mabel W. Dreyer, who has typewritten almost every line of these several genealogies, preparing them for the printer.

In a preceding paragraph was noted the fact that in the former "Bridge Genealogy," the editor made mention of specific help this editor had given him in his work. Ability to do this was due to the interest the writer had taken from young manhood in genealogical matter, and especially in his own family line of Joseph, running back to John, the Puritan of 1632.

The present volume would not have been prepared, however, but for the deep interest of another Bridge enthusiast, in the John line, to whom the highest honor is due. In a most providential manner, correspondence was entered into with DR. NORMAN BRIDGE (Drake Hotel, Chicago, but winter home in Los Angeles), with exchanges of photographs, of books, etc.; and, on his coming to New York in the summer time, the editor of this volume met the doctor and his wife in New York and in his own home. Mutual genealogical interests were noted and, to the great surprise of the present editor, Doctor Bridge made the proposal that if the former would undertake the great task of gathering, collating and preparing for the press this volume, he would personally meet in full the publication expenses. Such an unexpected, amazing and noteworthy condition on his part could not be otherwise than carefully considered. In due time the challenge to take up the work was accepted and the work promptly began. The highest praise in connection with this "Genealogy of the Bridge Family" is due to the member of the clan who made its publication possible — DR. NORMAN BRIDGE.

INTRODUCTION

HISTORICAL FACT PRIOR TO JOHN BRIDGE

Mr. James⁷ Bridge, in the seventh generation of the Samuel⁴ Bridge line, who was born July 17, 1804, and was for a long period in business in Augusta, Maine, made very great researches into the genealogy of the original John Bridge line. Six large pages of this carefully prepared genealogy survived his death. One very important page, the first, is not found. The first page coming to hand begins with Deacon John¹ Bridge, who bears the number 9-45. The annotation by Mr. Bridge reads as follows: "The numbering begins at Thomas Bredg of Mawlden, England, who died 1440. Deacon John is 45th in descent."

How unfortunate it is that these statistical statements on the missing pages are not obtainable.

From the method of indicating the generations from John Bridge, down, as used by Mr. James Bridge, one concludes that the figure 9, preceding the number 45, is intended to signify that Deacon John Bridge was in the ninth generation from "Thomas Bredg of Mawlden, England, who died in 1440."

The town (Mawlden) being thus indicated, it would seem that a search of the records of that town from 1630 back to 1440 might give some very interesting results.

At the bottom of this second page, written by Mr. James Bridge, there is also this note: "A silver tankard given to Samuel⁴ Bridge, number 63, on the occasion of his marriage, by his father, Matthew³, came down in regular succession and is now in the possession of the collator of this pedigree, No. 196." [This is the tankard shown in the present "Bridge Genealogy."]

JOHN BRIDGE PRIOR TO 1632

What a pleasure it would be to the readers of this Genealogy if John Bridge had written for his children, and their children, even a brief account of his early English life and had noted therein the reasons which sent him across the seas to the wilderness life of the new country.

The years of his youth were truly times of "storm and stress." Bloody Mary had been on the English throne just before his birth. The persecutions of the Protestants had been relentless. But Queen Elizabeth had come to the throne and reëstablished the prior forms of worship. The Invincible Armada had been swept from the seas. Literary freedom had come to the front, and Spenser, Bacon and the towering Shakespeare had brought forth a new and marvelous literature. But James the First had come to power, and with him the blazing mutual hatreds of Protestants and Roman Catholics had swept through large sections of the land. Life to multitudes of the best English yeomen and scholars alike had become intolerable. Only one historically worthy event stands forth in the life of King James — the preparation of what has been called from his time the “King James Version of the Holy Bible.” But King James himself has only this claim to special mention in connection with that transaction: he named the fifty-four translators, who spent three years in the preparation of the volume. There was nothing else to his credit.

While yet our John¹ Bridge was but a youth, the famous Guy Fawkes with his “Gunpowder Plot” was discovered in connection with the Houses of Parliament. The horrible King Charles was in full and dreadful power when our ancestor felt that duty to himself and his children compelled him to forsake the home of his father, leaving a young wife in an English churchyard, and seek a soil where religious bitterness had not, as yet, found root. We do not know the peculiar and dominating reasons why he left England when he did. We do know, however, that the social, domestic and religious antipathies, but especially of a religious character, were such in the eastern counties of England that homes were ravaged and churches maliciously destroyed, so that peace-loving citizens could no longer endure the heart-breaking commotions of the time.

In Bloomfield’s “History of Norfolk,” a county of England not far from Essex County, we read this item: “William¹ Bridge (1600–1670), the troubles now increasing in the Church, Mr. Peck, Mr. Ward and Mr. Bridge, etc., being opposed in their proceedings by Bishop Wren, (Bishop of Norwich 1635), went voluntarily beyond the seas, some to Holland, some to New England, etc.” This incident concerning William Bridge, as we note, occurred three or four years after John Bridge came over the ocean and is an incident illustrating the condition of the time.

From a monumental inscription in the old meetinghouse at Norwich, England, we take this: “In memory of the Rev. W. Bridge, M.A., who d. March 12, 1670, aged 70. He was ejected from St. George’s Tombland, A.D. 1636, for not reading the ‘book of sports,’ and founded the Norwich and Yarmouth Congregational Church, A.D., 1642.” The Genealogist, New Series, Vol. 1.

It is supposed that John Bridge, the Puritan, was born about the year 1578. If so, he was in right middle life when he came across the ocean in 1631. His sister, Elizabeth, the wife of John Betts, whose house in Cambridge stood on the site of Dane Hall, may have come from England with her brother.

Despite all the investigations of many years, no light has as yet been thrown, so far as we know, upon the family of the wife of Deacon Bridge, or upon herself individually. All that we know is that she had gone to rest sometime prior to 1631.

We give herewith a transcript of a "Monumental Brass" in St. Swithin's Church, Norwich, England, which dates just prior to John Bridge's removal to America.

JOHN BRIDGE MIGRATING

John Bridge left Braintree, Essex County, England, in 1631, as a member of Rev. Mr. Hooker's company. The vessel in which it sailed landed its passengers at what is now called Mount Wollaston, Quincy, Mass. The year 1632 was not far advanced when the local government ordered the removal of forty members of the colony to Newtowne (Cambridge).

At the time when John Bridge and his Puritan companions settled in Newtowne, many families of Indians had their wigwams in and about that locality. The Puritans, carrying their religious principles into genuine action, sought to make friends of these dark-skinned residents; and yet, desiring to be protected from any serious assault upon their own homes, it was ordered "that a paling or fence be built around the possessions of the inhabitants." We find in Paige's "History of Cambridge" the list of the forty-two landholders and the number of rods of paling, allotted to each of the forty-two persons, to be erected and cared for. John Bridge had, as his allotment, six rods.

Paige also says: "Of these forty-two persons, it is certain that at least one-half were not of the Braintree company, as many have supposed. We have no means to distinguish; but, from whatever place they may have come, the number of inhabitants so increased that, in about a year, there were nearly one hundred families in the Newtowne."

Beyond all question, the members of the Braintree company, who came to New England in 1631 and landed at Mount Wollaston, were all of unblemished character, many highly educated, of undoubted religious convictions, and controlled by high purpose. Why they landed at Mount Wollaston, a place of very unsavory reputation at that time, is a question. We read in the documents of that day of the "disgraceful carryings-on" at Merry-Mount under the leadership of the vicious Thomas Morton, such as caused the good people of the Plymouth Colony to "grieve at the wickedness of humanity there represented."

John¹ Bridge brought with him the religious fervor and activities of his home land. He became the first deacon of the first church of Cambridge in the year 1635. He was not only religious but was patriotic and ready to serve his new home in any ways civil, educational or scientific which might be demanded of him. He took the oath of a Freeman on March 4, 1634-35, and from that day was never wanting in devotion to all the interests of his new home. That his descendants may know under what obligations our Puritan ancestor placed himself, we herewith give the full form of the OATH taken:

FREEMAN'S OATH

"I, A.B., &c., being by the Almighty's most wise disposition become a member of this body, consisting of the Governor, Deputy Governor, Assistants and Commonalty of the Massachusetts in New England, do freely and sincerely acknowledge that I am justly and lawfully subject to the Governor of the same, and do accordingly submit my person and estate to be protected, ordered and governed by the laws and constitution thereof, and do faithfully promise to be from time to time obedient and comformable thereunto, and to the authority of the said Governor, Assistants, and their successors, to all such laws, orders, sentences, decrees as shall be lawfully made and published by them or their successors. And I will always endeavor (as in duty I am bound) to advance the peace and welfare of this body or Commonwealth, to my utmost skill and ability. And I will, to my best power and means, seek to divert and prevent whatsoever may tend to the ruin or damage thereof, or of any the said Governor, Deputy Governor, or Assistants, or any of them, or their successors, but will give speedy notice to them, or some of them, of any sedition, violence or treachery, or other hurt or evil, which I shall know, hear, or vehemently suspect, to be plotted or intended against the said Commonwealth, or said government established. And I will not, at any time suffer or give consent to any council or attempt that shall be offered, given, or attempted for the impeachment of the said Government, or making any change or alteration of the same, contrary to the laws and ordinances thereof; but shall do my utmost endeavor to discover, oppose and hinder all and every such council or attempt. So help me God." COL. REC. VOL. I.p.I."

DEACON BRIDGE'S SECOND WIFE

Paige, the historian of Cambridge, says:

"Roger Bancroft died Nov. 28, 1653, leaving wife Elizabeth¹, but apparently no children. His wife must have had uncommon attractions, it would seem; for she successively married three additional husbands, to wit: Martin Saunders, of Braintree, May 25, 1654; Deacon John¹ Bridge, of Cambridge, in 1658; Edward Taylor, of Boston. She was living in 1685, as appears by a receipt endorsed on her marriage contract with Deacon Bridge, acknowledging the full payment of her claim on his estate. The Receipt is dated Dec. 23, 1685, and signed by Timothy Pratt, of Boston, Tailor, attorney, and by order of Edward Taylor & Elizabeth his wife, the Relict of John Bridge deceased, within named."

Martin Saunders arrived in Boston in 1635; settled in Quincy. He died Aug. 4, 1658. His first wife, who came with him from England, died Sept. 15, 1651 and he married Elizabeth, the widow of Roger Bancroft. John Bridge was her third husband.

JOHN BRIDGE — HIS EDUCATION

From every source of information which we have been able to discover, Deacon John Bridge was above the average of his fellow-citizens in certain lines of educational acquirement. His affiliations both in England and in New England were evidently above the majority of his fellows and among the more highly educated of the community. When he came to the new colony he was well equipped as a land-surveyor. The laying out of the lines between Watertown and Concord, Watertown and Dedham, Watertown and Newton; the laying out of Sudbury, the laying out of military land, the laying out of Gurling's Land; his appointment to lay out land with Thomas Danforth and other parties; to determine the rights and immunities of the settlers in Shawshin, signed by John¹ Bridge and three others; the laying out of the line finally between Boston and Cambridge, — all these indicate not only scientific ability on the part of John Bridge, but also many other mental and moral forces combined in large measure.

His education must have been of an unusually broad character, for we find him frequently engaged in the settlement of estates by appointment and by personal selection of the parties in interest. And in addition, he had high ambitions as to the schooling of the youth of his home town and even of the Indians in and around the community. We know that he was in high repute with teachers, judges and preachers. He must also have been a man of fine physique for he was appointed by the town authorities to a very wide range of activities which must have imposed great physical strain on his constitution, during the years of his manhood. And the fact that he was chiefly instrumental in inducing the saintly Shepard to leave England and come across the sea to the little colony is assured proof of high religious motive and Christian activity, and also of the confidence placed in him by his fellow-citizens.

QUOTATIONS FROM THE FORMER EDITOR

The editor of the former BRIDGE GENEALOGY has very succinctly expressed his estimate of our John Bridge, the Puritan, after several years' study of all that was known about him, in these words: "That he was of a lineage respectable for character is clear not only for what we know of himself, but for whatever mention we can find of those of his name in that generation. Conscientiousness, self-respect, and a special regard to religious obligation, seem to mark them all."

"The church at New Towne is organized in 1635. John Bridge is chosen, at its start, its deacon, — chosen, that is, to the most honored office a layman could then hold, an office which implied its holder was recognized as a head man in the community not less than in the church. The church, indeed, was the community, or stood for it. In this Commonwealth, where church members were the only citizens to whom the franchises belonged, the officers of the church discharged very many of the duties of the magistrates even when the distinction between civil and ecclesiastical affairs had long been recognized. And they received a deference greater than the magistrates, as such, could ordinarily claim. All grants of lands, for example, were then certified by a committee consisting of ministers and deacons."

"Upon the organization of what is now Cambridge, then called 'Newtowne,' John Bridge is put upon the First Board of 'Townsmen'; as its Selectmen were then called, and continued so to serve for at least twelve years, almost consecutively, while the new office, peculiar to New England, and established in Cambridge, among the first towns to adopt it, is getting its work defined and is taking its character."

"But experience taught that some distinction must be made. Connected with the dawning of the idea of such a distinction was the plan adopted of sending representatives to a General Court, which should have management of civil affairs. Hitherto, all Freemen, that is, all church members, took direct part in the government. It was not till 1636 that representation was first roughly apportioned, allowing no representative to a town of less than ten Freemen, one representative to twenty Freemen or less, two to forty, and to no town more than three. And the next year, and for the three following years, John¹ Bridge must find leisure from church and town affairs, for a time, to go to the infant Legislature, where he is immediately put upon committees of diverse kinds, to run town lines, to lay out lands, to do whatever seems most important for the forming State."

"Thus, as Townsman and Statesman, and as one interested in the intellectual, moral, and religious welfare of the infant colony, our ancestor wrought his disinterested, modest, faithful, busy, honorable life into the life of the Commonwealth for more than thirty years. To bless his posterity, there is left on our early Colony State Papers, the record of his useful activity in the varied important work bidden him to do. For his undoubted fidelity, let his posterity pronounce him, too, blessed, and honor his name by cherishing a like fidelity, and a like modest, hearty, intelligent, carefully-trained consecration of themselves to the common weal; that they may be ready in their lot, as he was in his, to do the efficient, beneficent service for which the State will ever have abundant occasion to call."

AMBITIOUS COLONISTS

It seems to us, in our day, almost incomprehensible that many score of people, even in the earliest days of Newtowne, could feel at all any limitations in the matter of landed property. But the fact still stands that scores of excellent men, women and children, taking their cattle with them, left Newtowne and, amidst severe hardships and dangers from Indian adversaries, plodded their weary way to what is now known as New Haven, Conn. Prior to leaving Newtowne, they sold their houses and lands, many times at a ruinous sacrifice. Those who remained bought largely and our own John Bridge increased his holdings, which he held until other Puritans coming across the sea needed houses and lands for themselves.

REV. TH. SHEPARD

The community was greatly in need of a new religious teacher and letters were written to England urging the coming of one or more educated and spiritual divines. The Rev. Th. Shepard came. In the memoirs of this man, written by himself, we find the following: "The reasons which swayed me to come to New England were many; first, I saw no call to any other place in Old England — nor any of subsistence in peace and comfort to me and my family; second, divers people of Old England, of my dear friends, desired me to go to New England, there to live together, and some went before and writ to me of providing a place or a Company of us, one of whom was John Bridge."

The persecutions of the Puritans were of such a character that though Mr. Shepard was cordially invited to go to live with Mr. Bridge, the ministry in Norwich, and also a Mrs. Corbitt, who lived six miles from Norwich, offered him a great house at Bostwick. He declined the two invitations, and in August, 1635, embarked with his wife and son Thomas under the disguised name of John Shepard, husbandman, and crossed the seas to the new land.

Mr. Shepard was, indeed, a man of high education, having been graduated at Emmanuel College in Cambridge, England (A.B. 1623, A.M. 1627). He was born in Northamptonshire; was a man of Christian devotion and such a man as was needed in the colony at that time.

JOHN BRIDGE'S HOME

Among the first responsibilities resting upon John Bridge was the erection of a house for his little family. He had, undoubtedly, brought with him across the seas, as was common with well-to-do Puritans, various household belongings and also somewhat of the coin of the realm. The Puritans who could afford it always built a two-story house and when the family increased simply extended the back roof towards the ground, thus preparing additional room. This was called a "lean-to," because it leaned against the house. This house was on the northeast corner of Dunster and South Streets, directly opposite Governor Dudley's. John Bridge lived here until he bought the site of the Longfellow home.

When John¹ Bridge built the house in 1638, his family consisted of himself, his sister Elizabeth and his two sons. But when Matthew was married in 1643, and resided with his wife and children with his father, the house was too small for the family, and in October, 1646, permission was given by the town to John Bridge to cut timber on the public land and to build a "lean-to" to his house, which he did. It is doubtless true that his second home was substantially built on land extending from Brattle Street to Garden Street, embracing a part of the Craigie Estate, which was sold by John Barnard to John Bridge. The Craigie House was later built upon the land originally owned by John Bridge, and was occupied by Washington as his headquarters in July, 1775. The house had been built by a Tory who fled at the commencement of the Revolution. It was bought later by Andrew Craigie, and afterwards purchased by the poet Longfellow about 1843, having been previously occupied by Jared Sparks, Edward Everett, and Joseph E. Worcester of dictionary fame.

It is not exactly known of what style, shape or material John Bridge's first house was built. It is known, however, that houses of the Puritans in the vicinity of Cambridge were built as early as 1636 of timbers, bricks and tiles brought from England; such houses as the Fairbanks House in Dedham, occupied by the "Fairbanks Family in America, Inc.," and the Rebecca Nourse House built by Townsend Bishop, of Salem, in 1636.

SAMUEL J. BRIDGE TO THE FORMER EDITOR:

"There is no doubt in my mind in regard to the residence of John¹ Bridge (in Cambridge), in Lot 50, in 1635, nor in regard to Washington's Headquarters in 1638. Lot 42 he bought, but he did not live upon it. A few years ago I wanted to know the lot where my ancestor resided in Cambridge, and I called on Mr. Paige and he went with me and pointed out both places. He went with me to Washington's headquarters on the horse cars. It was not near Washington's headquarters but on it. John Bridge built a house on the land in 1638 and died there in 1665. The plan of Lot 50 with Dolar Davis on the north was drawn, by Mr. Paige, at my request and given by me to Honorable Horace Davis. Let there be no ambiguity on these points in the Genealogy. I investigated the matter fully and am responsible for it. I feel sure about the facts."

CAMBRIDGE "WEST END" LOTS IN 1642

In August, 1634, lots were granted in the "West End," so called, and in October, 1635, twelve proprietors recorded lots in that part of the West End bounded by the present Garden, Mason, Brattle and Sparks Streets.

The twelve grants recorded only 50 acres, evidently estimated, for the whole area really covered 65 acres. In September, 1642, a complete schedule was completed of all the buildings and lots in Cambridge held by the proprietors, and this schedule is recorded on pages 72-116 of the Proprietors' Record. (Printer's Volume.)

Lot I was bought by John Bridge in 1650 from Golden Moore and was sold in 1672 to Pyam Blowers. Golden Moore had bought it from John Champney.

Lots III and IV all faced on Brattle Street and a house, barn and outhouses were on these twelve acres of land. Lot III had really $5\frac{1}{2}$ acres, and Lot IV $10\frac{1}{2}$ acres.

Lot III was originally granted to Thomas Judd, who sold it in 1637 to John Bridge. In 1759, John Vassall, Jr., bought a portion of the lot facing Brattle Street and built the famous Vassall-Craigie-Longfellow House, now occupied by the poet Longfellow's daughter, and open to visitors from 2 to 4 P.M. on Saturdays only.

Lot IV was originally granted to Christopher Caine (3 acres), and to John Barnard (5 acres). The latter bought out Caine's three acres and sold the whole to John Bridge in 1637. But in 1759, John Vassall, Jr., bought all the westerly portion of the lot.

Lot V was originally a portion of Lot III and was sold about 1639 by John Bridge to Thomas White. It was owned in 1642 by George Willows (a house and half acre of land).

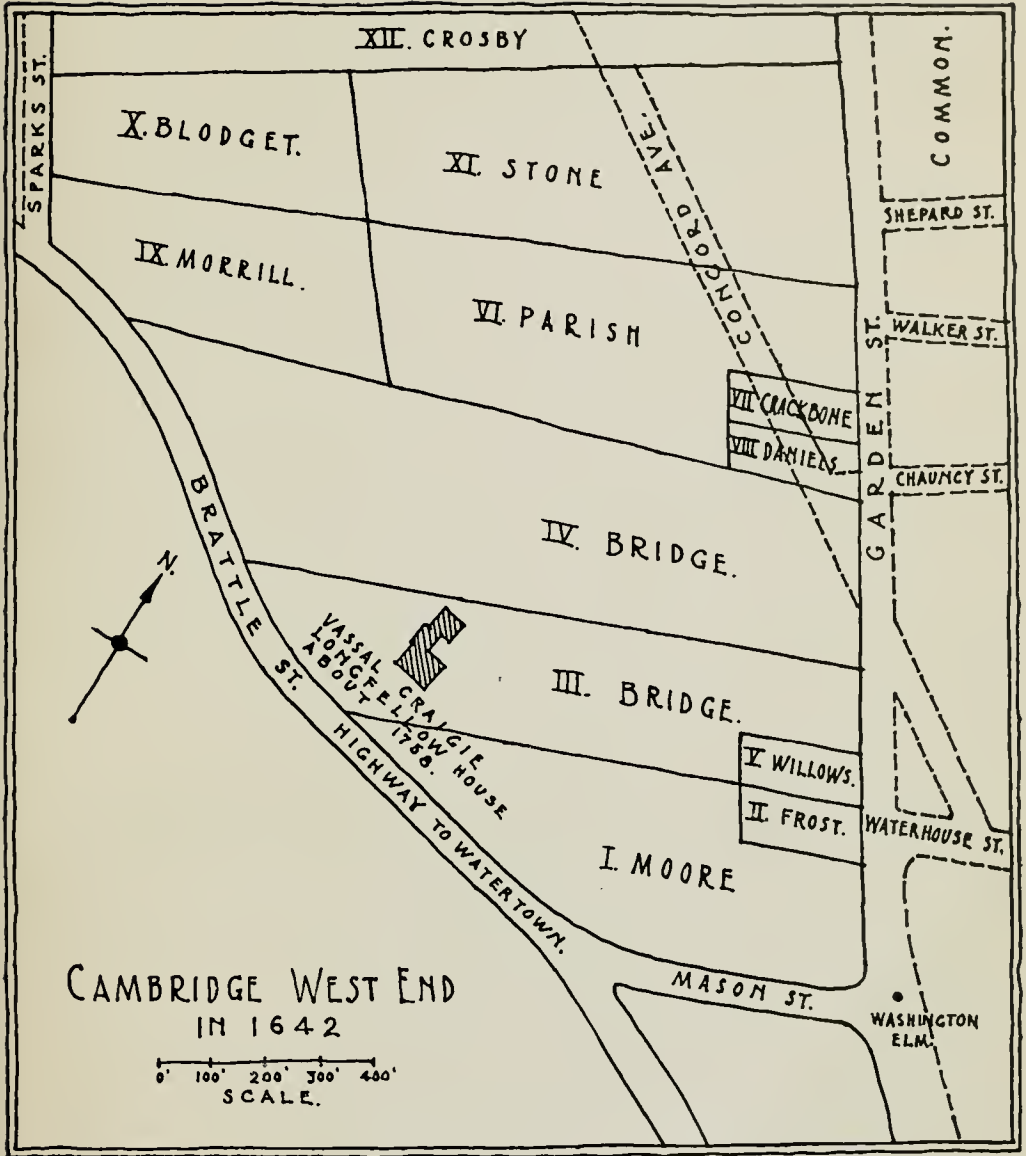

Lot IX was originally held by Joseph Eason, who sold it to Abraham Morrell in 1637. He sold it to John Bridge in July, 1645. It became a portion of the Vassall estate in 1759.

John Vassall, Jr., made extensive purchases of real estate as we have seen, nearly 31 acres, which he added to his previous holdings of 16 acres, on Brattle Street, thus securing a homestead of 47 acres. He was an ardent Tory and fled to England from Boston when the British Army evacuated that city in the spring of 1776. His homestead and other Cambridge property were confiscated in 1778, and his 47 acres were sold in June, 1781, to Nathaniel Tracy, a wealthy citizen of Newburyport. Through failure financially, he sold, October 13, 1786, the entire Vassall property to Thomas Russell, of Boston, who later sold it to Dr. Andrew Craigie, Jan. 1, 1792, who occupied it until his death in 1819. It passed into the possession of the poet Longfellow.

JOHN BRIDGE AND JOHN HARVARD

In our extended characterization of John Bridge, the Puritan, we noted that he possessed quite a liberal education for his time and that he was chosen to oversee the education, in part, of the youth of his community.

It has been often asked: To what extent was John Bridge a co-founder of Harvard College? Some of the facts we present will illumine the subject. In examining the records of Harvard College, my assistant editor discovered the following quoted matter:

“Rev. Henry Dunster, who had recently arrived from England, with a high character of learning and piety, was placed over the Institution with the title of President, Aug. 27, 1640. Under his direction, the College took a high standing. The property was increased by donations amounting to at least a Thousand pounds Sterling, besides annuities and grants of land. Some of the donations merit particular notice. Mr. Bridges, Mr. Greenhill, & Mr. Glover gave as many utensils as amounted to twenty pounds.”

“The Lady Moulson gave toward the above College One Hundred Pounds and Mr. Bridges Fifty Pounds, which was put into the County Treasury with other small gifts amt' to Twelve £, 16 s. until the whole amt.' was 162 £, 16 s. f. groat.”

If this Mr. Bridges was our John¹ Bridge, concerning which we have no doubt, he did aid materially in establishing Harvard College.

We have not found in all our searches any man or woman in Cambridge in these early years by the name of BRIDGES, except as above stated, but the name of John Bridge is among the leading names constantly occurring.

When we go back to examine the surroundings in an educational sphere of John Harvard, when in England, we find a remarkable condition.

In 1885, there was reprinted, from the New England Historic-Genealogical Society's Register for October, a document entitled “Genealogical Gleanings in England, by Henry F. Waters, A.M.” From this document we discover several interesting facts: that John Harvard was the son of Robert Harvard, a well-to-do butcher, and Katharine Rogers. The father, younger brother and older brother of John Harvard died in 1625, perhaps of the plague which raged at that time in London. John Harvard's father disposed by will of a property quite considerable for those days. John's mother married the next year, 1626, in January, a John ——, a cooper, but he died the following June, 1626, leaving another property to his widow. In December, 1628, John Harvard entered College at the age of twenty. Five years later, 1632, his mother appears to be the widow and principal heir of Richard Yearwood, a grocer, who was mentioned in the will of her first husband (Robert Harvard), as “my good neighbor and friend, Richard Yearwood.” In 1635, John Harvard's mother died, leaving a considerable property (derived from her three husbands, the butcher, the cooper, and the grocer), chiefly to her two sons, John and Thomas Harvard, with a preference for the older son, "John Harvard, clarke." In 1637, he appears married to Ann Sudler, seven years younger than himself, the daughter of a clergyman in Sussex County. In 1636, his brother, Thomas, placed in his will a fair property, much of which came to his brother John. This brother John and Nicholas Morton, a preacher, were the executors. But when the will was proved, May 5, 1637, John Harvard had sailed with his wife for New England; and in 1638 John Harvard himself, the young minister at Charlestown, Mass., died at thirty years of age, leaving most of his property as a benefaction to the College in Newtowne, which soon after gave to it the name Harvard.

John Harvard's family were very largely uneducated. His father and mother both made their marks as their signatures. The whole family were tradespeople, but his mother received property sufficient to give a college education to her oldest son, John.

JOHN BRIDGE'S TOMBSTONE

"In memory of John¹ Bridge, Esq., member of Hooker's company that left Braintree, Essex County, England, in 1631. In 1632 settled in this city and became a leading citizen. He was admitted a Freeman in 1634. He had the supervision of the first public school established in the colony in 1635 and this led to the erection of Harvard College in 1638. He was chosen Deacon at the reorganization of the Church in 1636. He was Selectman from 1635-1652. He represented the town in the Legislature, 1637 to 1641. He was employed by the General Court to lay out lands, served on committees and performed other important duties. He was a large landholder in Cambridge as well as in other parts of the colony. He filled almost all the offices of honor and trust within the gift of his fellow citizens, and was greatly esteemed for his integrity and Christian virtues. He died April 15, 1665."

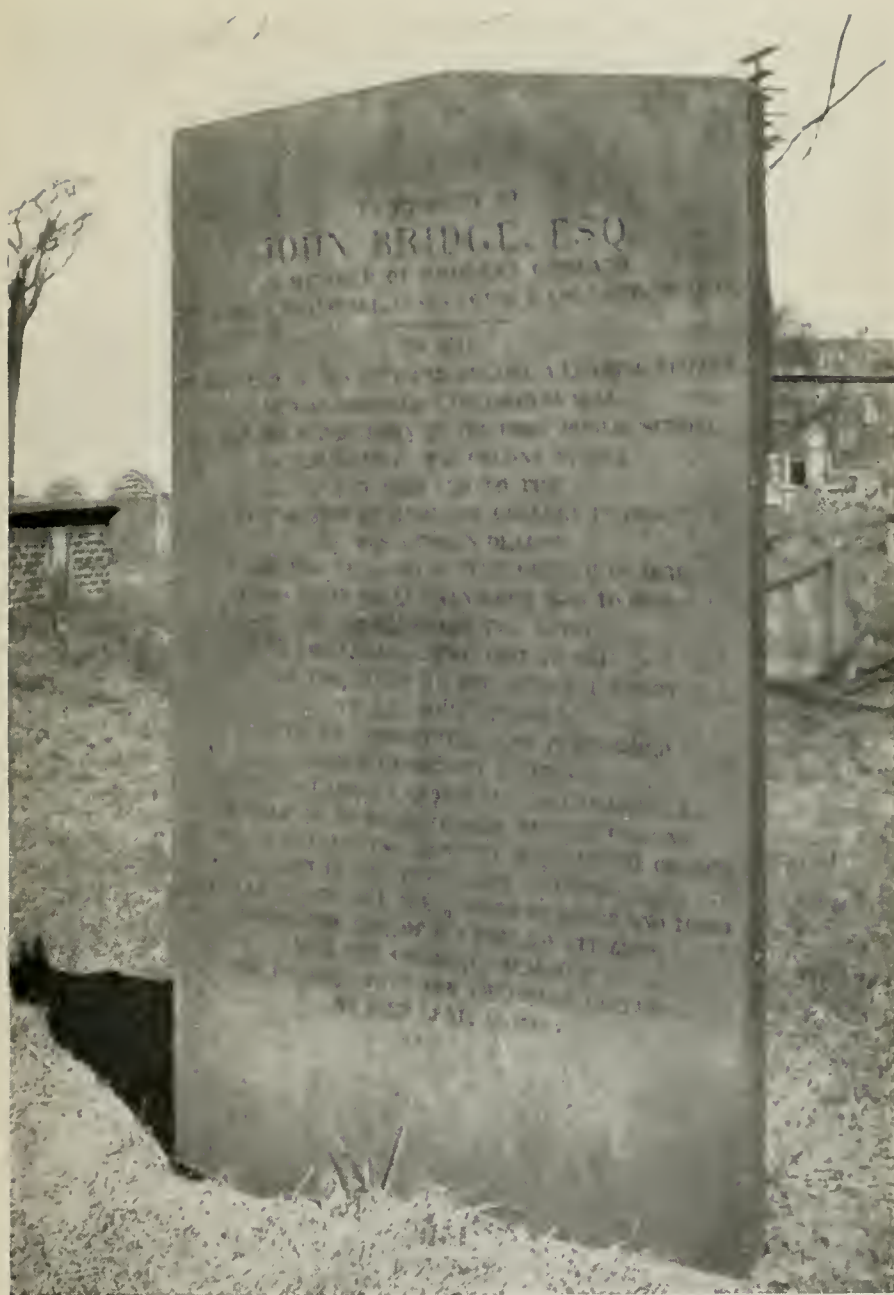

"In memory of Elizabeth, sister of Deacon John Bridge, and wife of John Betts, Esq., died Jan. 2, 1664." Erected by Samuel J. Bridge, July 4, 1876."

MATTHEW BRIDGE, JR.

Matthew Bridge, Jr., enjoyed a great degree of the confidence of his townsmen, who conferred upon him with a liberal hand their community honors. He was chosen at their first organization as a town to serve as first Selectman, Town Clerk and Treasurer, to which offices he was re-elected the following year. He served many years as Treasurer, and filled almost every town office from time to time. Prior to his coming to Lexington from Cambridge, he had, like his father, held in that town the offices of Selectman, Town Clerk and Treasurer.

Capt. Matthew Bridge, son of Matthew Bridge, Jr., filled the offices of Selectman in 1732, 1733, 1740 and 1741. He was Assessor 1733, 1735, 1739; Town Clerk in 1740; Treasurer 1730, 1732 and 1740. He resided in Lexington until 1748 when he removed with his family to Waltham, to which church he was sent by dismissal from the Lexington church, with his wife, together with Nathaniel and Sarah Bridge. He had bought in 1722 from the Bowman family the large property at the corner of Forest and Trapelo Streets. In 1751 he "gave to the town of Waltham 1 £ 6s. 8d. in consideration of his congregating with them."

His will was dated May 23, 1757, and proved April 13, 1761.

THE FOUR "MATTHEWS"

John¹ Bridge, the Puritan, had four lineal descendants following each other in direct line, each bearing the name of Matthew. The reader is likely to become confused if the following facts be not kept in mind.

The first Matthew was the son of John¹ and was born in England. He died in Cambridge, Apr. 28, 1700. His son, Matthew³, Jr., was born in Cambridge, May 5, 1650 and died in Lexington, May 29, 1738, aged 88 years. His son, who bore the title of Captain Matthew⁴, was born in Lexington, Mar. 1, 1694 and died Mar. 25, 1761. His son, the Rev. Matthew⁵ Bridge was born in Lexington, July 18, 1721, and died in Framingham, Sept. 2, 1774.

It will be noticed that Matthew, Jr., born in Cambridge, became practically Matthew, Sr., when he moved to Lexington, and was the specially distinguished citizen on the incorporation of Lexington in 1713.

The Four Matthews

1. MATTHEW, b. in England, date unknown; d. Apr. 28, 1700.
2. MATTHEW, JR., b. May 5, 1650; d. May 29, 1738. He was the father of the four families.
3. MATTHEW, CAPT., b. Mar. 1, 1694; d. Mar. 25, 1761.
4. MATTHEW, REV., b. July 18, 1721; d. Sept. 2, 1774.

(Note 1. Matthew b. in England was companion with his son, Matthew, Jr., for fifty years.)

(Note 2. Matthew, Jr., b. in Cambridge, May 5, 1650 and his son, Capt. Matthew, were companions for forty-four years.)

(Note 3. Matthew, Jr. was 48 years old when his son Joseph was born; 50 years old when his son John⁴ was born, and 55 when his son Samuel⁴ was born.

THE BRIDGES AND THEIR ASSOCIATES

According to the old maxim, "Birds of a feather flock together," John¹ Bridge and his son Matthew² found kindred spirits at a very early day in the new-born settlement. Among these, we note especially the Reeds, the Tidds, the Danforths, and the Bowmans. These several families, with scores of their relatives, had, like John Bridge himself, fled from the persecutions or other serious burdens heaped upon them in England, both by government and church, seeking civil and religious freedom in a new country. These Puritans had settled in Salem, Dorchester, Cambridge, Watertown, Charlestown, Boston, and adjacent locations.

Their social, educational and religious standing was of the best, and our Puritan ancestor was by no means the least of them.

The Bowmans were also very prominent at that time. Note the intermarriages of the Bowmans and the Bridges: Abigail Bowman married Matthew⁴ Bridge, March 20, 1720. Martha Bowman married Samuel⁴ Bridge, Apr. 27, 1737. Phebe Bowman married Edmund⁵ Bridge, Sept. 6, 1764. Phœbe Bowman married Jonathan Bridge, Feb. 2, 1781. Betty Bowman married William Bridge, Dec. 11, 1783. William Bowman married Phœbe Bridge, Jan. 1, 1799.

THE FIRST MEETING HOUSE

A pious people, though comparatively few in number, must have a place for their religious services. As early as 1682, the people of Lexington petitioned the General Court to be set off as a distinct religious Parish. Matthew Bridge, Jr., was one of the petitioners. The petition was at first refused but in 1691 it was renewed and granted. The Rev. Benjamin Estabrook was called to be their preacher.

Among the items of the tax bill for the payment of the minister's salary for the year May 1, 1692 to May 1, 1693, we find the names of Matthew² Bridge, Sr., and Matthew³ Bridge, Jr., the former being one of the six highest tax payers.

The First Congregational Church of Lexington, having been established by the election of deacons and the selection of a pastor, we find that among those admitted on their profession of faith were Matthew³ Bridge, Jr., and his wife, Abigail³, Thomas Cutler, Sr., Joseph Bowman, Capt. William Reed and others. The church, at that time, consisted of only thirty-three members.

It is interesting to note the intermarriages of these families. Joseph⁴ Bridge married Abigail Cutler, the daughter of Thomas and Sarah Cutler, in 1722; Major John⁵ Bridge married Hannah, the daughter of William and Sarah Reed, in 1761; Samuel Bridge married the daughter, Martha, of Joseph and Phoebe Bowman, in 1738.

Communion cups are now owned by the First Church in Lexington, which were given by former members or in memory of others. William Reed gave a cup in 1716; Matthew Bridge and Thomas Meriam gave a cup in 1745; one cup in memory of Joseph Bowman was given in 1755.

The oldest paper upon the records of Lexington is the subscription paper giving the names of the donors and their several subscriptions towards the erection of a meeting house. Forty-one subscribers gave 62 pounds 1 shilling. John Russell gave 2 pounds 12 shillings; and five others gave 2 pounds 10 shillings each, as follows: "Mathew² Bridg, David ffiske, senor, Samuel Stone senor, Ephrim Winship, John Teed senor." Another Mathew Bridg gave 1 Pound also.

In the tax-bill for the payment of the minister's salary, "Samll Stone senor" gave 2 pounds 2 shillings, and widow Meriam 1 pound 12 shillings. "Mathew² Bridg senor" gave 1 pound 11 shillings, and "Mathew³ Bridg junr" 10 shillings 3 pence.

Hudson's "History" says: "These two papers, the subscription for the meeting-house, and the first tax-bill for the support of their minister, are both valuable, as they contain the names of all the inhabitants, and show us who were the largest holders of real estate at the incorporation of the precinct. There is also a remarkable coincidence between the tax and the subscription. On the subscription, David Fiske, Senior, Samuel Stone, Senior, Mathew² Bridge, Senior, Ephrim Winship, Joseph Simonds, and William Munroe stand the six highest, and on the tax-bill the same gentlemen maintain their relative position.

On a subscription paper, for means wherewith to purchase land for a public common, near the meeting-house, six men led off with their offerings of 10 pounds each, and Matthew² Bridge was one of the six.

John Bridge¹, when he was very far advanced in life, and living in Lexington, was appointed the committee to wait upon the new pastor, the Rev. Mr. Hancock, and make the necessary arrangements for his ordination, in 1698. As a mark of distinction, he was "seated at the table in the Meeting House by the Order of the Parish." He died two years later.

The pastor of Lexington, Rev. Mr. Hancock, having suddenly died, a meeting of sympathy for the widow was held, at which time two hundred pounds was given for a "descent burial." A Mr. Joseph⁴ Bridge was one of the committee to assist at Mrs.

Hancock's home and at the burial, and a Mr. Samuel⁴ Bridge was instructed to provide five hundred bricks in order to brick said grave.

FIRST TOWN MEETING

Immediately upon the Act of Incorporation of the Town, March 13, 1713, the inhabitants of Lexington met to organize by the choice of Town Officers. This election shows who were the leading men of that period. The members of the present Bridge family must be greatly gratified with the selections made, as follows:

Selectmen: Matthew³ Bridge, Capt. William Reed, Lieut. Francis Bowman, Ens. Joseph Simonds, Deacon John Merriam.

Town Clerk and Town Treasurer: Matthew³ Bridge.

Constables: James Wilson, John Mason.

Assessors: Francis Bowman, Matthew Bridge, Joseph Estabrook, William Munroe, Samuel Stearns.

Tythingmen: Lieut. Thomas Cutler, Thomas Blodgett, Samuel Whitmore.

Surveyors: Isaac Stearns, Thomas Cutler, John Poulter.

Sealer of Leather: Sherebiah Kibbe.

CAPT. MATTHEW BRIDGE

Capt. Matthew⁴ Bridge, born in 1694, became a Selectman in Lexington in 1732, 1733, 1740, 1744, 1745; Assessor, 1733, 1735, 1739; Town Treasurer, 1730, 1732, 1740. He removed to Waltham in 1740.

That we may note the high standing in Lexington of three men who married into the Bridge family, we give the following facts: Selectmen: Joseph Bowman, 1714-16, '21, '24, '26, '27, '29, '31, '33-38. Thomas Cutler, 1729, '31, '33, '34. William Reed, 1734-38, '43, '52, '54, '57, '59, '61.

We today may be greatly pleased to note that the Capt. Matthew⁴ Bridge, Selectman, is the leader of our Matthew Line in our GENEALOGY; that William Reed's daughter became the wife of Joseph⁵ Bridge, Jr.; that the third son of Matthew³ Bridge, Jr., married Sarah Tidd, daughter of Joseph Tidd; that Joseph⁴ Bridge, the second son of Matthew³ Bridge, Jr., married Abigail, daughter of Thomas Cutler. All these names, Bridge, Reed, Tidd, and Cutler show the very high standing of these first elected Town Officers of Lexington.

Among the Assessors of the town of Lexington, we find the following: Matthew³ Bridge, Jr., 1733, '35, '39; Joseph Bridge, 1741; Major John⁵ Bridge, 1778, '90, '91, '92.

Selectmen: Capt. John⁴, 1746-56. Joseph⁵, Jr., 1757-60. Samuel⁴, 1758-60. John⁵, 1787, '88, '90, '94, '95. Jonas, 1792-'98.

Among the Town Clerks of Lexington we find these, Matthew² Bridge, Jr., 1712-13 (the first Town Clerk at the incorporation of the town); Matthew³ Bridge, Jr., 1740.

In the list of Town Treasurers of Lexington these names are discovered, Matthew² Bridge (the first Town Treasurer), 1713; Matthew³ Bridge, Jr., 1730-32, '40; John⁴ Bridge, 1744-46.

From 1773 to 1781, inclusive, the town appointed special committees as a channel of communication through the colonies and in 1776 Major John⁵ Bridge, Jr. was one of the five. We find that in 1795, John⁵ Bridge was a Justice of the Peace, as was also Jonas⁵ Bridge, in 1813.

LEXINGTON CIVIL OFFICERS

Selectmen: Matthew² Bridge, 1713, 1714. Matthew³ Bridge, Jr., 1732, 1733, 1740, 1744, 1745. John⁴ Bridge, 1746, 1756. Joseph⁵ Bridge, Jr., 1757. Samuel⁴ Bridge, 1758, 1759, 1760. Major John Bridge, Jr., 1787, 1788, 1790, 1794, 1795. Jonas⁵ Bridge, 1798-1793.

HANCOCK-CLARKÈ HOUSE — LEXINGTON.

The Hancock-Clarke House in Lexington was built in 1698; enlarged in 1734. John Hancock and Samuel Adams were staying at this house April 18, 1775, when Paul Revere rode out to warn them of the approach of the British. Mrs. Lucy (Bowes) Clarke, a lineal descendant of John Bridge, the Puritan, of 1632, was hostess of this house at this time. This venerable house still stands in excellent condition, filled in every room with the rarest collection of antiques of Pre-Revolutionary times, and visited by many thousands, old and young, annually.

THE FOUR BRIDGE HOUSES

A short time prior to the publication of the Bridge Genealogy of 1884, the publisher of that Genealogy gave the following information to its editor: "The four hundred acres of land in Lexington granted to Matthew² Bridge were divided among his grandchildren, Matthew⁴, Joseph⁴, John⁴ and Samuel⁴, one hundred acres each, and when they married (1720 to 1740) he erected handsome two-story dwelling houses for them, and they are all still standing (1884), in a good state of preservation. Matthew's farm made a jog, and was set off to Waltham, — the finest of the four, — but they were all elegant houses in their time. I think some mention ought to be made in the Genealogy for a century — hence the descendants of the Bridge Family will say, “They were all standing in 1884.”

Three of the homes, which were wedding gifts from Matthew Bridge, Jr.³, to his sons on the occasion of their marriages, in a condition of most delightful preservation, and we are especially pleased to be able to show their attractiveness in our volume.

The Matthew⁴ House was presented to Capt. Matthew⁴ Bridge on his marriage, March 2, 1720; that to Joseph⁴ on his marriage, Nov. 18, 1722; and that to Samuel⁴ on his marriage, Apr. 7, 1731.

Our pictures show the houses as they stand today, being photographs taken by our artist photographer, Mr. F. L. Fales of Waltham.

THE LONGFELLOW HOUSE

The Longfellow house was built by John Vassall and was on the same plan as most of the old colonial houses. A broad hall runs through the center of the house from front to rear and there are two square rooms on each side of this hall. These rooms have a high-paneled wainscot and all the wood work is tinted white. There are two staircases which meet on a landing where there is an arched window between the front and back halls, and the stairs again divide to the front and back. The rooms on the second floor correspond with those below.

When the house was used as Washington’s headquarters the front room on the left was used as Mrs. Washington’s drawing-room and the one on the right was General Washington’s office. A passageway separated this room from the rooms occupied by the military family, and in the rear was the dining-room. Large, commodious and stately, this house is the finest specimen of colonial architecture in Cambridge.

THE LEWIS-CUTTER-BRIDGE HOUSE

The northwest corner of Holyoke and Winthrop Streets had four owners before 1642. William Lewis, the original grantee, went to Hartford in Hooker’s company and later to Farmington, Conn. The next owner, Thomas Besbeach, went to Scituate and Duxbury and sold to William Cutter, who was here in 1638. He later returned to England and was living there in 1653. From him this land went to John Bridge, the typical Puritan settler who lived on Dunster Street and later on Brattle Street.

CHAMPNEY-BRIDGE-BLOWERS-HILL HOUSE

EPISCOPAL THEOLOGICAL SCHOOL

On the north side of Brattle Street, corner of Mason, stands the architecturally handsome group of buildings belonging to the Episcopal Theological School. Until the first of these, the Chapel, was built in 1869, a rather low two-story house stood on this site, facing towards Ash Street. A low wall of great round, white-washed beach stones ran in front of the house, which was partly hidden by a high hedge. The rooms were low studded and in the middle of the last century had painted hangings of artistic merit. The old fireplaces were bordered by quaint purple Dutch tiles. At the time of the Revolution, this was the Deacon Aaron Hill house. West of the Chapel is the hundred-year-old tree, which is a hybrid walnut of interest to botanists.

“The original grantee of the land was John Champney who lived here in 1638 and probably his three children were born here. The estate was finally sold, in 1650, to Deacon John¹ Bridge, whose son, Matthew² Bridge, probably lived here with his wife, Anne, daughter of Nicholas Danforth. In 1672, when Matthew² Bridge removed to Lexington, he sold it, with four and a half acres of land, to Captain Pyam Blowers, who had married Elizabeth, daughter of the first Andrew Belcher and niece of Mrs. Matthew² Bridge.”

On the easterly corner of Brattle and Hawthorn Streets stands a very old house with its eight-foot square-stack chimney, the bricks of which are laid with pounded oyster shells instead of lime. The house and a half acre of land were bought by Richard Bancroft who lived here until his death in 1635. His widow married Martin Saunders of Braintree; at his death she married Deacon John Bridge of Cambridge in 1658; and at his decease she became the wife of Edward Taylor of Boston.

LEXINGTON MEMORABILIA

In Hudson's "History of Lexington" we find the following pithy, and probably very just characterization of some of the early colonists: "The thirst for landed possession, so peculiar to first settlers in every country, appears to have affected our pious ancestors. They were enduring hardships incident to a new settlement, and undoubtedly looked with anxiety to a time when they might, in some degree, rest from their severe toil, and have the consolation that when they should be called home, they could leave their children in a condition more favorable than that in which they commenced life."

"That the small settlement at Newtowne was not particularly pressed for room will appear from the fact that the township at that time included what is now known as Newton, Brighton, Brookline, one-half of Arlington, a portion of Belmont, a territory sufficiently large, one would suppose, to contain and support a few hundred inhabitants."

That John Bridge, the Puritan, was one of the very earliest settlers of Lexington is beyond doubt. Hudson's "History of Lexington" furnishes us very interesting and important facts concerning the town, throwing radiant light upon John Bridge and his family, and upon the times in which they lived. Our readers will certainly welcome our selections from that history. He says: "The first residents spent only a portion of the year here in Lexington and it appears that John Bridge had stacks of hay upon his land near Vine Brook prior to 1645, and, without pretending to state the exact order of the year of their settlement, we may safely say that the Bridges, Winships, Cutlers, Fiskes, Stones, Bowmans, etc., were among the earliest settlers and the most numerous families." The Proprietors' Records give us this bit of information: "A Grant in 1642 to Herbert Pelham at the further side of Vine Brooke and Six Hyndred Acr of land Concord Lyne north John Bridge West." We have also this record in favor of Edward Goffee: "By Vyne Brooke Six Hundred Acr of land more or lesse Herbert Pelham Esqr. & John Bridg north."

A ratification of a former grant to John Bridge is in language as follows: "It is now also ratified by these presents, 15 (11) 1645 John Bridge, grant unto him as appears in the grant book Twenty Acr of Plowe-land, on this side of Vine-Brooke Eastward, neere vnto the place where his stacks of hay did stand." Hudson's History says: "These lands must have been situated in the southwesterly part of the town near the source of Vine Brook, and were probably among the first lands settled."

When the Bridges went from Cambridge to Lexington, they settled near the center of the town, and, very naturally, became the very first citizens of prominence in the community. As early as 1642, John Bridge, John Betts (his brother-in-law), Thomas Danforth and eight or ten others were proprietors of lands within the township, though most of them still had their residences in Cambridge or in the vicinity of Boston.

It is quite probable that some of the early Puritans left their English homes, where it was not possible to become extensive land owners by reason of the laws of inheritance then prevailing in England, and, in coming to the new home, bought landed property as extensively as their means would permit. At any rate most, if not all, of the early leading citizens became large land owners, and Deacon John Bridge and his sons were no exception to the rule. This is certain, that Matthew Bridge, Sr., became one of the largest landowners of the precinct Lexington, possessing at least four hundred acres there.

MILITARY BREVITIES

We notice especially that men with military titles were the leading men of the town. The title of captain, of lieutenant, of ensign, and quarter master, belonged to men who were exceedingly popular and distinguished. John⁴ Bridge bore the last title.

In the war with the French and Indians in 1755, a large force from Massachusetts was brought out, and the rolls of Lexington show that Lexington furnished twenty-one men at least, among whom we find the name of John⁵ Bridge; and James Bridge and Benjamin Bridge in 1756. The war continued, and among the troops called out we find the name of John Bridge in 1757; in 1758 Jeremiah⁵ Bridge. On the roll of the officers and soldiers of Captain Parker's company, in 1775, we find the names of Joseph Bridge and John Bridge. A detachment of this company was called to Cambridge for colonial defense before the battle of Lexington and served from May 6 to May 10, 1775. In this detachment we also find the name of Matthew⁴ Bridge; for the same purpose and at Cambridge, June 17 and 18, 1775, in Captain Parker's company we find Lieut. John⁵ Bridge, as first lieutenant after Capt. John Parker, and in the same company we find the names of Jonathan Bridge and Nathan Bridge.

Lexington men were very prominent in the Revolutionary War and a large number of names are found on the rolls in the archives of the State.

In Hudson's "History of Lexington," we find this: (p. 426):

"Muster Roll of Capt. John Bridge of Lexington Company in Colonel Eliezer Brooks' Regiment on Command at Roxbury, from March 4, 1776 to March 8 inclusive:

John⁵ Bridge, Captain
Matthew⁴ Bridge
Jonathan⁶ Bridge
Jonas⁵ Bridge

Revolutionary Rolls, Vol. 17, Page. 64."

At the commencement of the Revolutionary War, Lexington had a population of only seven hundred inhabitants. It might well be said that she furnished a very liberal number of her citizens to defend her from the attack of the British.

Under the heading of "Military Service Rendered" by the Inhabitants of Lexington, in the War of the Revolution, from the first campaign in 1775 to the close of 1777, we find in the seventh campaign, 1776,

To White Plains 1776 Matthew Bridge £ 5

In the Eighth Campaign, three months, to the Jerseys

Samuel⁴ Bridge £ 7 S 10

In the Eleventh Campaign, to Bennington, in 1777, Samuel⁴ Bridge and others, a man, £ 9

 Matthew⁴ Bridge £ 4

In the Thirteenth Campaign, Dec. 1777, to Guard the Line near Cambridge, five months,
 Samuel⁴ Bridge £ 1 S 16

In the list of names to whom Capt. Benjamin Reed delivered bayonets (As per Vol. 97, p. 216), we find the name of William Bridge.

Hudson's "History of Lexington," says: (p. 421): "Appended to an Address delivered at Lexington in April 1685, by Edward Everett, is a note as follows: 'The following is the List of Capt. Parker's Company, as they stood enrolled on the 19th of April, 1775,' and two names are John⁵ Bridge and Joseph⁴ Bridge."

Hudson's "History" also says: "As this company not only served in the morning but in the afternoon of the Memorable 19th of April, but on an Alarm at Cambridge in May, and on the Day of Battle of Bunker Hill, in June. Detachments from this Company, with the gallant Parker at their head, repaired promptly to the scene of action and offered themselves for active service. In the List of Missing is found the name of Matthew Bridge."

Hudson's "History," p. 424: "In the Revolutionary Rolls, Vol. 11, pp. 208, and 234, we find this "Muster Roll of a Detachment of a Company of Militia of Lexington on Command at Cambridge from May 11, 1775 to May 15, both days included. By Order Committee of Safety, John⁵ Bridge, Commander."

Hudson, also on p. 425, gives the following:

"In a Muster Roll of a part of Captain Parker's Company who were called to Cambridge, June 17 and 18, 1775: (we find these names)

Capt. John⁵ Bridge

Lieut. John⁴ Bridge

Matthew⁴ Bridge"

COMMITTEE OF SAFETY

As early as 1772 the inhabitants of Lexington met and passed resolutions concerning the national rights and duties of every man, the security of life, liberty and property, and concerning their own rights as Englishmen, as a people and as individuals. A committee of seven was chosen to report to the town their views on this subject. One of the members of this Committee of seven was Mr. Samuel Bridge.

At a meeting of the inhabitants of Lexington held in March preceding the Battle of Lexington, a Committee of Correspondence and Safety was chosen, Capt. John Bridge being the second on the committee of five. This shows the remarkable confidence placed in him by his fellow citizens.

THE LEXINGTON "TEA PARTY"

For a hundred and fifty years Boston has been noted for having a most wonderful Tea Party, when the virile Bostonians threw the British tea into the sea. Lexington was not represented there, so far as we know. But the inhabitants, having been called together to consider the state of public affairs, the following resolution was adopted: "That if any Head of a Family in this Town, or any Person shall from this time forward; & untill the Duty be taken off; purchase any Tea, or Use, or consume any Tea in their Families, such person shall be looked upon as an Enemy to this Town, & to this Country, and shall by this Town be treated with Neglect and Contempt." So not a pound of the three hundred and fifty chests of tea ever saw the boundary lines of Lexington.

"WARNING OUT OF TOWN"

To prevent strangers from becoming town charges or paupers, the names and numbers of the newcomers, their former home, the date of coming, and their monetary status, must all be "returned" to the Selectmen. As an instance of this peculiarity of the times, we give herewith a specimen in our own family line: "Lexington January 6th: 1761 To the Select men gent^s These are to Inform you that on ye 19 of December Last past I toke ye widdo Elisabeth Sampson as a house keeper from Harvard that being her Last place of Residence She being under Good Circumstances. John Bridge.”

SLAVEHOLDING IN LEXINGTON.

It is not complimentary to our ancestors, but it shows the times in which they lived, when we say that in Lexington in 1735 there were twenty slaves owned by seventeen individuals, three owned two each, John⁴ Bridge, the third son of Matthew³ Bridge, owning one. In 1775, there were only five such slaves, but one of them was owned by a Samuel Bridge. In 1780 slavery was abolished entirely in Massachusetts. New England slavery was exceedingly mild, — slaves were treated as other servants and enjoyed much the same privileges; they were admitted as members of the church, and had seats provided for them in the services; their children were baptised, and they themselves received the holy sacrament with their owners and at the same time and place: they held property and had access to the courts to defend their rights. How different was slavery even in 1735 from that of modern days.

AFTER BATTLE OF LEXINGTON

After the Battle of Lexington, April 19, the Colonial Troops were summoned, as far as officers were concerned, to meet on the Common at Cambridge, which they did in the afternoon of the twentieth. At this time a council of war, the first, there were present three generals and six colonels, of whom the first was a Colonel Bridge and another was Colonel Bullard.

MISCELLANEOUS

1. The General Court, in 1635, decreed that no dwelling house should be placed more than a half mile away from the meeting house in any new plantation. This was deemed not a matter of convenience or of individual choice but of duty to the community. In 1661 a citizen having built his house too far from the church edifice and being absent from the worship with his wife, the court authorized that the "Seven Men" should sell his farm so that he might be compelled to dwell nearer the sanctuary.

2. The church edifices were of very simple construction, the rectangular form being universal. Later, a tower or belfry was constructed and the bell was rung by a bell rope just as now the bell of the leading Presbyterian Church in the city of Orange, N. J., where the Editor of this work resides, is rung on Sabbaths. Before the bells were introduced, the people were called to worship by a first drum and second drum.

3. Our ancestors were strenuous believers in church attendance, and attendance on the Sabbath day was not voluntary but enforced by law both in Massachusetts and Connecticut.

4. We are moved with profound reverence when we examine the lives and labors of our Bridge ancestors. From John Bridge, the Puritan, down the centuries we find a wonderfully earnest race of men and women; but we can see at this stage in our history many of their weaknesses and mistakes, as we have already seen some of them were slave holders. As early as 1637, Hugh Peter writes to John Winthrop, Jr., concerning captive Pequot Indians, even women and children, and that he would like to share in owning them. He would like to pick out a young woman, a girl or a boy, for slaves. We must, therefore, believe that to some extent that low sentiment was in the land.

We learn from the Massachusetts Archives that the first two slaves were brought to New England by one James Smith but after a while were returned to Guinea by order of the Massachusetts authorities. Yet the Puritans had enslaved some of the Indians and now commenced to think favorably of enslaving Negroes and even sought to supply the demand by obtaining some from the West Indies.

BOND'S ERROR

There is an item in Bond's "History of Watertown" for which, on careful investigation, we find no foundation of fact. He says that John Bridge had a daughter, Sarah, born Feb. 16, 1648-9. This is a most unfortunate statement and error. Through some oversight of the historian, he has given John Bridge a daughter and a date, whereas the name should have been Dorcas, granddaughter of John (the daughter of John's son, Thomas), who was born on the date specified, February 16, 1648-9.

THE JOHN HARVARD STATUE IN CAMBRIDGE

Samuel J. Bridge did not limit his benefactions by Bridge boundaries. He not only gave the fine statue of his ancestor, John Bridge, the Puritan, to the city of Cambridge, but he also gave to the same city the statue of John Harvard from whom Harvard University takes its notable name. As an appendix to this volume we republish from the former "Bridge Genealogy" the full account of the unveiling of the Bridge statue on the Cambridge Common. It is suitable that we should give at least a brief account of the donation of the Harvard statue to the city, which we take from Sawyer's "History of 'Old Charlestown.'"

STATUE OF HARVARD. GIFT OF SAMUEL J. BRIDGE
ADDRESS OF DR. GEORGE E. ELLIS

At a dinner of the alumni of Harvard University on commencement day, June 27, 1883, the presiding officer read the following letter:

To the President and Fellows of Harvard College:

Gentlemen: I have the pleasure of offering to you an ideal statue in bronze, representing your founder, the Rev. John Harvard, to be designed by Daniel C. French, of Concord, and to be placed in the south end of the enclosure in which Memorial Hall stands. If you do me the honor to accept this offer, I propose to contract at once for the work, including an appropriate pedestal; and I am assured that the same can be in place by June 1, 1884. I am, with much respect,

SAMUEL J. BRIDGE.

Dr. George E. Ellis, who was present, and one of the speakers at the dinner, referring to the subject, said:

"It is delightful for me to have heard for the first time this day that one of my boys (turning to Mr. Bridge), a member of Harvard Church Society in Charlestown, is to give to the college a statue. It must be an ideal one, but our ideals, we are told, are always perfection; and, if there ever ought to be a perfect exposition of a good and lovable man, it must be that of John Harvard.”

The ceremonies of unveiling the statue took place Oct. 15, 1884, before a large audience in Sanders Theater and on the grounds where the statue was placed. Dr. Ellis, in behalf of Mr. Bridge and by official invitation, made the presentation speech. It will be needless for me to speak of its appropriateness, point, and eloquence, but I may with propriety, perhaps, quote a few extracts from it. Referring to Mr. Bridge, and to his acquaintance and friendship with him which dated back more than forty years, he said:

“He has been a wide wanderer, a traveler in all lands, having more than once circled the globe. As a confidential agent of our government for many years on the Pacific coast he faithfully discharged high trusts. He has liberally endowed many aids to education, and fostered many young men in their school and college course. Holding in venerating regard his descent from one of the first English settlers in this place, he has caused a representative statue of him, as a Pilgrim, to be planted near by us on the Common, a gift to the city. And now he has done a similar loving service to the college. The two statues commemorate two worthies of our earliest years, who doubtless met on this virgin soil, and who, we can imagine, may now exchange, from their metal enshrouding, some grave recognition.”

BIBLE STUDENTS

Our ancestors, from the very first to reach this country, were evidently of a strong religious character, showing this in many manifest ways. We have been impressed with this fact in noting the given names of their descendants. Our readers will note the Biblical names, starting from John, as follows: Matthew, Thomas, Anna, Martha, Samuel, Elizabeth, Dorcas, Noah, Abigail, Mary, Benjamin, Nathaniel, Sarah, Jonas, Asa, Thaddeus, Daniel, David, etc., and it was not until into the years between 1700 and 1800 that other than Bible names became at all prominent. Then we find George and Charles and William and Edward and Ellen and Nancy quite common.

If we read the character of the early generations as being especially religious, we have reasons to believe that they studiously studied their Bibles, for we find very many names which must evidently have been chosen from among the Hebrew and Greek names, and by reason of their real definitions or meaning. We notice, as we pass through the various families that somewhat peculiar names are also chosen, such as Benaiah, Ruhama, Vashti, Asarelah, Bezaleel, Eliab and the remarkable word Jaazaniah.

Doubtless many of our present-day readers, unacquainted with the meaning of many Old and New Testament Bible names, will be glad to have at least a few words occurring in this book accompanied with their Biblical meaning. Some of the new-time parents might find in these old-time names pleasant suggestions: Abigail, my father's joy; Abraham, father of a multitude; Andrew, manly; Asarelah, Jehovah is joined; Benaiah, Jehovah builds; Bernice, victory bringing; Bezaleel, God is protection; Ebenezer, stone of help; Eliakim, God raises; Enoch, dedicated; Ephraim, double fruitfulness; Hepzibah, my delight is in her; Jaazaniah, Jehovah will hear; Jason, God will care; Mehitabel, God does good; Naomi, pleasant; Narcissa, daffodil; Nathan, a gift; Nehemiah, the comfort of God; Reuben, see, a son; Rhoda, a rose; Ruhama, compassionate; Theodore, God's gift; Vashti, beautiful.

BRIDGES WHO WERE NOT BRIDGES

If our readers could have been by our side many times when we were opening our mails, which brought to us questionnaires and blanks well filled out, they would on many occasions have been amazed and disturbed, as we were, at the ignorance of the individuals sending us such documents. The blanks and the questionnaires distinctly stated that the signers claimed to be literally descendants of John Bridge, the Puritan, of 1632; but we received many letters from Germans, Irishmen, Scotchmen, Spaniards, and in one case from a genuine negress, all of whom claimed to be rightfully possessed of the name Bridge and in the real Bridge line.

In the case of the negress, the name was given to us from a Texas relative who saw the name in a Texas city directory. We sent at once a blank. The person receiving it could not fill it out alone, lacking the writing ability, and asked the help of her laundry employer. He took the blank and returned it to us with the endorsement: "This party is a full blooded 'nigger' of a strange name, but thought the word Bridge was so fine that she took it."

In quite a number of cases, Germans bearing the name Bruecke, availed themselves of the English word as one more suitable to their purpose than a foreign word. In still other cases parties, fully believing they were descended from John Bridge, of 1632, discovered that their ancestors were really Pennsylvania Dutch.

THE "MISSING LINK" FOUND

A Genealogy of the Bridge family was published in 1884, edited by the Rev. William F. Bridge, of Ohio. In the Introduction to his Genealogy, the author says: "The study of the line of Joseph has been perplexing, and the results more defective than I had reason to hope. Several members of this family strayed widely from home. George⁵, one of the grandsons, may have settled in Madison County, in Central New York. If so, a register of many of his posterity might be made. But that this was the fact was not evident enough, nor was the account of the New York family precise and full enough, to determine me to follow out his line."

The only further reference made to this possible New York branch of the family is found on page 30 of the 1884 Genealogy, as follows: "George, born Feb. 10, 1748. May have settled in Stockbridge, Madison County, N. Y."

From my earliest acquaintance and connection with the former Genealogy I have had an earnest desire to unravel the mysterious disappearance of this "George⁵ Bridge," the brother of a Joseph⁵ Bridge, my father's grandfather. This earnest wish on my part was expressed to my assistant in Boston, with a request that he search all possible existing sources of information in Massachusetts. I felt confident that a successful outcome would be secured.

The fact that a large proportion of the cities and towns of the Old Bay State publish volumes of Vital Statistics, containing more or less complete lists of the births, marriages and deaths of the population for long periods of years, led me to be confident that there might be found in Brookfield, where his reputed mother was married, some further suggestions concerning our missing George. The following facts were found:

A George Bridge was born in Brookfield, Mass., Jan. 10, 1747-48; baptised in Brookfield, Feb. 14, 1747-48; married in Brookfield, April 9, 1772, Abigail⁵ Williams.

The editor of the former Genealogy had not access to these records, and doubtless lacked the time necessary to trace to their natural and decisive conclusion whatever of data may have been in his hands. From manuscripts left by him at his death, which have been generously loaned us by his children, the existence of a George Bridge, with a wife Abigail Williams, and several sons and daughters living in Madison County, N. Y., was affirmed, but absolute ignorance was declared as to the antecedents of this family prior to 1776, save that a babe, Sarah⁶, survived but a few months, and a son, William⁶, died early in 1776. The earliest mention of a child born to the George and Abigail Bridge, of Madison County, gives the name of an Amos⁶ Bridge, born Sept. 1, 1777, in Madison, N. Y.

It has given us great pleasure, as the Editor of the new "Bridge Genealogy," to be able to give our readers a very large, accurate, and we trust, very satisfactory presentation of all the descendants of "the missing link," — George, of Massachusetts.

ANOTHER BRIDGE FAMILY

At the very commencement of our work in collecting and collating the history of the descendants of John¹ Bridge, the Puritan, we were confronted with the fact that there was at least one other historic Bridge family in this country, which did not spring from our ancestor.

Many of the papers, which we mailed to all Bridge names which we could obtain, came back quite well filled with data of various kinds, but indicating a parentage not known to us. To each such person, sending data, we sent our regrets at inability to use the material provided and we laid the papers aside. Some of the records thus sent us were very interesting, so much so that we requested our Boston assistant to investigate old records in and about Boston, which he did. Such investigation proved valuable as furnishing historic matter, but not usable for our purpose.

A certain William Bridge of Charlestown seems to be the dean of another Bridge family coming to our shores about 1622. In tracing up the records of this William Bridge, we find quite a large number of very worthy, and, in some cases, very prominent Bridge families. Among these was the Hudson E. Bridge family of St. Louis, Mo., with its various ramifications. In connection with our investigations, there are several incidents noted in connection with some of the families that lead us to think it possible that this William Bridge may have been an elder brother of our John Bridge, the Puritan. To determine this and other like interesting questions must be the work of some other historian who may secure, by researches in England, positive or negative facts.

THE "OLD STYLE" AND THE "NEW STYLE"

Our ancestors were acquainted with two styles of dating in their calendars. Fortunately that period in our genealogical history has passed. In certain portions of our volume, in making quotations concerning dates, we have indicated the "double dating" which our ancestors, for many years, were wont to use.

According to the Roman Calendar, the year was divided into ten periods, or months, beginning with March and ending with December. The word December is derived from the Latin Decem which means ten. At an early period two new months were added, January and February, making twelve months in all.

Julius Caesar reformed the calendar in 45 B. C. by providing that the year should consist of three hundred and sixty-five days for each common year, but that to every fourth year one day should be added, making what we now call a leap year, and he caused the year to begin with January. This order of year is called the Julian Calendar.

Pope Gregory XIII made another reform in 1582, covering several modifications. The Julian Calendar (thus amended by the Pope), was and is called the Gregorian Calendar. This latter style was quite rapidly adopted by Roman Catholic countries, but not until 1751 was the Parliament of England ready to accept it. But in that year, the Statute, which took effect in 1752, made the year begin with January 1, and cancelled the over-plus of time accumulated under the Julian Calendar, and so for a period of time there were in England the Julian and Gregorian methods of indicating dates. One was the Gregorian year or Civil year; the other the Julian or Historic year. In our country we were ahead of Great Britain by fifty years in holding to the Historic year.

In the mother country, the practice of double dating became customary in giving the dates of events between January 1 and March 25. February 26, 1693-4 meant February 26, 1693, old style, and February 26, 1694, new style. This practice was changed in 1752, when the new style was adopted by Parliament.

That our readers may become familiar with the "Old Style" and the "New Style" methods of indicating dates, as used in the earlier portions of our volume, we will say that in order to make the dates previous to 1752 correspond, in the Solar year, with the new style, it is necessary to add eleven to dates of days between 1660 and 1700 and twelve to days between 1700 and 1752. Thus, the Arbella arrived at Salem, June 12, 1630, old style, which (adding eleven), would be June 23, new style. Weston was incorporated January 1, 1712, old style, which (adding twelve), would be January 13, new style.

It is very remarkable that in 1923, the Gregorian calendar was abolished in Russia, where it has held sway for hundreds of years, and also abandoned in other countries of Europe.

HERALDRY AND COATS OF ARMS

In the Coe Genealogy there is this statement:

"To organize and regulate Heraldry, a College of Arms, (often popularly called "Herald's College") was instituted as early as A.D. 1466 and was later incorporated. In the College is vested the right to grant or confirm Arms, and legally certify Pedigrees in connection therewith, etc.

"About 1530, County Visitations were instituted in which the Counties were visited by Heralds in order that the Pedigrees of the Gentry and nobility might be obtained directly from those having written proofs, or gave favorable statements, as to the claimed right to carry Coats of Arms. For 150 years, or nearly so, these visitations were made and Reports duly recorded. The Visitations ceased, but the College of Arms still remains.”

SAN FRANCISCO HIGH SCHOOL BOYS' MEDAL

THE SAMUEL J.⁶ BRIDGE MEDAL

First Presentation of in San Francisco, Cal.

By Himself

Part of a letter from Samuel J.⁶ Bridge to Rev. W. F.⁷ Bridge:

“It was a grand affair. The Board of Education wished to make as much as possible of the first distribution of the Medal and so had engaged the Grand Opera House, which would seat Four Thousand people; but Five Thousand were present. The graduating class in the whole city consisted of Four Hundred boys; but sixty silver Medals were to be distributed. Raised seats were provided for them on the stage. The boys entered in two columns headed by a band and when seated made a splendid sight. I have been in theatres and many brilliant assemblies but never witnessed a more beautiful sight than was the audience on that occasion; they arose and gave me three cheers and so volcanic that I thought they would take the roof off the house. I was obliged to sit on the stage more than an hour previous to my speech and was chilled as an icicle when I arose to speak. My speech was of no account simply intended to launch the Medal. The Medal I presented is like to the Franklin Medal in Boston. I wanted the boys to know who Franklin was, what he did and how he came to give the Medal. I wished them to know why I gave it and wanted the boys to work for it. Dr. Stebbins made a splendid speech and the affair was a great success.”

THE NATHAN⁶ BRIDGE HOUSE

Samuel Dexter of Charlestown, Mass., was a very prominent man in that city in the last half of the eighteenth century. He was a member of the Massachusetts Senate, a member of Congress, a Secretary of the United States Treasury and also Secretary of War when the year eighteen hundred began. He owned quite an extensive estate in Charlestown, which he sold in that latter named year to a Mr. Giles Alexander, who resided in the beautiful residence until 1814, when he sold it to Honorable Matthew⁵ Bridge who had come to Charlestown from Lexington. Neither Matthew Bridge nor his wife ever occupied the house, for Matthew Bridge himself died soon after the purchase was made; but their son, Nathan⁶ Bridge, resided in the residence from the year 1814 until 1830 when he died. Susan,⁶ his daughter, spent her childhood and youth here and was married to Dr. Charles T. Jackson, the celebrated chemist and discoverer of ether. When the estate was offered at auction, Mrs. Jackson was present, coming, as she said, to see what remained of her old home, to call up pleasant recollections of her girlhood days, when everything about her father's residence was in perfect order and delightful to look upon. It was truly a beautiful place, for while Nathan⁶ Bridge was occupying it, the largest improvement was made and both it and the grounds about it were kept fully up to the times through the services of skilled employees constantly active and ambitious to excel, and their success was known and acknowledged.

SUGGESTIONS

Forty years from now your children and your grandchildren will be examining this volume, which will be to them an old book. Would it not be exceedingly enjoyable to them if, when they read the various names of their immediate ancestors, they could see photographs or other pictures of them, with their autographs written on the back or front of the same, and their own statement as to births, marriages, etc.?

Why not at once turn to your old-style photograph albums, and with your own hand write on the back of the pictures the dates of births, marriages and deaths which you know, but which they will not know unless you help them in this way.

A newly-coined expression, "time binders," suggests that we are living in the present, but touching past and future. Show your appreciation of your immediate ancestors by relating them to your immediate successors.

This is the age of the Kodak. Multiply your collection of photos of your dear ones, beginning with the baby, thus giving a series of pictures from year to year, onward and upward.

COLONEL EBENEZER BRIDGE

It is well for us, after nearly one hundred and fifty years, since Colonel Bridge did his noble work for us as well as his own generation, to give him a more than the passing notice in the genealogical portion of this work.

It is somewhat difficult to trace Captain Bridge's record through the eight years' War of the Revolution. Care has to be taken not to confound him with Col. Ebenezer Bridge of Chelmsford, who fought under Prescott, and was wounded at Bunker Hill; and who, as Frothingham says, "though wounded in the head, and in the neck, was one of the last to retreat." This Colonel Bridge was a son of Rev. Ebenezer Bridge of Chelmsford; and after the war lived for a time at Worcester, and was for many years a county officer in Middlesex County.

From documents on file at the State House, however, we are able to gain some knowledge of the record of Captain Bridge of Fitchburg. There is still preserved his pay-roll for the Fitchburg Minute-Men, the heading of which reads — “Capt. Ebenezer Bridge’s Muster Roll in Col. John Whitcomb’s Regiment of Minute Men, that marched from Fitchburg to Cambridge on y^e Alarm, April 19th, 1775.”

Soon after their arrival at Cambridge, Captain Bridge’s company and Captain John Fuller’s company, of Lunenburg, were consolidated, under the command of Captain Fuller, with Bridge as lieutenant. Captain Fuller’s payroll of August 1, 1775, assigns him the rank of Lieutenant. By a regimental return, dated February 7, 1776, he appears to have been promoted to the rank of Major of the eighth Worcester County regiment, commanded by Col. Abijah Stearns. Later the same year he was advanced to the position of Lieutenant-Colonel of the same regiment, with John Rand, as Colonel.

In 1777, the year of the battles of Bennington and Saratoga, there are payrolls showing service in the Continental Army by reason of the alarm from Bennington, “by order of Gen. Stark and Col. Warner;” — “Major Ebenezer Bridge had full command of the Regiment, by order of Col. Stearns.” It seems the regiment was too late to share in Stark’s victory, for the document states that they marched ninety miles toward Bennington, being then dismissed by order of General Lincoln. A further return, for service of the regiment at Saratoga — “agreeable to a resolve of the General Court, September 22, 1777,” — mentions Major Bridge as being still in full command of the regiment. Burgoyne’s surrender took place in October of this year, at which the regiment was undoubtedly present.

In June, 1779, Bridge held the position of Major in the regiment under Colonel Josiah Carter, with Rand as Lieutenant-Colonel. A few weeks later he had again become Lieutenant-Colonel, with Colonel John Rand as commander. Further research would be necessary to determine the date of his commission as Colonel, the rank to which he attained before the close of the war.

Through the courtesy of Mr. James F. D. Garfield, formerly Town Clerk of Fitchburg, Mass., we were able to make use of the following interesting items:

“Colonel Ebenezer Bridge was a resident of Fitchburg from the incorporation of the town, 1764, until about the close of the Revolutionary War. He was the commander of the Fitchburg Company of the Minute Men, and led them to the scene of conflict on the 19th of April 1775. He immediately entered the service of the Colony and served throughout the war in the several positions of Captain, Major, and Colonel.

The City of Fitchburg, at the instance of the local Historical Society, erected a monument in commemoration of the response of the town to the Lexington alarm, bearing an inscription in bronze."

"Near this spot
in 1775

Stood the store of Ephraim Kimball,
It was the Rendezvous of Fitchburg's Minute Men.
Here, on the 19th of April 1775,
The Alarm Gun was fired at 9 o'clock, A.M.
And a company of forty-two men, under Captain Ebenezer Bridge,
Marched for Concord, Where they arrived the same evening.

On the Vermont side of the Connecticut River, at the junction of the four towns of Reading, Windsor, Hartland and Woodstock, there is an ancient cemetery, which lies just within the borders of Woodstock. Here, for a hundred years, many of the dead of these four towns have been consigned to the earth. And here there is a stone bearing the following inscription:

"The grave of
COLO. EBENEZER BRIDGE.
He officiated as an officer in the American Revolution;
was a zealous Defender of the People's Rights
Through the long Struggle for Independence.
He was born in Lexington, Mass.,
And died in Hartland,
February 13th, 1823,
Aged 81 years."

Soon after the close of the Revolution, Colonel Bridge left Fitchburg, with his family, and removed to Hartland, Windsor County, Vermont, while his children were quite young. Here he remained, devoting himself to agriculture, until his death in 1823. He had a hard struggle to maintain his family and give his children a start in the world. The latter were all vigorous characters, and were moving forces in the communities in which they lived, — and all had honorable, albeit humble, careers. His descendants still reside on the Colonel's old homestead in Hartland.

FACTS WORTH PONDERING

We have spoken elsewhere of the Bridge family as remarkably long-lived. This feature is evident, for we have discovered large numbers of the descendants of John Bridge whose vitality carried them far beyond the Biblical "threescore years and ten," and, in many cases, away up into the nineties, and in one case at least to the one hundredth anniversary.

Unfortunately, there are quite a large proportion of names appearing in this volume the date of whose birth is given, but the date of death not furnished us, though, by many evidences, we have reason to believe that their lives had been lengthened extensively.

We wish we could have been able to present a satisfactory estimate of the Bridge family, now living, who have passed into the seventies and beyond. We know of many through personal correspondence, but have not deemed it best to tabulate such a statement. We do, however, present the accompanying statistical table which, by its own simplicity, will teach us valuable lessons. The most evident is that the earliest generations from John Bridge lived, doubtless, the simpler life, devoid of unwise and destructive excitements and modes of living. A study of this book may lead some of its readers to aspire after the greater and better simplicity of life, thus, reaching after a riper, stronger and wiser old age.

ACKNOWLEDGMENTS

No editor of a genealogy could range the wide field of research without finding himself digging in the very same soil where others had preceded him. Some of the nuggets there discovered belonged to two ancestors jointly. I feel under great obligations to many historians, genealogists, and individual collaborators whom it might seem invidious to mention by name, and also to the libraries of the cities of Cambridge and Boston, but especially to the New England Historic-Genealogical Library, remarkably rich in our line of research. To each and all of these we would most gratefully give here our acknowledgments. We sincerely hope that in the coming years our own labors may be of help to other investigators.

A FINAL WORD

We have come to the close of a most delightful effort on our part to bring together as large a portion as possible of genealogical information concerning one of the most noteworthy New England families. Our work has been truly a labor, but one intensely interesting. It has brought us into more than usually intimate acquaintance with many scores of people bearing not only the Bridge name but also those related by marriage.

We have been checkmated many times in tracing family lines. It has been truly sorrowful to discover how many persons seemed lacking in knowledge of their closely related kinsmen and women. Many could not be certain as to the full names of their husband's or wife's parents, or their birthplaces. Many, by reason of the death of one or both parents, were separated from the home line and so lost connection with their relatives. Other many had gone out into the world of business and had failed to keep in close touch with father and mother and so were lost to sight by grieving parents. This has been a very sad revelation in far more cases than ought to have been expected. An occasion of much discouragement to us has been the long-deferred answer to questions on our blanks or on the special questionnaires which we have sent out.

But there is another side to be looked at, and this gives us great joy. This volume will tend to bring into closer fellowship individuals and companies of individuals who never knew that they were related. Take for instance the Central New York group of the Bridge family. They had lost all knowledge of their connection with the original stock from which they sprang. They had a shadowy conception of a George Bridge who was buried out of their sight a hundred years ago; but who he was and whence he came, they did not know. They had been for thirty years meeting together in an annual convention, enjoying exceedingly most delightful companionships; but not until we searched them out and revealed them to themselves did they know the delights of tracing their family line back for nearly three hundred years. And, it was an extreme pleasure to the Editor and his family to visit this noble group at their annual reunion in 1922 and hang upon the wall, before their rejoicing eyes, a full diagram of all the connections made between John Bridge and his descendants from 1632 to 1922.

It will be a source of great gratification to the Editor if he could know that in several sections of our country annual conventions of the Bridge family could be organized and continued year after year.

It may be proper for the writer to make reference to another item suggested in this volume. The Editor has been surprised at the wonderfully frequent statements made: "I am a Free Mason," "I am a Knight Templar," "I am an Odd Fellow," "I am a Knight of Pythias," etc. This shows, as we view it, a commendable spirit — the wide extension of the spirit of fellowship and coöperation for worthy ends. The writer became a Free Mason in May, 1861, and a Chapter Mason in 1865. He has rarely met a member of either of these bodies acquaintance with whom would be other than a real joy. That so many of the Bridge family have reported themselves as members of these or other fraternal organizations, ought not to have been a surprise, though it was such.

And, it has also been a great pleasure to receive so many and so extended references to religious and church affiliations of our Bridge household. Many sons and daughters have written us concerning the wonderful religious influences made upon them by their godly parents. The fraternal and religious flavor of this volume is therefore notable at this time.

THE JOHN BRIDGE FAMILY

FIRST GENERATION

1. JOHN¹ BRIDGE came from England in 1631, a widower. His sister, Elizabeth, who married John Betts of Cambridge, may have come at the same time. He married in 1658 (marriage contract dated Nov. 29, 1658), his second wife, MRS. ELIZABETH, widow of Martin Saunders of Braintree, who had previously been the wife of Roger Bancroft of Cambridge. She apparently had no children. After the death of John Bridge, she married her fourth husband, Edward Taylor of Boston, and was living in 1685.

The only children of John Bridge, of whom we have any knowledge, were his two sons, who were born in England and came over with their father. He died April 15, 1665, his will being proved Oct. 3, 1665, in which he mentions his wife, Elizabeth; his son, Matthew; and his granddaughter, Dorcas, daughter of Thomas Bridge, his second son. For characterization see Introduction.

Children:

2. i. MATTHEW² BRIDGE, b. in England about 1615.
3. ii. THOMAS, b. in England.

ELIZABETH BRIDGE, a sister of John Bridge, probably came over with her brother. She married JOHN BETTS of Cambridge, who came to New England in 1634 at the age of forty years. Before 1639 he purchased a house, which in 1662 he sold to John Shepard. In 1642, besides many other lots of land, he owned about an acre fronting the Common, which he sold to Harvard College in 1661. Dane Hall stands on the southern part of this lot. He died Feb. 21, 1662-3. His wife died Jan. 2, 1663-4. In her will she devises house to her brother John, and trifling legacies to a large number of friends, but does not mention any children.

WILL OF JOHN BRIDGE, THE PURITAN

SECOND GENERATION

2. MATTHEW² BRIDGE (*John*¹), born in England about 1615; died in Lexington, Apr. 28, 1700, aged 85 years; married Jan. 19, 1643, ANNA, daughter of Nicholas and Elizabeth (Symmes) Danforth, born about 1620; was baptized Nov. 3, 1622; died Dec. 9, 1704, aged 84 years.

Matthew Bridge seems to have done, in good part, the service for Lexington which his father rendered to Cambridge.

Crowded as, almost from the first, the New Towne settlers felt themselves, with Charlestown, Boston and Watertown pressing so close upon three sides of them, the Cambridge Proprietors soon looked for new lands toward their northwest.

As early as 1643, John Bridge cut grass on a lot he owned at Vine Brook, or "Cambridge Farms," as Lexington was then called. These lots were bounded by other earlier improved lands of his. This fact leads Mr. Hudson to suppose that even so early Matthew had gone to the Farms to live. But Mr. Paige's opinion seems more trustworthy — that he lived, probably until about 1668, at the corner of Main and Brattle Streets, in Cambridge, on land which he bought in 1657 and which he sold to Captain Pyam Blowers in 1672. At this last date, certainly, he had left, as it was at that time occupied by Reuben Luxford.

At the time of his probable removal to Lexington, Matthew was one of the largest landholders of the precinct. As early as 1648, he owned at least four hundred acres there.

In 1683, he sold his father's homestead to John Marrett and thus cut the last strong material tie that bound him to the old Cambridge home. For fifteen or twenty years before that time, he had energetically served the new settlement; and when the town was organized in 1692, he helped in its organization, as before, when the meeting-house was built, he contributed as largely as any to build that — more largely than any but three.

When the first parish tax was laid, one finds the four leading taxpayers to have been Samuel Stone, William Munroe, Benjamin Muzzey and Matthew Bridge.

It is noteworthy that the community at Cambridge was, from its general intelligence for which it was distinguished, or on some other account, but little troubled by presumed cases of witchcraft; and that, in perhaps the only important instance of supposed possession, the victims were declared innocent. Two certificates to the Christian character of Winnefret Holman, and to her evident freedom from all signs of possession, are presented, which we may suppose released her from danger. These are now valuable witnesses of the good sense and intelligence of John Palfrey and of Matthew Bridge, who are prominent signers of the one, and of Anna (Danforth) Bridge, Elizabeth Bridge and John Bridge, who signed the other.

In 1643, Matthew became a member of the "Ancient and Honorable Artillery Company," and in the same year he married Anna, daughter of Nicholas and Elizabeth (Symmes) Danforth.

He was truly a most honorable successor to his father. It was his good fortune to marry into one of the finest families that Old England ever furnished New England. The Danforth family was truly of a remarkable stock, highly educated, well off in worldly goods, capable of progressive business activities, and religiously cultured far beyond the average of their English neighbors. Crossing the Atlantic, they settled first in Salem, Mass., but found, as they believed, that the place was inhospitable and they therefore removed to locations much nearer Boston, though Boston was by no means for many years a chosen location for them.

Nicholas Danforth is described as a man who fled from England, in part at least, to escape from the burden of being knighted, which position King Charles demanded of all persons having a certain income. Though possessed of a fine property, he abandoned it all for freedom of conscience and liberty to serve God as his judgment might dictate.

We are by no means able to affirm that John Bridge, the Puritan, and Nicholas Danforth, the Puritan, were intimates in the motherland, but they readily and speedily became such through their religious, personal and family association soon after reaching their New England home.

In 1635, Nicholas Danforth bought landed property in Cambridge from at least five different landowners. He resided on what is now called Bow Street, near Mount Auburn Street. He became a Representative to the General Court in 1635; he assisted in laying out the boundaries of Roxbury, Dedham and Dorchester, and when Harvard College was inaugurated at Cambridge, Mr. Danforth was elected, Nov. 20, 1637, as one of the Inauguration Committee. He died in 1638. His wife had preceded him in death in 1628. He had at least four sons and daughters, for we know that Andrew Belcher married Elizabeth Danforth on Oct. 1, 1639, and that Anne Danforth married Matthew Bridge, Jan. 19, 1643.

Anne Danforth was born in England, about 1622, as was her husband; she was baptized in Framlingham, England, Sept. 3, 1622; died in Cambridge, Mass., Dec. 9, 1704, aged 82 years. For the last thirty years of her life, she resided with her husband in Lexington, Mass., where he became a leading citizen. Her children and grandchildren became eminent in their several spheres and also in their marriages.

Nicholas Danforth, son of Thomas, and grandson of Thomas, father of a distinguished line, and himself an honored man, came from Framlingham, England, County of Suffolk, in 1634. His wife, Elizabeth Symmes, died at her English home on Feb. 22, 1629. She was the daughter of Rev. William Symmes, whose father William, with his wife, suffered during Queen Mary's reign. Her brother, Rev. Zechariah Symmes, came over in 1634, and was settled in Charlestown.

For these facts concerning Mrs. Danforth and her parents, the editor is indebted to the "Genealogy of the Danforth Family," published in 1902, which gives a complete history of that distinguished family.

Children born in Cambridge, Mass.:

- i. JOHN³ BRIDGE, b. June 15, 1645; d. in Boston, in 1672.
4. ii. ANNE, b. in 1647.
- iii. MARTHA, b. Jan. 19, 1648-9; d. Feb. 15, 1649-50.
5. iv. MATTHEW, b. May 5, 1650.
- v. SAMUEL, b. Feb. 17, 1652-3; d. Feb. 25, 1672-3.
- vi. THOMAS, b. June 1, 1656; d. Mar. 28, 1672-3.
6. vii. ELIZABETH, b. Aug. 17, 1659.

There are standing in the old burying-ground, Cambridge, pieces of the original stones, in fairly good condition, placed there in 1672-3, with inscriptions on same, of the birth and death of Samuel and Thomas.

3. THOMAS² BRIDGE (*John*¹), born in England; came to this country with his father, in 1631; died March, 1656, at about the same time as his wife. Her name was DORCAS; her parentage has not been discovered. Only one child can be traced to Thomas and Dorcas Bridge. Thomas became a member of the "Ancient and Honorable Artillery Company," in 1643, and was made a Freeman in 1648.

The following is on record in the Cambridge, Mass., Book of Deeds, Wills, etc.:

"10. 1st mo. The Inventory of the goods and chattels of Thomas Bridge and his wife of Cambridge, late deceased —

75 items of household goods and wearing apparalls. The whole sum in 46£ 1s. 10d.

Richard Jackson
Thomas Marrett

At a County Court held at Cambridge, April 1, 1656, Deacon John Bridge presented this above written Inventory to the Court. Thomas Danforth, Recorder, entered and recorded, Apr. 1, 1656, by Thomas Danforth, Recorder.

In the Record of ye court is ye courts order for Dorcas Bridge."

The following is a copy of the epitaph on the tombstone standing in the burying-ground next to the old First Church, in Cambridge:

THIRD GENERATION

4. ANNE³ BRIDGE (2. *Matthew*², *John*¹), born in Cambridge, in 1647; died Aug. 28, 1727, aged 80 years; married (I), June 4, 1668, SAMUEL, son of John and Anne Livermore of Watertown, Mass., born May 11, 1640, in New Haven, Conn.; (II), OLIVER WELLINGTON of Watertown. He died Dec. 28, 1700.

From this union can be distinctly traced a line of descendants on the Livermore side even to the present day. The "Livermore Genealogy," by Walter Eliot Thwing of Boston, is prepared by him in such a way, as to classification and annotation, that one can trace directly the lineal connection of persons with Anne Bridge, the daughter of Matthew and granddaughter of John Bridge, the Puritan.

Samuel Livermore was about ten years old when his father moved from New Haven, Conn., to Watertown, Mass. His business in the latter place was that of a maltster and the management of a grist mill, on land granted his father by the Plymouth Company. Samuel became a Freeman, May 31, 1671. He held the office of Surveyor in 1677, Tything Man in 1679, Selectman in 1684 and 1690. Samuel's father, John, the head of the great Livermore family, came to New England in 1634, settling in Watertown at first, but, on moving to Connecticut, he became one of the first settlers of New Haven in 1639. His wife was Grace Sherman of Essex County, England. She died Jan. 14, 1690, in Chelmsford, Mass., aged 75 years.

Samuel's father, John, was "well fixed" in Watertown as regards landed estate, and one finds the following mentioned in his Will: "I give to my son, Nathaniel, 50 Akers of land that I bought of Mr. Pain and two akers of meadow, called Patch Meadow, and, after his mother's deceas, foure akers of marsh lying in Cambridge thet I Bought of Goodman Bridge."

Selecting from the long line of Bridge-Livermore descendants in the "Livermore Genealogy," at random, a few of the notable worthies of the Livermore family are quoted:

Jonathan Livermore, born in 1700; died Apr. 21, 1801, in Northboro, Mass., having lived to the extraordinary age of one hundred years, eight months and five days, thus living in three centuries. He was the father of eleven children. He was very learned, an excellent surveyor, Town Clerk for many years, and one of the first deacons of the Congregational Church.

Samuel Livermore, born in 1702; died Aug. 7, 1773, aged 71 years. Four times married; Selectman twenty-three years, Assessor eighteen years, Town Clerk and Treasurer twenty-six years, Moderator twenty-four years, and was also deacon of the church.

Matthew Livermore, born in 1703; Harvard College 1722; Attorney-General for Maine and New Hampshire for about twenty-nine years, and later, Judge of the Superior Court of New Hampshire. Also Clerk of the Legislature until 1755. He died in 1776, aged 73 years.

Elijah Livermore, born in 1731, in Waltham, Mass.; died in 1808, aged 77 years, in Livermore, Me. He was a deacon in the Congregationalist Church; was the founder, first settler, and principal proprietor of the town of Livermore, Me. About 1793, though a Congregationalist deacon, he, with his wife, joined the Methodist Church, and they remained members of it until their death. (A picture of his house is in the "Livermore Genealogy.")

Samuel Livermore, born in 1732; died in 1803, aged 71 years; graduated from Princeton in 1752; studied law and began the practice in the Court of Common Pleas, Middlesex County, Mass., 1756. Removing to New Hampshire, he was, for many years, Judge Advocate of the Admiralty Court, and was the King's Attorney-General of New Hampshire; in 1765, began the settlement of the town of Holderness, N. H. He became the actual holder of one-half of the land in Holderness; many years a member of the Continental Congress; Senator of the United States in 1793 and re-elected in 1799.

Daniel Livermore, born in 1749. He did such important military service for his country that the genealogist of the Livermore family gives fourteen closely printed pages, in small type, to the diary kept by this man from May 17, 1779 to Dec. 7, 1779. He entered the army as an Ensign, serving at the battle of Bunker Hill, in Colonel John Stark's regiment.

Arthur Livermore, born in 1766; died in 1853, aged 87 years. He held many offices; was a Representative in the State Legislature; Associate Justice of the Superior Court; Judge of Probate and Representative in Congress.

Harriet⁷ Livermore, born in 1788; died in 1868, aged 80 years. Never married. At the age of twenty-three, having had a very excellent education in various seminaries, in the year 1825 she assumed the name of "The Pilgrim Stranger," and began most extensive travels, speaking in schoolhouses, churches, halls, stores, open air. She went to Washington and addressed the Congress assembled in the Hall of Representatives, President John Quincy Adams being present. She did the same during the Presidencies of Andrew Jackson, of Martin Van Buren, and of John Tyler. She dressed like a Quakeress; visited the Holy Land ten times; spent sixteen years in and about the Holy Land; died in West Philadelphia and was buried in the Dunkers' Cemetery in the lot of a friend.

Isaac Livermore, born in 1797; died in 1879, aged 82 years. He was a man of remarkable business foresight and energy, holding positions as treasurer of the Massachusetts Print Works; treasurer of the Michigan Central Railroad; a Representative in the Massachusetts Legislature from Cambridge for many years; Senator from Middlesex County; thirty years director of the Bunker Hill Monument Association; director in several banks; a prominent Free Mason, and a life member of the New England Historic Genealogical Society.

George Livermore, born in 1809; died in 1865, in Cambridge, Mass.; a man of profound scholarship, of the highest literary tastes, and a most remarkable book collector, his library gathered from all over the world many of the rarest productions. He was a member of the Massachusetts Historical Society; also of the American Antiquarian Society, a member of the American Academy of Arts and Sciences. It is to be deplored that after his death most of his marvellous library was sold at auction.

Hannibal⁷ Hamlin, born in 1809; died in 1891, aged 82 years. His mother was a Livermore. Three times Speaker of the State Legislature of Maine; elected to Congress, 1843, and re-elected; became anti-slavery leader and United States Senator in 1848 and re-elected. In 1856, he was one of the founders of the Republican Party; was a very close friend of Abraham Lincoln and was elected VICE-PRESIDENT with him, both being sworn in to office Mar. 4, 1861. Later, he was appointed, by President Garfield, Minister to Spain. This closed his political career.

Abiel Abbot Livermore, born in 1811; died in 1892, aged 81 years; Harvard College 1833; Divinity School in 1836; ordained to the ministry in Keene, N. H., in 1836; became a most prominent Unitarian writer and editor of the Christian Enquirer, New York; later became president of the Meadville Theological School and received his degree of D.D. from Harvard College.

William Roscoe Livermore, born in 1843; graduated United States Military Academy at West Point; became a Major in the Engineer Corps, and held an extremely high position as a military man.

Thomas Leonard⁹ Livermore, born in 1844, in Galena, Ill.; went with his parents to California in 1849; entered the United States Army in '61, and held prominent military positions with high honor; was admitted to the bar in 1868; became vice-president of the Calumet and Hecla Mining Company, 1889; was Commander of the John A. Andrew Post, Boston, Mass.; and also Commander of the Military Order of the Loyal Legion.

Walter Eliot⁸ Thwing, born Apr. 28, 1848, in Roxbury; spent one year in Harvard; became clerk in his father's counting room; in 1870, commenced a series of travels, which have included all parts of the United States, Japan, China, Singapore, Ceylon, India, Egypt and Europe. A life member of the New England Genealogical Society, Boston; a member of the Unitarian Club of Boston; the author of the "Thwing Genealogy" and also the "Livermore Genealogy," and styles himself "the strictest Unitarian in existence." Still living in 1923 in the 76th year of his life.

Children of Anna Bridge Livermore, born in Watertown:

Selected from the long line of Livermore-Bemis descendants in the "Bemis Genealogy," at random, we give a few of the notable worthies of the Bemis family.

Anna⁵ Bemis, born Apr. 29, 1714; died Jan. 9, 1793, aged 79 years; married (I), in Waltham, Feb. 26, 1735, Samuel, son of William and Hanna (Smith) Fiske, born Jan. 4, 1709, died Mar. 29, 1761; (II), Apr. 26, 1763, Hopestill, son of Hopestill and Elizabeth (Brown) Bent, of East Sudbury, born Nov. 4, 1708, died in 1772.

Josiah⁵ Bemis, born Feb. 29, 1715-16; married Oct. 9, 1750, Elizabeth, daughter of Jonathan and Sarah (Whitney) Warren, born Nov. 1, 1727, in Weston. Residence, Waltham.

Abraham⁵, born Dec. 27, 1717; married (I), May 11, 1749, Susanna, daughter of Bezaleel and Susanna (Warren) Flagg, born July 31, 1730, died Dec. 27, 1766, one week after the birth of her tenth child; (II), May 17, 1768, Mrs. Mary Whitney. He was a private in the First Waltham Company, Sept. 20, 1776.

Anna⁶, born Mar. 30, 1750; married Dec. 30, 1790, Captain Abijah, son of Daniel and Mary (Bright) Child, of Watertown, born Jan. 12, 1733-4, his second wife. He was a Selectman of Waltham, 1774-75, 87, Captain in the 25th Regiment of the Continental Army in 1775. No children.

Abraham⁶, born Sept. 15, 1751; married Oct. 10, 1776, Abigail, daughter of John and Elizabeth Adams, of Lincoln. He was a soldier in the Revolutionary War. He was one of the first fruits of Methodism in the East. With an unrestrained liberality, he opened the doors of his home in Waltham for its evangelists. Hundreds gathered for years in the shade of his orchards to hear them preach; many were converted, including all of Mr. Bemis's family. His hospitality towards God's messengers returned in a hundredfold; his acres increased and abundance followed.

William⁶ Fiske, born Dec. 28, 1753; graduate of Harvard University 1772; died Aug. 13, 1803, Justice of the Peace, in Waltham; married (I), Nov. 1776, Hannah, daughter of Samuel and Susanna Cook of Windham, born Apr. 30, 1751; (II), Ruth Smith, prior to 1783.

Josiah⁶, born in Waltham, Mar. 14, 1755; married Joanna Fisk of Plymouth, Mass. He was a Revolutionary soldier in the First Waltham Company, enlisted Sept. 20, 1776.

Mary⁷ (Polly), born in Waltham, May 19, 1777; died there Apr. 19, 1859, aged 82 years; married Aug. 23, 1796, Rev. George, son of Charles and Roseanna (Milliken) Pickering, born in Talbot Co., Md., Feb. 5, 1769, died in Waltham, Dec. 8, 1846, aged 77 years. The Rev. George Pickering was, at his death, the oldest effective Methodist minister in the world, having been a preacher for fifty-seven years. Inheriting from his father a considerable fortune, principally in slaves, he refused to receive them or any profit from their sale or labor, and they were freed. He also declined to be made a Bishop. He was brought up in Philadelphia and converted in that city at the age of eighteen; he began preaching immediately and continued to do so almost till he died. When he entered the ministry there were but eighteen Methodist preachers in the New England Conference; when he died he was at the head of six hundred thirty-six in the denomination. The church had risen from a membership of five hundred to sixty-six thousand. His wife, Mary Bemis, was converted in her seventeenth year. His marriage gave to Mr. Pickering a home with his wife's father at Waltham such as few Methodist ministers enjoyed, and, free from financial cares of life, he was at liberty to pursue his vocation as a minister of the Gospel. The old home descended to him at Abraham Bemis's death.

Susan Bemis⁸ Pickering, born Sept. 18, 1807; died in Cambridge, Mar. 10, 1887, aged 80 years; married Sept. 28, 1830, in Waltham, her cousin, Emery, son of Jonas and Tabitha (Gore) Bemis, born June 30, 1800; died Nov. 28, 1882, aged 82 years. He was a Boston merchant more than fifty years; for twenty-five years an honored citizen of Cambridge, where his last days were spent. The Cambridge Tribune of Dec. 1, 1882, pays a high tribute to the memory of this man, for his last six years confined to his home, a victim of progressive paralysis; yet despite the weakness consequent on such a complaint his mind remained clear to the end.

Hon. George Pickering⁹ Bemis, born in Boston, Mar. 15, 1838; married in New York City, June 8, 1870, Julia Frances, daughter of Frederick and Charlotte Brown, of Oswego, N. Y., born Mar. 15, 1846. In April, 1861, he enlisted in the Second Battalion, Light Infantry, Boston Tigers, ordered to garrison duty at Fort Warren, Boston Harbor, where they remained a month; then did escort duty in Boston for six months. He took charge of George Francis Train's work in London, introducing street railways in 1862. He became general manager of the London American, at the solicitation of George Peabody and other Americans. During 1861-2-3, the paper had a large circulation abroad, advocating the Union cause, whereas only a couple of doors away was located the Rebel paper Indes.

He returned to New York in 1863, and joined Mr. Train in his work. In 1868 he went to Omaha, Neb., although he was constantly with George Francis Train on his lecture tours in this country and abroad. In Paris, in 1870, under Train, they organized a following of eighty thousand of the Commune, whilst Paris was besieged by the Germans, and for a short time, by a coup-de-main, held possession of the city.

Returning to Omaha, he devoted himself to the real estate and loan business. On Oct. 17, 1891, Mr. Bemis was nominated by the Republican Party for Mayor of Omaha and was elected over his Democratic opponent by 4,484 votes, the largest ever given to a candidate for that office. As a Reform Mayor, he gave to Omaha the best four years' administration it had ever known and received the highest honors from the Omaha Bee of Jan. 8, 1896. The editorial concluded by saying, "It will be many a year before Omaha secures another Mayor who will be as devoted to its welfare and as courageous in the discharge of duty as George P. Bemis."

Abigail⁸ Pickering, born Dec. 13, 1812; married (I), in Waltham, William Weeks, son of Capt. Benjamin and —— (Cobb) Shaw; (II), Rev. George Winslow, son of Rev. Leonard and Huldah (Beede) Frost. He was born in Barre, Vt., and was the son of a Methodist clergyman. In later years he became purchasing agent of the Union Pacific Railroad at Omaha, during its construction. He was seven times a member of the Nebraska Legislature and occupied many positions of trust with great ability.

Lydia⁵ Bemis, born Apr. 5, 1721; died Feb. 13, 1793, aged 72 years; married May 9, 1746, Capt. Jonas, son of John and Martha (Lawrence) Dix, of Waltham, born May 21, 1721, died Aug. 30, 1783. She married Jan. 3, 1665–6, CAPTAIN DANIEL, son of Ruling Elder Richard and Jane Champney, b. Mar. 9, 1644–5; d. Nov. 19, 1691. She was his first wife.

Richard Champney came with his wife, Jane, from Lincolnshire, England, in 1634 or 1635; settled in Charlestown. He was made a Freeman in 1635. He was a Ruling Elder in the Church gathered there, and much esteemed for his piety and his exhibition of the Christian virtues. He died Nov. 26, 1669. He descended from Sir Henry Champney, who fought under William, the Conqueror, at the battle of Hastings.

His name is honorably mentioned in the "Cambridge Church Gathering." They had seven children, the youngest of whom was Daniel (see above), who married for his second wife, MRS. HEPZIBAH (CONLETT) MINOT, June 9, 1684. She was the daughter of the famous old Cambridge schoolmaster, Elijah Conlett, and widow of James Minot. Res. Cambridge. One child born to this marriage. Rev. Nicholas Bowes was a graduate of Harvard College in 1725; ordained July 15, 1730, the same day that the Church was organized, the first Minister of Bedford. His father-in-law, Rev. John Hancock, of Lexington, Mass., was Moderator of the Council. He continued there until Aug. 22, 1754, after a ministry of twenty-four years. He then taught school in Bedford, and in 1755 was appointed Chaplain in the Northern Army at Fort Edward; he d. in Brookfield, Mass., on his return journey home. Eight children were born to them in Bedford. We have been able to trace the record of but three.

Only one child has been found:

WILLIAM⁷ BOWES, b. Oct. 15, 1771.

LUCY, the second child, married in Lexington, Sept. 21, 1757, REV. JONAS CLARKE, son of Thomas and Mary (Bowen) Clarke, b. Dec. 14, 1730; d. Nov. 15, 1805, aged 75 years. She d. Apr. 6, 1789. He graduated from Harvard College, in 1752; ordained in Lexington, Nov. 5, 1755. His life was woven into the history of the Town of Lexington. Living at a time when the office of a clergyman was made peculiarly responsible by the danger and difficulties of the Revolution, his pen and his tongue were never wanting in support of his country's cause. His home was a favorite resort for the patriots of the day. Here John Hancock, Samuel Adams, and their friends, found a safe retreat, where they could, in security, form their plans, which were to save their country and gain new courage and wisdom from the counsels of their host. At the Battle of Lexington, his house was thrown open and the wounded and dying were placed under the care of his family.

Honorable Edward Everett said of him, "Mr. Clarke was a man of high mark in his profession, a man of practical piety, a learned theologian, a most intelligent, resolute and ardent champion of popular cause." He was connected, by his marriage, with the family of John Hancock.

No Bedford men were at the Battle of Lexington on the nineteenth of April, 1775; but it fosters, says one, a sort of patriotic pride that one of Bedford's fair daughters, Lucy (Bowes) Clarke, was the entertainer of Samuel Adams and John Hancock on that fateful night of Paul Revere's ride; for it was at this famous Clarke home where Revere shouted his warning cry.

After the death of Nicholas Bowes (her father), Lucy went to live with her maternal grandmother, the widow of Rev. John Hancock, where she made the acquaintance of her grandfather's successor, Rev. Jonas Clarke. They had twelve children, born in Lexington.

1. THOMAS⁷ CLARKE, b. Sept. 27, 1759; d. May 29, 1832, aged 74 years; m. in 1782, SARAH, dau. of Col. William Conant, of Charlestown. She d. Apr. 16, 1822. THE MATTHEW BRIDGE HOMESTEAD WHERE GENERAL WASHINGTON WAS ENTERTAINED

MATTHEW LINE

FOURTH GENERATION

8. CAPTAIN MATTHEW⁴ BRIDGE (5. *Matthew*³, *Matthew*², *John*¹), born in Lexington, Mar. 1, 1693–94; died in Waltham, Mar. 25, 1761; married Mar. 24, 1719–20, ABIGAIL, daughter of Nathaniel and Anna (Barnard) Bowman, born in 1700, died June 15, 1785, aged 85 years.

In the records of his day, Capt. Matthew Bridge's distinguishing title was "Gentleman." He was of a keen mind, alert, patriotic, and faithfully served his home town of Lexington in the various public offices of Selectman, Town Clerk, Assessor and Treasurer, serving almost continuously from 1732 to 1749.

His town farm became a part of Waltham in 1751, and in that year he "Gave to the town of Waltham, one pound six shillings, eight pence, in consideration of his congregating with them." He had bought from the Bowman family, in 1722, a large property in Waltham located at the corner of Forest and Trapelo Streets. He, his wife and children, Nathaniel and Sarah, were dismissed to the church in Waltham. His will is dated May 23, 1757; proved April 13, 1761.

Nathaniel Bowman of Watertown was the first of that name who settled at Cambridge Farms (Lexington). His name is found on the records of Watertown in 1636–37. He moved to Cambridge Farms (Lexington) and settled near the Arlington line. His wife was Anna. He died Jan. 21, 1682. He gave his son Francis the farm on which he lived. He owned about one hundred acres of land in Lexington.

Francis was married in 1661. He died in Lexington in 1687, aged fifty-seven years. He had a son Samuel, who was a deacon in Cambridge and had fourteen children. Another son, his first born, on June 26, 1684, married, as his second wife, the daughter of Rev. Samuel Angier. Francis Bowman, by will, dated 1744, gave to his wife, Ruth, "to take as her own proper estate forever three of my negro servants, namely Battis, Phillis, and Pompy," so named. He also had another negro boy, Domini. This Francis Bowman was a very prominent man, filling almost every office in the town; was on the first board of Selectmen and Assessors and was frequently re-elected. He represented the town in the General Court in at least six years, from 1720 to 1733. He was a loyal magistrate, first appointed in 1720.

Other distinguished members of the Bowman family were Isaac Bowman, born in 1716, who filled almost every office in the town, being a magistrate for many years and a representative to the General Court. Another Bowman was Joseph, born in 1741. Soon after his marriage to Katharine Monroe, he removed to New Braintree. On the nineteenth of April, he was one of fifty men from that small town of Braintree, who came to the defense of the colony. He commanded a battalion at the battle of Bennington. He was a leading man in his town and his son represented it for fourteen years; was a Senator and also a member of the Governor's Council. Another Bowman was a member of Captain Parker's Company in 1775 and was the messenger who brought to Lexington the first reliable intelligence of the intended attack of the British. Another Bowman was Samuel, born in 1753, who enlisted at the commencement of the Revolution and became a captain, serving in the Continental Army to the close of the war. He moved to Wilkesbarre, Pa., and had a large family. Still another Bowman was William Bowman, who married in 1753, Mary Reed of Lexington. He removed to Westminster, Mass.

FIFTH GENERATION

12. REV. MATTHEW⁵ BRIDGE (8. *Matthew*⁴, *Matthew*³, *Matthew*², *John*¹), born in Lexington, Mass., July 18, 1721; died Sept. 2, 1775, from a disease contracted by camp exposure while in the service of his country; married ANNA, daughter of Rev. Daniel and Anne (Foster) Perkins of Bridgewater, Mass. She married, as her second husband, in Sudbury, Apr. 11, 1780, another minister, the Rev. Timothy Harrington, of Lancaster, Mass. She died in Framingham, May 12, 1805.

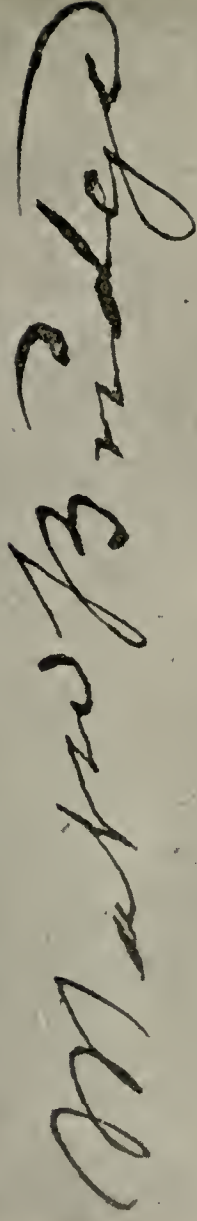

Rev. Matthew Bridge was graduated from Harvard College in 1741; was ordained to the ministry at Framingham, Mass., Feb. 19, 1846, and was for thirty years pastor of the "Church of Christ" in that town. His pastorate was by no means one of continued happiness with social fellowship on his part. A considerable number of his church members did not believe that he was "sound in the Faith," and it was urged that he did not accept the "Five Points of Calvinism," generally accepted by the Congregational churches as essential features of true Christianity, and his relation to the methods of the "Great Awakening," as the revival preaching started by Edwards and Whitfield was called, displeased a large number. Very many withdrew from the church, feeling spiritually distressed, and organized in 1747, a new Congregational church. The Rev. Matthew Bridge possessed such genuineness of character, of social, moral and religious standing, that this opposition to him was finally overcome, though the new church had secured a minister possessing qualities of mind and heart of most excellent character. After a consideration of separation for thirteen years, the new organization disbanded, many returning to the mother church. We present herewith this signature of Rev. Matthew Bridge.

A handwritten signature in black ink, reading "Matthew Bridge". The signature is written in a cursive, flowing style with large, connected letters.

Rev. Mr. Bridge was deemed by everybody an excellent man; he was a good pastor, though not a great preacher; and as an advisor in settling disputes, aiding in the making of wills, in suggestions concerning the values and conveyancing of property, he was very serviceable to his people. It was said of him, "Good

his ordination, was, "whether he was himself, he wished everybody else so." Not only in his own community, but in all the towns round about, he was held in high esteem.

When the War of the Revolution began, he was among the first of the ministerial calling to give himself to the service of his country. He was one of the first chaplains to volunteer and came at once to the aid of General Washington under the Great Elm at Cambridge. He was so like to Washington in physical resemblance, that, upon horseback, "it was difficult to tell them apart." One who knew him well described him as "over six feet in height, with very black hair that fell in curls over his coat collar. He had piercing black eyes, and an erect form."

Among the first to give his service to his country, he was one of the first to become a martyr, contracting disease by camp exposure.

The loss of Rev. Mr. Bridge, just at the opening of the Revolutionary struggle, was severely felt. He was an ardent patriot and well fitted to lead public sentiment. He had the confidence of his people in a high degree.

The Boston Gazette of Sept. 11, 1775, contains a notice of his decease, confirming the general impression of the amiableness of his character and the affectionate esteem in which he was held by his people. On Oct. 18, 1779, a committee was chosen by the town of Framingham to build a monument over his grave. But, by reason of the Revolutionary distress, probably, this purpose was postponed; and though again brought before the town in 1801, it has remained unexecuted to this day.

On the gravestone in the churchyard in Framingham is the following:

THE REV. MATTHEW BRIDGE, A.M.

PASTOR OF THE CHURCH OF CHRIST, OF FRAMINGHAM,

DEPARTED THIS LIFE ON THE SECOND DAY OF SEPTEMBER, A.D. 1775 IN THE 55TH
YEAR OF HIS AGE AND IN THE THIRTIETH

Moses Brown entered college, being prepared by his uncle, Rev. Thomas Balch of Dedham, Mass., and was graduated at Harvard in 1768. He became a merchant of great influence and strength, beginning in the autumn of 1772, after having taught school in Framingham, Lexington, and Lincoln. In the contest of the Colonies with Great Britain he took a most zealous part, himself raising a company of men in July, 1775, receiving a commission from James Warner, President of the Provincial Congress. In January, 1776 he became Captain in Glover's Regiment (the 14th Regiment of the Continental Army), his commission being signed by John Hancock, President of the Congress. He fought in the Battle of Trenton, N. J. On the expiration of his enlistment in 1777, he resumed business in his old home, Beverly, continuing in active pursuits until 1800, when, with a vigorous constitution and in active and useful life, he retired with an ample fortune. He served as a member of the State Legislature and was Presidential Elector in 1808. In his social, domestic and public relations and in his generous donations to public and private charities, he ranked very high. He left by bequest two thousand dollars to the Theological Institute of Harvard College, Cambridge.

13. CORNET NATHANIEL⁵ BRIDGE (8. *Matthew*⁴, *Matthew*³, *Matthew*², *John*¹), first of Cambridge, afterwards of Waltham, b. July 8, 1725; died Dec. 19, 1794; married Apr. 5, 1753, MARY, daughter of William and Mary (Saunderson) Fiske of Waltham, born July 1, 1734, died Mar. 1, 1818, aged 83 years. Papers, the main part of them originally furnished by the head of the Bartlet (Bartletot) family, now living in England, seem to trace clearly her descent from one at least of the followers of William the Conqueror. The descent is through Ensign Thomas Bartlett, Watertown, 1635, an original proprietor, whose youngest daughter, Abial, married Deacon Jonathan Saunderson. Their son, Edward, was father of Mary (Saunderson) Fiske.

Cornet Nathaniel was Selectman from 1767 to 1777. He was known by the title of "Friend of Washington," whom he used to entertain at his home while the army was in the neighborhood of Cambridge, "A true friend of Liberty." For his time, Nathaniel was very wealthy, especially in houses and lands. He made his wife administratrix and remembered with great care all of his children, especially his four girls. On the marriage of his eldest son, William, he gave him a deed to one-half of the entire estate. The other portion at his decease went to his daughter Anna.

Rev. Jacob Abbott was the popular preacher, teacher, and author. He was the first pastor, 1834, of the Eliot Church, Roxbury, Mass.; was connected with the famous Mt. Vernon School for Girls, in Boston; was author of the famous "Rollo Books." His influence over children and youth was almost unlimited. Of him it was said, "He loved God and little children." The editor of this Genealogy gratefully acknowledges that many of his early intellectual tastes were due to these captivating "Rollo Books." One son of this famous writer was Rev. Lyman Abbott, D.D. who succeeded Henry Ward Beecher in the Plymouth Church pulpit, Brooklyn, N. Y.; afterwards was editor in New York City of the Literary Digest with Theodore Roosevelt as one of his associates.

16. WILLIAM⁶ BRIDGE (13. *Nathaniel*⁵, *Matthew*⁴, *Matthew*³, *Matthew*², *John*¹), born Mar. 2, 1754; d. Sept. 15, 1818; married in Cambridge, Dec. 11, 1783, BETTY, daughter of William and Mary (Reed) Bowman, born Jan. 11, 1761, died in Waltham, Feb. 24, 1847, aged 86 years.

Children:

- i. POLLY⁷ BRIDGE, b. Jan. 3, 1785; d. Sept. 24, 1854.
 ii. PRISCILLA, b. Nov. 9, 1789; d. Nov. 19, 1878, aged 89 years.
 Priscilla Bridge, formerly of Waltham, died in West Newton, at the residence of Mrs. B. T. Lane, on Nov. 19, 1878.

In the death of Miss Bridge one of the old families of Waltham became extinct. She was the dau. of Mr. William Bridge, who owned the estate adjoining that of the late Dr. E. Hobbs, and which had been owned and occupied by the Bridge family for four generations. A deed of the real estate above mentioned is in the possession of the family, given by Matthew Bridge to his son, Matthew, dated in the third year of the reign of his Majesty, King George I, 1717, witnessed by John Hancock in his own handwriting. This deed, if now existing, is over two hundred years old.

It is an interesting historical reminiscence when one such family of early settlers comes to an end, and the family tomb opens for the last time.

The family tomb is in Grove Hill Cemetery, where rests the aged woman after a long life of quiet, unobtrusive usefulness. Her last days were made pleasant by the kind care and ministrations of one for whom she had cared and loved from her infancy, and thus the bread cast upon the waters came back to her, a solace in her declining years, and her dying bed was made soft by loving and grateful hands.

The deceased expressed an anxious wish that she might live until she was eighty-four and she did.

- iii. BETSEY, b. Apr. 11, 1791; d. Dec. 31, 1811.
- iv. EMMA, b. Dec. 2, 1794; d. Jan. 23, 1865, aged 71 years.
- v. ABIGAIL, b. Dec. 16, 1797; d. Aug. 11, 1853.

In a letter dated Sept. 13, 1882, from Samuel J. Bridge to W. F. Bridge, he says:

"I gave to the five unmarried girls, Polly, Priscilla, Betsey, Emma, Abigail, children of William Bridge, very many years ago, my portrait, and they esteemed it highly. When all were dead but Priscilla, I sent her word that I would like to have it again when she was done with it, and the dear old girl not only left me my portrait, but an old looking-glass that came over with Deacon John in 1631, and a lot of old deeds, of more than a century ago. The remembrance of the dear old girl touched me. They were called the 'black Bridges' and were far from beautiful, — all Bowmans, no Bridge."

17. NATHANIEL⁶ BRIDGE (13. *Nathaniel*⁵, *Matthew*⁴, *Matthew*³, *Matthew*², *John*¹), born Sept. 24, 1760; died Dec. 4, 1845, aged 85 years; married Oct. 27, 1782, ANNA (NANCY), daughter of Captain Daniel and Agnes (Smith) Waters of Malden, born Feb. 20, 1760, died Apr. 24, 1842, aged 82 years. He graduated from Harvard College in 1782. He was a teacher of considerable note in Cambridge and its vicinity.

Capt. Daniel Waters was the son of Adam and Rachel (Draper) Waters, and was born in Charlestown, June 20, 1731; died Mar. 26, 1816, aged 85 years. In 1776, while in command of the schooner Lee, of eight guns and fifty men, he captured three British transports of larger size, and helped take a fourth. For gallant conduct in this affair, at General Washington's recommendation, he was made, in March, 1777, Captain, United States Navy, and continued to render distinguished service at sea to the American cause.

34. JOSEPH⁵ BRIDGE, JR., (9. *Joseph*⁴, *Matthew*³, *Matthew*², *John*¹), born in Lexington May 9, 1731; died Sept. 11, 1775; married May 3, 1757, ELIOT, daughter of William and Sarah (Poulter) Reed, born Apr. 28, 1738.

Joseph Bridge was a prominent citizen of Lexington. His name appears in the roll of Captain Baker's Company on Apr. 19, 1775. He held several public offices, was Selectman for the years 1758-60.

William Reed, ancestor of the Reed family in America, and his wife, Mabel, with three young children, came to New England from London in the ship Defence in 1635. He was forty-eight years old and his wife thirty. He first settled in Dorchester; in 1639 he removed to Scituate, Mass., then to Brookline; in 1648 he removed to Woburn. He purchased a farm in Woburn in 1648, and moved there soon after the purchase; he and his wife returned for a visit to England, where he died at Newcastle-Upon-Tyne, in 1656. Oliver Cromwell made William's wife, Mabel, executrix of her husband's will on the last day of October, 1656. She returned to this country, to their children, in Woburn, Nov. 21, 1660. She married, as her second husband, Henry Summers, of Woburn, where she died June 15, 1690, at the age of eighty-five years. The nine children of Mabel all resided in Woburn, and the name of Reed became very prominent in that town. Mabel Reed's grandson, William, born Sept. 22, 1662, became the ancestor of most of the Reeds of Lexington. He was a prominent citizen, Justice of the Peace, was a Selectman and a Representative to the General Court. He became a large landowner, giving good farms to each of his three sons.

He moved to Marblehead, where his children were born. He purchased a large portion of the property at Marblehead on which was located the Samoset House. At his death, the homestead passed into the hands of his son-in-law, Ephraim Brown, who gradually increased his holdings until his estate included two hundred and fifty acres, embracing nearly the entire territory of Marblehead Neck. About 1840, Mr. Brown began a cultivation of a farm on his estate, and in a few years it became one of the finest and most productive in the country. After his death the farm was gradually cut into lots and sold, and his pasture land has become a famous summer resort. In 1872 the entire property formerly belonging to Ephraim Brown was sold at auction, bringing in the sum of $250,000. The company purchasing it did not keep the conditions of a mortgage, and the property passed again into the hands of the trustees of the Brown estate who have been continually improving it.

49. ISAAC CROSSET⁷ BRIDGE (37. *Joseph*⁶, *Thomas*⁵, *Joseph*⁴, *Matthew*³, *Matthew*², *John*¹), born in Pelham, Mass., Oct. 27, 1789; died Aug. 31, 1842, in Springfield, Mass.; married Sept. 29, 1811, SUSAN SHATTUCK, daughter of Aaron and Susanna (Shattuck) Davis, of Warwick, Mass., born in Warwick, Mar. 19, 1790; died July 27, 1847, suddenly in Holland, Mass.

Isaac Crosset Bridge and his wife removed from Monson to Northfield, Mass., sometime prior to 1812 and secured a small home on the western slope of Northfield Mountains, that part of it called "Old Crag," about two miles south of the birthplace of Dwight L. Moody.

Isaac Crosset Bridge was a man lacking in robust health, but laboring beyond his proper strength. The farm which he occupied was difficult for cultivation and far from being sufficient to meet the requirements of his rapidly increasing family. Susan Shattuck, his wife, was more robust in health and strength, and gifted with mental and spiritual qualities much in advance of her husband. In this small home, on this rocky farm, twelve children were born and raised, of whom the first born was the father (Rev. Jonathan Davis Bridge) of the Editor of this Genealogy.

Isaac Crosset Bridge and his wife were devoted Christians and were of old-fashioned Methodist type. All of their children became Christians. Their mother's training developed in them religious lives of a marked character, and, as will be seen later on, three of the sons became ministers of the Gospel, and the other sons and daughters became leaders in the denominations to which they came.

Susan Shattuck Davis was the daughter of Aaron and Susanna (Shattuck) Davis, and was born in Warwick, Mass., Mar. 19, 1790; died in Holland, Mass., at the home of her son, John Wesley Bridge, July 27, 1847. Her father was a Revolutionary soldier, and at the close of the War was quite a demoralized man. He had at least five brothers, one of whom was Samuel, who moved to and settled in Kentucky.

At the age of two or three years, Susan Shattuck was adopted by Jonathan Davis (no relation to her father, Aaron Davis), by whom she was reared to womanhood in Warwick, and when she was married to Isaac Crosset Bridge, she named her first child, Jonathan Davis Bridge, in honor of her father by adoption. Susan Shattuck had three sisters and two brothers as follows:

1. Priscilla, who married a man named Davis, who afterwards lived in Rome, N. Y.
2. Mary, who married a Mr. Jonathan Weldon and lived in Rockford, Ill., but formerly of Keene, N. H.
3. Minerva, (unmarried), lived in Auburndale, Mass., with Philip Wilner, who formerly lived in Claremont, N. H.
4. Aaron.
5. John.

Susan Shattuck Davis' mother died Aug. 10, 1840.

The little home on the side of "Old Crag," was visited by the Editor of this Genealogy and his wife in 1906. It was unoccupied but still bore marks of careful preservation by its old-time occupants.

57. ORANGE⁸ BRIDGE (42. Amos⁷, George⁶, Thomas⁵, Joseph⁴, Matthew³, Matthew², John¹), born Sept. 27, 1806, in Stockbridge; died in Wampsville, N. Y., Oct. 8, 1882, aged 76 years; married in Siloam, July 28, 1830, LAURA, daughter of John and (Preston) Armour, born in the State of Connecticut, June 20, 1811; died July 3, 1883, aged 72 years. Both are buried in Wampsville. She was the sister of Danforth Armour, who was the father of Philip D. Armour, of Chicago Packing House fame.

Orange Bridge was a highly respected and prominent citizen, was an excellent nurse and was frequently called to care for patients seriously ill with typhoid fever. And for many years previous to the modern profession of undertaker, he was called upon to prepare the dead for burial and to conduct funerals. Of him it could be truthfully said, "His word was as good as his bond." He was a member of the Baptist Church. Also a farmer for years. Disposing of his property, he purchased and operated a large grist mill at Hoboken, N. J.; still later, he moved to Wampsville Village, where he spent his latter days.

Bullard, who was born Nov. 11, 1777; died in South Orange, Mass., May 28, 1848, aged 71 years. The Editor of this Genealogy was present, as a boy, at Liberty's, his grandfather's, death.

The Rev. Mr. Bridge was the oldest of twelve children, born in a family noted in the community for its religious life. Despite the disadvantages of a very limited schooling, receiving all personal instruction, after marriage, from his wife who had been a school teacher, Mr. Bridge rose very rapidly to be a leader in the New England Annual Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church, occupying the pulpits of the prominent Methodist churches in Massachusetts and being elected twice at the head of his delegation to the General Conferences of his denomination. At the time of his decease, he held the highest official position in his Conference, that of Presiding Elder, the office now known as District Superintendent. Owing to the arduous labors of the last two years of his life, his health failed, and he died at the untimely age of forty-four years. His remains lie at rest in The Dell, Wilbraham, Mass.

71. AMOS OSBORNE⁸ BRIDGE (49. *Isaac Crosset*⁷, *Joseph*⁶, *Thomas*⁵, *Joseph*⁴, *Matthew*³, *Matthew*², *John*¹), born in Northfield, Mass., Sept. 23, 1814; died in Warwick, Mass., Mar. 26, 1872; married June 12, 1844, his cousin, CHARLOTTE YURES, in Springfield, daughter of Joseph and Fanny (Latham) Bridge, born in Northfield, May 16, 1816; died Oct. 24, 1861, in Westfield, Mass.

Amos Osborne Bridge, like most of his ancestors, was a "son of the soil," and for a large part of his life was a farmer. Like his father and other members of the family, he had red hair, a florid countenance and speaking eyes. His excellent wife was a helpmate in every sense of the word. Her father, Joseph, was a soldier in the War of 1812.

Children born in Springfield, Mass.:

- i. CHARLOTTE ELLEN⁹ BRIDGE, b. Apr. 8, 1845, in Springfield, Mass., d. Apr. 22, 1889; m. Jan. 1, 1871, GEORGE WASHINGTON, JR., son of George Washington and Matilda (Owen) Smith, b. Apr. 17, 1844.

73. JOHN WESLEY⁸ BRIDGE, REV. (49. *Isaac Crosset*⁷, *Joseph*⁶, *Thomas*⁵, *Joseph*⁴, *Matthew*³, *Matthew*², *John*¹), born Aug. 19, 1820, in Northfield; died Nov. 10, 1883, in Putnam, Conn.; married Oct. 3, 1843, in Holland, Mass., ORRIS ELIZABETH, daughter of Grayton and Elizabeth (Bennett) Fuller, of Wilbraham, Mass., born there Nov. 26, 1820; died Sept. 25, 1899, aged 79 years.

Rev. John Wesley Bridge, like his elder brother, Jonathan Davis Bridge, and younger brother, Henry Martyn Bridge, early felt himself called to preach the Gospel. He received a license to preach when quite a young man, and served for many years as a clergyman in the Methodist Episcopal Church. He later became connected with the Evangelical Advent Church and died in connection with that denomination.

He married as his second wife, JOSEPHINE ALBERTA ROBINSON, of New Hampshire, dau. of Joseph Wadleigh and Frances Eliza (Weld) Robinson.

Mr. Roe was graduated from Syracuse University in the class of 1880 and from Harvard University in the class of 1885.

Accompanied by his wife and daughter, he spent some time in Germany, especially in the line of his mathematical investigations and received from the University of Erlangen 1897-8 special honor magnum cum laude and degree of Ph.D.

In 1904 Mr. Roe was a member of the International Congress of Mathematicians at Heidelberg, Germany. In 1908, he erected, at his home, his private astronomical observatory, equipped with a 6½-inch equatorial telescope, by which he has made quite a number of important astronomical discoveries. He is a Fellow of the A. A. A. S.; a member of German, Italian and French Mathematical Associations; a member of Phi Beta Kappa, of Delta Kappa Epsilon, and of the Sons of the American Revolution.

Mr. Roe is John Raymond French Professor of Mathematics and Director of the Observatory, Syracuse University. He is a frequent contributor to astronomical journals; is the originator of the Pi Mu Epsilon Mathematical Fraternity, which had its birth at Syracuse University in 1903, beginning with the Mathematical Club of the University, the Club being incorporated, May 25, 1914, at Albany, N. Y. The Club is an academic fraternity in institutions of university grade. The members are all actively engaged in mathematical research and mathematical publications. The fraternity has six chapters as follows: Syracuse University, Ohio State University, University of Pennsylvania, University of Missouri, University of Alabama, and in the Iowa State College of Mechanic Arts. Professor Roe is Director General of this Mathematical Fraternity.

Mr. Roe's second wife, Josephine Alberta Robinson, was, for thirteen years, Professor of Mathematics, Berea College, and Dean of Women, Berea College; A.B. Oberlin, 1894; A.M. Dartmouth, 1911; Ph.D. (in mathematics) Syracuse University, 1918; Assistant Professor, Mathematics, Syracuse University, 1920, January to June. Devoted to research in mathematics, active in Daughters of American Revolution, American Association of University Women, and Methodist church work; Assistant Conference Treasurer (Central New York Conference), Woman's Foreign Missionary Society; member of honorary scholarship and scientific fraternities and societies.

Mr. Roe made Mary Eva Gourley his daughter, legally, on Mar. 18, 1890, her name being changed by the Probate Court in Massachusetts to Mary Eva Gourley Roe.

Mr. and Mrs. Roe reside at 123 West Ostrander Avenue, Syracuse, N. Y.

Children:

1. MARY EVA GOURLEY¹⁰ ROE, b. Jan. 9, 1879, in Lawrence, Mass.; m. Jan. 11, 1911, in Syracuse, N. Y., EDWIN HALL, son of Richard Francis and Gertrude (Hall)

74. HENRY MARTIN⁸ BRIDGE, REV. (49. *Isaac Crosset*⁷, *Joseph*⁶, *Thomas*⁵, *Joseph*⁴, *Matthew*³, *Matthew*², *John*¹), born Aug. 23, 1823, in Northfield; died Dec. 23, 1861, in Colebrook, N. H.; married Feb. 15, 1846, ELIZABETH FOSTER, daughter of John and Alsa Cady, of Stafford Springs, Conn., born Feb. 17, 1825, in West Stafford, Conn. She died in Colebrook, N. H., at the age of 99 years, lacking forty days, Jan. 8, 1924. [See Addenda.]

Henry Martin Bridge was ordained a Methodist clergyman in 1845, and was stationed at various charges in Massachusetts, Charlton, Gloucester, Lunenburg, Princeton, Blandford, and Williamsburg; he severed his connection with the Methodist Episcopal Church, in 1854, and was in that year settled over the Trinitarian Congregational Church, in Warwick, Mass., remaining there until December, 1859, when he became pastor of the Congregational Church in Colebrook, N. H., retaining that connection until his death in 1861.

Henry Martin Bridge was a student, a diligent seeker after Biblical truth. He was a very independent investigator. He was led, by reason of his change to some degree in Christian doctrine, to leave the church of his parents and brothers and enter the Congregational denomination. He was a very sympathetic pastor, tenderly loved by his congregations, and sincerely mourned by large numbers at his departure from this life. His widow, surviving him for more than forty years, has been surrounded, in the community where her husband was pastor, by ardent friends by whom, and by her loving children, she has received all the comforts that her widowhood could desire. In her active years she was an ideal pastor's wife.

MRS. ELIZABETH FOSTER (CADY) BRIDGE

Widow of Rev. Henry M. Bridge, died January 1924, 99 years of age

Children:

99. i. CHARLES ADAMS⁹ BRIDGE, b. Mar. 22, 1847, in Gloucester, Mass.
 ii. MARY ANNETTA, b. July 2, 1849, in Princeton, Mass.; d. Jan. 15, 1919, in Colebrook; m. (I) Nov. 1, 1871, WILLIAM C., of Groton, N. H., son of Asa Hatch, of Northumberland, N. H., who d. June 2, 1875, in Grovcton; (II), Sept. 24, 1898, in Lancaster, N. H., CHARLES HERBERT GLEASON, who d. in Colebrook, July 16, 1905. He was a Congregational clergyman of high standing. He was b. in Colebrook.

Mary Annetta was, like her mother, a woman of the finest mold. She was especially gifted as a musician, and was most remarkable as a pianist, and, had she been gifted with health, would have achieved worthy fame as such. She was a member of the Congregational Church for about fifty-four years, and a member of the Eastern Star. By her first marriage, she had two daughters who died in early infancy.

- iii. HENRY WARD BEECHER, b. Oct. 28, 1851, in Blandford, Mass.; d. Jan. 28, 1881, in Colebrook.

Like his brother, Charles Adams Bridge, he early gave himself to the mastery of the printer's art, and, until his untimely death, won worthy distinction in the several printing establishments where he was employed.

- iv. JANE ELIZABETH, b. Sept. 7, 1854, in Warwick, Mass.; d. in West Stewartstown, N. H., June 5, 1892; m. (I), August, 1870, WILLIAM A. LOMAS, of Stewartstown, N. H. After separation from him, she m. (II), THOMAS H. VAN DYKE, of Midland, Mich., Sept. 7, 1876, who was a lumber king and left a considerable fortune.

During the long years of her mother's widowhood, her daughter (familiarly called "Jennie") was her constant companion, doing everything that a loving daughter possibly could do, but passing away while her mother still survives, broken-hearted at her loss.

Children:

1. MARY EVA¹⁰ VAN DYKE, b. in Midland, Mich., June 5, 1877; d. Feb. 27, 1901, in Stewartstown; m. in West Stewartstown, Aug. 18, 1895, ARTIE SAWYER.

Child:

KENNETH D.¹¹ SAWYER, b. in Stewartstown, July 10, 1896.

2. GEORGE HENRY, b. in Midland, Jan. 27, 1879; m. June, 1909, in West Stewartstown, GERALDINE QUIMBY, who d. April, 1921. He is a lumber merchant and is managing his father's estate. Res. Colebrook, N. H.

Child:

HELEN BRIDGE¹¹ VAN DYKE, b. in North Stratford, N. H., July 14, 1910.

3. CLAUDE DIXON, b. in Midland, Jan. 18, 1882; m. (I), Oct. 1, 1901, in Pittsburgh, N. H., STELLA WILLIS. After separation, he m. (II), MRS. SADIE B. HEATH, June, 1915, in West Stewartstown. He is a lumber merchant and a farmer. Res. West Stewartstown. No children.
4. JENNIE ELIZABETH, b. June 1, 1892, in West Stewartstown; m. at the home of her uncle, Jonathan Davis Bridge, Concord, N. H., Apr. 15, 1922, to HOMER EDWARD, son of John and Matilda (Reed) Dean, b. in Lennoxville, Quebec, July 12, 1882. He has worked on the railroad for twenty years. Member of the Masons and Elks. Res. 7 Cottage Street, Newport, Vt.

100. v. JONATHAN DAVIS, b. Aug. 23, 1859.

75. JOSEPH MERRILL⁸ BRIDGE (49. *Isaac Crosset*⁷, *Joseph*⁶, *Thomas*⁵, *Joseph*⁴, *Matthew*³, *Matthew*², *John*¹), born Oct. 11, 1825, in Northfield, Mass.; died in Flushing, L. I., Jan. 23, 1894; married Jan. 1, 1851, ADELAIDE CLEMENCE, daughter of Lyman and Anne Elizabeth (Dyer) Johnson, of Sturbridge, Mass., born Mar. 25, 1832, in Sturbridge; died there, Oct. 14, 1914. She is buried in Southbridge, (North Cemetery), Mass.

Joseph Merrill Bridge was a Puritan of the Puritans. Had he lived in 1632, in Cambridge, he would have been the "Hale-fellow well met," of our original John. Though John was a Congregationalist of his day, Joseph Merrill Bridge was a Methodist of his day. Almost or quite forty years, he was an official member of his church. Like his younger brother, Jesse, in his early years, he had a passion for a life on the rolling waves, and for several years boxed the compass on many seas. When he returned and settled down, he found a most gracious home maker and companion in his wife, ADELAIDE, who survived him for many years. His departure was a great loss to his friends and the church.

Children:

- i. EMORY LYMAN⁹ BRIDGE, b. Sept. 26, 1852, in Sturbridge; d. Feb. 12, 1915, in Baltimore, Md.; m. Oct. 19, 1887, in Grand Rapids, Mich., JESSIE, dau. of Milan Hart Tinkham, b. July 20, 1860, in Spencerville, Ind. Res. 1629 Pacific Ave., Spokane, Wash.
- ii. BENJAMIN HERBERT, b. Sept. 20, 1858, in Beacon Falls, Conn.; d. Apr. 25, 1873, in Flushing, N. Y.

76. JESSE FILLMORE⁸ BRIDGE (49. *Isaac Crosset*⁷, *Joseph*⁶, *Thomas*⁵, *Joseph*⁴, *Matthew*³, *Matthew*², *John*¹), born June 21, 1827, in Northfield, Mass.; died Nov. 12, 1897, in Meriden, Conn., aged 70 years; married (I), June 6, 1849, in Jenksville, Mass., ALMIRA ADELINE, daughter of Edwin and Anne Sophia

(Stocking) Smith, born in Jenksville, Nov. 21, 1829; died in Bethany, Conn., Aug. 28, 1857; (II), July 11, 1858, in Warwick, Mass., ELLEN REBECCA, daughter of Deacon George Washington and Sarah Pierce (Leonard) Moore, of Warwick, born in Warwick, May 15, 1839; died in Somerville, Mass., July 17, 1905. Deacon Moore, her father, was born in Warwick, Feb. 22, 1805; married SARAH PIERCE LEONARD, May 23, 1832, born in Warwick, June 20, 1808.

Jesse Fillmore Bridge, in his early manhood, was, like his brother Joseph, a wide ocean traveler on whaling vessels in many seas; but when he came home and settled down he became a truly illustrious specimen of what vital religion can do for a man. His second wife was the daughter of a deacon of the church, and he soon became elected to that office himself. This position he adorned until the day of his death. For many years he was the foreman of the most important department of the leading silverware manufactory in Meriden, Conn. His death was a great loss to many more than his family. Mr. Bridge was a Selectman in Warwick, Mass., in 1864-5. He served two years in the Civil War.

Children by his first wife:

- i. ELLA FRANCES⁹ BRIDGE, b. Mar. 18, 1850, in Sturbridge, Mass.; d. Aug. 6, 1851, in Springfield, Mass.
- ii. LILLIE FREMONT, b. May 26, 1856, in Bethany, Conn.; m. Aug. 11, 1899, in Shanghai, China, CHARLES HOUGHTON, b. in London, England, Nov. 21, 1872. He joined the British Navy at the age of fifteen years, and served nearly twelve years. He married Lillie Fremont Bridge, in the Cathedral (English Church). In the spring of 1900, the so-called "Boxer Rebellion" broke out in China, when even Shanghai was threatened, at which time the Reserve Company was formed as an auxiliary to the Shanghai Volunteer Corps, and Mr. Houghton became one of the early members of that company. In January, 1917, he left for England, joined the British army in April; was sent to France in June, 1917, and served from that time until April, 1919, in charge of sanitation of prisoners' camps, clearing of devastated areas after battles and similar work; released from duty in France in April, 1919, and left London for Shanghai, China, in June. Was discharged from the army in July, after his return to Shanghai. Mr. Houghton has been employed by the Shanghai Municipal Council as health inspector since June 10, 1899. The health of both Mr. and Mrs. Houghton failing, they planned to come to the United States as their permanent home. They left Shanghai, August 16; reaching San Francisco, Mrs. Houghton was taken to a hospital on September 9, had the best of attention in a private room with a special nurse, but suddenly passed away, September 14, 1923.

Child:

JESSIE MAY¹⁰ HOUGHTON, b. Dec. 10, 1900, in Shanghai, China; m. ARTHUR DAVID, son of David Hai and Kate Silas, Feb. 8, 1922, in Shanghai, b. Aug. 2, 1900, in Hongkong, China.

- iv. SUSAN LINCOLN, b. in Warwick, Mass., Apr. 10, 1868; m. Dec. 25, 1889, FREDERICK ERASTUS, son of William and Lucy (Farnham) Sage, b. July 3, 1851, in Durham, Conn. Res. 121 Cedar Street, Norwich, Conn.

Children:

1. WILFRED JESSE¹⁰ SAGE, b. Nov. 9, 1890, in Meriden. Res. Fort D. A. Russell, Wyo.

He enlisted, July 9, 1917, in Boston, Mass., and was sent to Camp Syracuse, Syracuse, N. Y., as a private in Company E 23d Infantry of the regular army. In August, he was made Corporal; Sept. 7, he left Hoboken for France, in the only division which had regiments of United States Marines. He was wounded in action, Oct. 8, 1918, and was in hospitals until after the armistice. In January, 1919, he returned to his Company, which was with the Army of Occupation on the Rhine. He was cited for bravery and his name is in a book issued by the Second Division Headquarters.

During the fighting at Blanc Mont., Corporal Sage showed extraordinary courage by taking command of his platoon after his leader and platoon Sergeants were wounded. Badly wounded, he continued to lead his men until they had successfully broken up the assault. He was discharged in August, 1919, and in September, 1919, re-enlisted for one year. He was discharged in September, 1920. In January, 1921, he re-enlisted as private in Troop C 15th Cavalry and was stationed at Fort D. A. Russell, Wyo.

2. JESSIE REBECCA, b. Aug. 25, 1892, in Meriden, Conn.; m. Dec. 25, 1914, in Norwich, Conn., MALCOLM D. WIBBERLY. Res. Canterbury, Conn.

NINTH GENERATION

82. EDWIN AMOS⁹ BRIDGE (56. William⁸, Amos⁷, George⁶, Thomas⁵, Joseph⁴, Matthew³, Matthew², John¹), born Feb. 29, 1840, in Lenox, N. Y.; died Oct. 14, 1911, aged 72 years; married about 1860, CAROLINE C., daughter of Jacob and Catharine (Miller) Cooper, born in Lenox, in 1841; (II), MRS. MARINDA SAYLES GREGG, who died May 6, 1910.

Edwin Amos Bridge formed a co-partnership with his son-in-law, Mr. John Souter, of Canastota, N. Y., under the firm name of "Bridge, Souter & Company." Their business was very extensive in the buying and shipping of hay, onions, etc., and later took the sale of farm implements, harness and various forms of farm machinery. The firm at present has probably the largest onion business in the United States. Mr. Bridge was a very popular and far-sighted man, of great enterprise and business success.

Children:

- i. CORA M.¹⁰ BRIDGE, b. in Lenox Furnace, N. Y., Oct. 19, 1863. Res. Canastota. Unm.
Miss Cora M. Bridge had much experience as a teacher and also in assistant hospital work; is a fine bookkeeper, and has been the very faithful secretary of the annual conventions of the Central New York Bridge families for several years. She was the first to come to my assistance in discovering and recording the descendants of George Bridge, the "missing link" between the New England section of the descendants of John Bridge, the Puritan, and the Central New York Bridge family. Her assistance in collecting material for this Genealogy is inestimably great.
- ii. WILLIAM RANSOM, b. March, 1865; d. Aug. 29, 1865.
- iii. MARTHA DIETTA, b. in Clockville, N. Y., Jan. 8, 1867; m. Jan. 13, 1886, in Oneida, JOHN WHITNEY SOUTER, of Canastota, b. in Sullivan, N. Y., Dec. 13, 1865. Res. Canastota.

Mr. John Whitney Souter entered into co-partnership with his father-in-law in the sale of machinery, hay, and onions, and has a very successful business. He spends his winters in Florida and also has a delightful bungalow, which he occupies in the summer in the Adirondacks. He greatly enjoys fishing and hunting, and is a very enthusiastic golf player. He is socially very popular and is prominent in all Masonic circles. Without his efficient efforts, the grave of GEORGE BRIDGE, ancestor of the Central New York Bridge families, might not have been discovered, and the photograph of the tombstone been made possible for this Genealogy.

daughter of Didrick Rufus and Helen (Ratnour) Nichols, born Feb. 22, 1851, in Perryville, N. Y. His widow resides in Clockville, N. Y.

William Lewis Bridge spent most of his boyhood and youth in the little settlement of Lenox Furnace. He received his education at the district school and at the seminary in Whitestown, N. Y.

He enlisted in the Civil War about September, 1864, and served until the end, in Company I, First New York Mounted Riders. Never wounded, but was in a hospital a large part of his service, and afterwards lost an eye as a result of his sickness.

Returning, he went into partnership with his father in the mill until 1869, when they exchanged the mill property for a farm. He was an esteemed citizen and filled many positions of trust. Was Assessor, many times chosen as Juror in County Court case, also chosen as guardian of property for minors, all of which duties he discharged with the approbation of those concerned.

91. MELVILLE WELLS⁹ BRIDGE (70. *Jonathan Davis*⁸, *Isaac Crosset*⁷, *Joseph*⁶, *Thomas*⁵, *Joseph*⁴, *Matthew*³, *Matthew*², *John*¹), born in Feeding Hills Parish, West Springfield, Mass., Apr. 26, 1834; died Dec. 7, 1911, aged 78 years; married (I), Apr. 26, 1857, in Springfield, ANNA VIOLA, daughter of John and Roxana Hall Wheeler of Williamsville, Vt., born in Chesterfield, N. H., Nov. 11, 1838; died in Springfield, Mass., July 30, 1890; (II), in Springfield, Oct. 4, 1893, OLIVET B. (FULLER) FROST, daughter of Henry and Mary Fuller of Ludlow, Mass., born May 1, 1835, in Ludlow; died Sept. 16, 1905, in Springfield, aged 70 years.

Melville Wells Bridge, or (as he was always called) M. Wells Bridge, had been in poor health for six years prior to his death, having suffered a paralytic shock in January, 1906, in his office as County Treasurer in the Court House, Springfield. He had served for more than forty years in the Registry of Deeds office and the County Treasurer's Office.

He began his early labors as an accountant in a large clothing store in Boston. Throughout his long public service, he was regarded as an official of the highest integrity, a painstaking workman, taking little or no active interest in politics, but methodical and thorough and strictly accurate in his work. Mr. Bridge was for many years a trustee and steward in two Methodist Churches of Springfield, and was prominent in Masonic circles as a Knight Templar.

He was drafted into the service during the Civil War, but feeling that his widowed mother, absolutely dependent upon him, needed his help and care, and being given the privilege of sending a substitute, paid eight hundred dollars in cash for the same, a young man taking his place.

Mr. Bridge's first wife was a woman of remarkable social and executive abilities, a leader in women's benevolent organizations in Springfield, but a most capable housewife. His second wife was a widow. She had no children.

92. WATSON WILBERFORCE⁹ BRIDGE (70. *Jonathan Davis*⁸, *Isaac Crosset*⁷, *Joseph*⁶, *Thomas*⁵, *Joseph*⁴, *Matthew*³, *Matthew*², *John*¹), born Sept. 27, 1836, in Colerain, Mass.; died Sept. 6, 1884, in New Haven, Conn.; married (I), Jan. 1, 1861, in Southboro, Mass., HARRIET ANNE, daughter of Lowell and Harriet Newell (Williams) Brigham, born Sept. 2, 1837; died Sept. 23, 1874, in Boston; (II), Nov. 9, 1875, ALLA AMELIA, daughter of Charles M. and Mary Elizabeth (Cole) Randall. They were married in Hudson, Mass., by his brother. She was born Feb. 6, 1852; died in Boston, Nov. 28, 1880.

Captain Bridge received an excellent education in the city schools of Boston and at the Wesleyan Academy, Wilbraham, Mass. He became a popular singer, was remarkably gifted as an elocutionist and, but for the Civil War, would have won distinction as a Shakespearean actor. Following the example of two of his father's brothers, he traveled extensively, visiting South America, Africa, India, Australia, Great Britain, etc.

Becoming an expert bookkeeper, he was for several years in the wares department of the Boston Custom House. At the opening of the Civil War he was one of the first volunteers, as a private, to enlist in the Thirty-Seventh Massachusetts Infantry; became a Sergeant, and was mustered in Sept. 2, 1862. Was discharged and became Captain in the Fifty-Fourth Massachusetts Volunteers, which regiment was raised by him as directly appointed to the work by Governor Andrew of Massachusetts, the Fifty-Fourth being the first regiment of colored troops enlisted, and he was for some time acting Major; was at the battle of Olustee, Florida, and at Fort Sumter, where his regiment did loyal duty. It was a Sergeant of Mr. Bridge's Company, a brave negro young fellow, who carried the flag of the regiment, and whose expression, "The old Flag never touched the ground," has made him eminent for all time.

Captain Bridge came back from the war with a broken constitution. He returned to his business as bookkeeper and accountant in New Haven, Conn., and was stricken with pneumonia, dying suddenly at the Tontine Hotel, Sept. 6, 1884. He was buried beside his father in "The Dell," at Wilbraham, Mass.

93. REV. WILLIAM DAWSON⁹ BRIDGE (70. *Jonathan Davis*⁸, *Isaac Crosset*⁷, *Joseph*⁶, *Thomas*⁵, *Joseph*⁴, *Matthew*³, *Matthew*², *John*¹), born Feb. 23, 1840, in Duxbury, Mass.; married Nov. 26, 1863, MARY SUSAN SANFORD, daughter of Philip and Susan (Bassett) Holway, born in Lowell, Mass., June 30, 1841.

Rev. William D. Bridge was the son of the parsonage. He received his education in the schools of Boston, and in the Wesleyan Academy, Wilbraham, Mass., and graduated at the Wesleyan University, Middletown, Conn., in 1861. He became a member of the New England Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church in 1863, and for over twenty years filled various appointments, his last being in Boston. For nine consecutive years he was the private secretary of Bishop John Heyl Vincent of the

Taken on Their Fifty-fifth Anniversary

Methodist Episcopal Church, visiting with him nearly all sections of this country.

In 1853, when but a lad, he became enamored with phonographic shorthand, teaching the art privately and by extensive correspondence for many years. In 1887, it was his great privilege to be the American representative of shorthand reporters (out of seven appointees) to be present during the First International Shorthand Congress, in London, England, in which he was an active participant, and formed many delightful acquaintances with delegations from all parts of Europe. Since 1905, Mr. Bridge has been the librarian-historian of the National Shorthand Reporters' Association, having extensive correspondence with the reporters of Switzerland, France, Germany, England, Scotland, etc.

Through the illness of his wife, Mr. Bridge resigned active pastor work in the ministry. He taught one year in Temple College, Philadelphia, and then removed to Orange, N. J. For seven years he conducted a private shorthand school in the Methodist Book Concern building, New York, but, in 1915, began literary labors in his own home. For thirty years (beginning 1880), Mr. Bridge was instructor at the great Chautauqua Assembly, Chautauqua, N. Y. Mr. Bridge has been an ardent Free Mason for sixty-three years and is Associate Chaplain of Orange Chapter, Number 23, in his home city, Orange, N. J.

Mrs. Bridge has been a most efficient helper of her husband in his ministerial work, coming of good, old Puritan stock in South-eastern Massachusetts; her father originally a Quaker but becoming a strong Methodist; her mother a marvellously acceptable lay worker, and also a treasurer and collector for over fifty years in connection with the Nickerson Home for Children in Boston; the oldest brother, Mr. Merrill S. Holway, being the treasurer of the City of Chelsea, Mass.; the second brother, Rev. Dr. Wesley O. Holway, a graduate of Harvard, a chaplain in the United States Navy for thirty or more years and at his death the senior chaplain; the third brother, Rev. Raymond F. Holway, also a graduate of Harvard, and a pastor for over forty years in prominent Methodist churches in Massachusetts, and now retired. The sixtieth wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Bridge came on Nov. 26, 1923.

He is an extensive landowner, having over one thousand acres of good corn and beet farm land, worth over three hundred dollars an acre. He was supervisor, for six years, from the fifth district, in which the City of Bloomfield, Nebraska, is located, and during that time stood alone to unfathom a plot of grafting in building county bridges that stirred up the people to the truth of what was being done. He is also a member of the School Board. Has held several offices in the Commercial Club of Bloomfield. Since he left Chicago, in 1899, he has built up and inspired about fourteen different farms. He is in the direct descent from John Dart, who came to New England from Dartmouth, England, and settled in New London, Conn. He is in the seventh generation, being the son of Warren Clayton Dart. John Wesley Bridge, Jr., for many years residing in Methuen, Mass., but latterly in Lawrence, is a man of unusual capabilities in mechanical lines; first as a master carpenter, but for many years head of all the electrical works in one of the largest textile mills in his home city. The various lines of electrical development are intimately known to him, and are recognized widely in that city. He is a prominent member of one of the churches, and having a family of six daughters and two sons, all gifted singers and musicians, he has had constant occasion to exercise their gifts and usefulness in various religious and secular concerts. A gifted family of old-style New England religious character.

99. CHARLES ADAMS⁹ BRIDGE (74. *Henry Martyn*⁸, *Isaac Crosset*⁷, *Joseph*⁶, *Thomas*⁵, *Joseph*⁴, *Matthew*³, *Matthew*², *John*¹), born Mar. 22, 1847, in Gloucester, Mass.; died Oct. 29, 1907, in Brooklyn, N. Y.; married Oct. 25, 1876, in Colebrook, N. H., MARY J., daughter of Isaac and Caroline Morenci, of Colebrook. His widow resides in Brooklyn.

Mr. Bridge, from his very youth, became an ardent compositor and printer. He held very good positions, usually being promoted to be foreman very soon after he entered any given shop. For many years he was in the printing office of The Congregationalist in Boston.

On or about 1884, he dropped the book and job business and entered the morning newspaper business, first as a compositor, then proof reader, and then to the editorial desks. He worked on all the Boston papers, at various times, and nearly all the New York papers; and, at one time, became the city editor of the Chicago American. His last service was as night editor of the New York Herald for many years.

He was a brilliant writer and was exceedingly popular among all who knew him. In 1864-7, he served in the Fifth Regiment of the United States Artillery.

After separation by the Courts, in September, 1884, he married (II), Sept. 18, 1888, in Littleton, N. H., ANGIE B. WATSON.

Following the example of his brothers, Charles Adams and Henry Ward Beecher, he became an ardent and capable printer. The Editor of this Genealogy was the principal of the Colebrook Academy in 1862-3 and learned the printing art at odd hours, in the very home where these three youths were nascent compositors.

Jonathan Davis Bridge started in the printing business at eleven years of age and has never had any other employment. He bought and sold country newspapers and job offices in various parts of New Hampshire until November, 1902, when he took charge of the Rumford Printing Company, in Concord, N. H. This company is now one of the largest establishments of its kind in New England and employs about three hundred fifty people. He was one of the largest property holders and most prominent citizens of Marblehead. He studied law for a short time, but soon entered into the control and management of large real estate interests in Marblehead, which he had inherited. This was the Brown estate. (See Ephraim Brown under No. 34.) Mr. Bridge was always active in the town interests as a selectman, etc., and in the water and electric light departments. He was a trustee of the Marblehead Savings Bank; was a member of several yacht clubs; was deeply interested as a member of various Masonic Lodges, having reached the Thirty-Second Degree of Masonry. His widow resides in Marblehead.

JOHN LINE

FOURTH GENERATION

10. JOHN⁴ BRIDGE (5. *Matthew*³, *Matthew*², *John*¹), was the third son of Matthew Bridge, Jr. He was born Sept. 1, 1700; died Mar. 7, 1776, aged 76 years; married (I), January 4, 1730, ANNA, daughter of John and Anna (Woodbury) Herrick, of Wenham, born June 3, 1710; died Dec. 14, 1730; (II), in 1732, SARAH, daughter of Joseph and Mary Tidd of Lexington, born Nov. 19, 1711; died May 14, 1754; (III), Oct. 14, 1756, MRS. MARY (BATCHELDER) PORTER, of Woburn, daughter of Josiah and Mary (Raymond) Batchelder, and widow, first, of John Kettle, of North Beverly, and, secondly, of William Porter, of Woburn, born Nov. 5, 1701; died Aug. 27, 1778, aged 77 years, without children. John Bridge was a prominent citizen of Lexington, holding a large number of civic offices of all grades. He served as Selectman in 1746 and 1756. His will was dated June 16, 1769 and was probated June 3, 1776.

The second marriage of John Bridge united him with one of the two other prominent families of Lexington — the Tidd family. The originator of this house was John Tidd, who came to Charlestown in 1637 and took up his residence in Woburn in 1640, dying there, Aug. 3, 1643. In the town records of Charlestown, Woburn and Lexington, his name was variously spelled, Tead, Teed and Tidd. To build a church of worship, John Tidd and his son Joseph, and also Samuel, gave liberally. John Tidd was one of the Assessors of the town. John Tidd's son, John, came to Lexington and became the ancestor of the large Tidd family of that town. The son was born in 1625; married in 1650, Rebecca Wood, of Woburn; removed to Cambridge Farms (Lexington) in 1686, and devoted himself largely to dealings in real estate in that place, though he held large possession in Cambridge in 1683. In 1686, he built his first home in Lexington, which property remained in the family for at least two hundred years. He died Apr. 12, 1703, aged 78 years. His son, Joseph, resided upon the old homestead with his wife, Dorothy Stickney, and, like his ancestors, was a large landowner in the four towns of New Braintree, Woburn, Templeton and Phillipston. His will mentions four sons and two daughters. He died in 1772 and his wife in 1790, aged 78 years.

in the Battle of Lexington Green on Apr. 19, 1775 and participated in the Battle of Bunker Hill; was also in other active service during the Revolution, and rose to the rank of Major in the Militia.

At Lexington, —

“John Danforth was hit just in Lexington Street, John Bridge at that lane where you cross Beaver Falls.”

“I took Bridge on my knee, but he said, ‘Don’t mind me:
Fill your horn from mine — let me lie where I be,
Our Fathers, says he, That their sons might be free,
And that man is a knave or a fool who, to save
His life, for a Minute would live like a Slave.’”

At a meeting, of the citizens of Lexington, held Mar. 18, 1776, Capt. John Bridge was chosen a member of the Committee of Correspondence and Safety. He was one of the signers of a document of date 1776, which declared that “before God and the World” they would be true to the cause of liberty, and to each other. This, says Hudson, “does honor to the character and patriotism of our fathers, and may be regarded as their Declaration of Independence.” We are glad to present here a facsimile of John Bridge’s signature to this famous document. No one has borne the title of Captain, whose name has not been found on the Board of Assessors or Selectmen, or on some of the most important committees. The title of Quartermaster was enjoyed by John Bridge, who was amongst the most popular and distinguished men of the town at the commencement of the Revolution. For many years he was a magistrate and Justice of the Peace in the town, and said to have solemnized more marriages than any other Justice of the Peace. He was chosen Deacon in the Church in October, 1787; was Selectman in 1787-8-9-90-4-5 and Assessor in 1778, 90, 92. He also had charge of the public schools for a period.

iii. HANNAH, b. Apr. 30, 1771; d. Feb. 1, 1843, aged 72 years; m. (I), Sept. 29, 1791, JOSEPH, son of Cornet John and Beulah Merriam (Brewer) Chandler, b. Sept. 2, 1768; d. Oct. 26, 1807. The Cornet, “Though he held a commission under the Royal Governor as ‘Cornet’ of his Majesty’s ‘Blue Troop’, was not false to his native Colony. He belonged to Captain Parker’s Spartan Band, loyal both to his own town and also to the state.” (II), June 7, 1810, DR. THOMAS, son of Asa and Betsey (Sawyer)

Whitcomb, who was b. in Lancaster, Mass., in 1774; d. in Lexington, Mar. 3, 1829. His father was a prominent citizen of Lancaster and a Colonel in the Revolution. Thomas was a physician and settled in Lexington about 1804, on what is now known as the Vine Brook Farm. He was a member of the Massachusetts Medical Society; a competent physician, having a good practice.

Children born in Lexington:

1. HANNAH⁷ CHANDLER, b. June 26, 1792; d. Jan. 20, 1809.
2. SARAH, b. May 24, 1794; d. Feb. 10, 1800.
3. JOSEPH, b. Feb. 26, 1801; d. Nov. 16, 1822.
4. JOHN, b. Dec. 11, 1806; d. Nov. 16, 1807.
5. ELIZABETH BRIDGE WHITCOMB, b. Jan. 13, 1814; d. Mar. 7, 1883; m. Oct. 25, 1849, NATHANIEL HARRIS, son of Nathaniel and Nancy Robinson (Gerry) Gerry, of Salem, Mass., who d. in Boston, Jan. 5, 1869. No children.

Mr. Gerry was a man of marked ability, a printer and newspaper correspondent. Although Mrs. Gerry had inherited considerable property, yet in her later years she was apparently reduced to poverty and was cared for, in a large measure, by neighbors and friends. After her death, it was found that she had left more than two thousand dollars, which, for lack of direct heirs, by an Act of Legislature, of 1885, was added to the "Bridge Charitable Fund."

- iv. MARY, b. Jan. 14, 1776; d. Sept. 4, 1778.
- v. SARAH, b. June 20, 1780; d. Dec. 1, 1780.
- vi. MARY, by second wife, b. Apr. 17, 1787; d. Nov. 6, 1820; m. (Int), Aug. 16, 1806, JOHN BRIDGE of Billerica. He was a son of Samuel⁵ and Alice (Pollard) Bridge. His lineage goes back through Samuel⁴, Samuel³, Samuel², to William Bridge, who came to this country, probably in the Ann in 1623, to Plymouth and later on removed to Charlestown. Was William an elder brother of John the Puritan? Perhaps some future historian, who may have searched the hidden and obscure lore of the motherland, may determine.

117. REV. JOSIAH⁵ BRIDGE (10. *John*⁴, *Matthew*³, *Matthew*², *John*¹), born Dec. 28, 1739; died June 20, 1801; graduated at Harvard College, 1758; married Jan. 30, 1766, MARTHA, daughter of Rev. Aaron and Martha (Allen) Smith of Marlboro, Mass., born Aug. 22, 1741; died June 8, 1824, aged 83 years.

The Rev. Josiah Bridge, three years after leaving college, and before he had completed his twenty-second year, was ordained, Nov. 4, 1761, and became the pastor of the church at East Sudbury, Mass., now Wayland. He is said to have been "endowed with a strong mind, and a sound judgment, and, being a good scholar, possessed eminent talents as a teacher."

"Besides a good personal appearance, he had a pleasantness, a solemnity and dignity in his voice, style, and address, which seldom centre in any man. He presided at Councils with meekness and dignity. He was continually in request at ordinations and other public occasions. He preached an Election Sermon and a Convention Sermon, and read at the University the Dudleian Lecture. These honors were then very rarely conferred on one Minister. Fourteen years after his decease, it was said of him by Dr. McKeen, 'The praise of Bridge, a Godly man and faithful, is still in all the Churches.' He showed his literary tastes by the possession and use of his library, of about five hundred volumes, works of history, the writings of the best English Divines, and especially rich in the writings of the Puritan Fathers."

Rev. Aaron Smith, of Marlboro (whose daughter Martha married Josiah Bridge), was born in Ipswich, Mass., Oct. 25, 1713; graduated at Harvard in 1735; was settled in Marlboro, Mass., June 11, 1740; was dismissed Apr. 29, 1778, and died Mar. 25, 1781. He is described as a man of large frame, stout in body, of good mental power, and a worthy preacher. It is supposed that his wife did not live long, but died in giving birth to twins, one dying in infancy and the other becoming the wife of Rev. Josiah Bridge. Some peculiar incidents are mentioned in connection with Mr. Smith. He had a Negro man and woman, slaves, who always lived with him, and brought up a family of children. Mr. Smith sold one of the children, a girl named Dell, at that time ten years old, for a merely nominal sum, to a family in his parish, the deed of sale of the child being in existence between 1850 and 1860. Mr. Smith adopted a female child, whose name was Susan Low, to be a companion to his own daughter, and she lived with him until she was married. (The facts presented by the late Horatio Alger.) He married July, 1740, Martha, daughter of Joseph and Mary (Coit) Allen of Gloucester, who was born May 7, 1720. Mr. Smith was a lineal descendant of a Mr. Richard Bridge, who was born in Shropshire, Norfolk County, England.

"To the memory of Rev. Aaron Smith, A.M., late Pastor of the Church of Christ of Marlborough,
He was possessed of superior abilities and accomplishments;
A sincere lover of truth, of distinguished fidelity,
Piety, Prudence, Industry, Cheerfulness and Charity.
He served God in the Gospel of His Son for 37 years,

And through life exhibited a bright and amiable example of the temper, studies and practice becoming a Christian Divine."

He departed this life, 25 March, 1781, aged 69.

Another stone reads as follows:

"In memory of Josiah Bridge, A.M.,

The able, faithful, pious, much beloved, greatly lamented
Pastor of the Church and Congregation of Christ in East Sudbury,

Who departed this life, June 20, 1801."

124. MARTHA⁶ BRIDGE (117. Rev. Josiah⁵, John⁴, Matthew³, Matthew², John¹), born Sept. 5, 1768, in Sudbury, Mass.; died Feb. 2, 1857, in Pulteney, N. Y., aged 89 years; married Jan. 22, 1791, ELDER JOHN PRENTISS of Rutland, Vt., son of Dr. Stanton and Rebecca (Stevens) Prentice of Lancaster, Mass., born July 31, 1761; died in Pulteney, Nov. 1, 1840, aged 79 years, to which place he removed in 1813. For reasons best known to himself, he changed the spelling of his name from Prentice to Prentiss.

John Prentiss was, in the fifth generation, a descendant from Captain Thomas Prentice, "Trooper," of Newton, Mass., who was born in England in 1621, and came to this country about 1636. He was made a Freeman in Cambridge, May 23, 1652. In 1656, at the early age of thirty-five, he was chosen Lieutenant of his troop of horses and its Captain in 1662. He bore his full share of the hardships and privations of a new settler. He was a Representative to the General Court in 1672-1674. In 1675 he and his troop of horses are mentioned nineteen times on books of the Treasurer of Massachusetts. "He and his troop of horses were a terror to the Indians by his sudden attacks and impetuous charges." He with his troop of horses were in the Narragansett fight. He was often employed by the General Court in special services of trust both civil and military for many years. He was friend and counsellor of the converted Indians, who, in 1691, petitioned the General Court "that Capt. Thomas Prentice may be appointed their overseer and magistrate." Elder John Prentiss was a worthy son of worthy sires; he was persevering and indefatigable in business, a citizen true and trustworthy, a kind and wise father, a faithful and affectionate husband. In the great temperance reform, he was a fighter in the ranks, and active in all other moral reforms, and was an evangelical Christian.

Mrs. Prentiss was one of the co-founders of the Presbyterian Church in Pulteney. Her children and grandchildren held covenant relations in that church with herself. Her life was the best commentary on her profession.

139. REV. ASARELAH MORSE⁷ BRIDGE (126. *Dea. Josiah*⁶, *Rev. Josiah*⁵, *John*⁴, *Matthew*³, *Matthew*², *John*¹), born Jan. 21, 1810, in Lancaster, Mass.; died in Marshfield, Mass., Dec. 11, 1865; buried in Hampton Falls, N. H.; married (I) July 31, 1838, MARTHA SMITH, daughter of Rev. Alpheus and Sarah (Bridge) Harding, who died May 21, 1841; (II) June 4, 1844, MARY ANN, daughter of David and Sophia (Jenkins) Fullam, of Fitzwilliam, N. H., born Dec. 5, 1819; died Apr. 20, 1887. When fourteen years of age, Mr. Bridge entered a store in Boston, where he remained for six years. He then studied for two and one-half years at the New Salem Academy; taught school one winter at Hubbardston, and one winter at Petersham. He graduated from Cambridge Divinity School in 1835. On the second of August, 1835, he commenced preaching as a candidate for the pastorate of the First Congregational (Unitarian) Church of Norton, Mass. His services were acceptable to the congregation, and on the twenty-eighth of December following, he was unanimously invited by the society to settle with them as their pastor in the gospel ministry. He was ordained in Norton, Jan. 27, 1836, and served till November, 1840. Later he was pastor of a church in Standish, Maine. In 1851 he became pastor of First Parish Unitarian Church of Hampton Falls, N. H., founded in 1712, where among his predecessors was, from 1781 to his death in 1798, the Rev. Dr. Samuel Langdon, distinguished scholar and theologian and, previously, President of Harvard College; and Jacob Abbott, educator, and author of over two hundred books, who was born in 1803 and died in 1879. Later he became pastor in Standish, Maine, and Hampton Falls, N. H. He was a man of the finest culture and of the largest and most liberal Christian character. His love, care and kindness extended to, and embraced, every person in the community. He had no narrow sectarianism, but was willing to welcome truth from any source. As a citizen he was public spirited and interested in all progress and improvements. He could have commanded a large salary, and a settlement over some of the largest churches in the denomination. His health became impaired, and he closed his pastorate in the spring of 1865 after serving for fourteen years.

REV. ASARELAH MORSE BRIDGE

H.; died Mar. 7, 1882. Josiah was a celebrated teacher in Cincinnati and elsewhere for many years until his death. He went to Ohio in 1837 from Lowell, Mass., and at first taught in Urbana. Becoming seriously ill, his sister Nancy hastened to his bedside and also Miss Harrington of East Alstead, N. H., to whom he was engaged, and was duly married. He was an enthusiastic Freemason, was "the soul of honor and a true Christian."

141. WILLIAM FREDERICK⁷ BRIDGE (126. *Dea. Josiah*⁶, *Rev. Josiah*⁵, *John*⁴, *Matthew*³, *Matthew*², *John*¹), born Feb. 15, 1821; died Feb. 20, 1892, aged 71 years; married Feb. 24, 1850, ELIZABETH GUILD, daughter of Rev. Jaazaniah Crosby, D.D., Harvard College, 1810, and of Huldah Robinson (Sage) Crosby. Elizabeth was born July 10, 1827; died Apr. 10, 1904. Harvard College, 1846; ordained at East Lexington, Mass., Nov. 7, 1849; Cambridge Divinity, 1849.

Rev. William Frederick Bridge, who compiled the 1884 edition of this Genealogy, would have dismissed all account of himself with the above statement, of which all but the last line is from his hand. His children (urged to present a fuller picture of a man whose whole life was one of loyal devotion to the two great kindred causes of religion and education), would reply with a brevity and restraint that would not offend their father were he still on earth. As a clergyman, Mr. Bridge was a man of profound faith and reverence, of open mind and of utter fearlessness in facing the truth. In these days, when it takes no heroism to stand by liberal convictions, his children can still glow with pride in the memory that when his Unitarian brethren were barring Theodore Parker from their pulpits, Mr. Parker had always a most cordial welcome to the home and pulpit of Mr. Bridge. Fearless and reverent quest for truth made it natural for Mr. Bridge to accept Gerritt Smith's call to him in his Dublin pastorate, just after the Civil War, to what seemed a wider field in taking charge of the academy and chapel in Peterboro, N. Y., as well as becoming Gerritt Smith's right hand in his social service labors. Henceforth, his main work was teaching in school and college, with occasional preaching, to the end. He has left his children the priceless legacy of a loyal life.

He was educated in the city schools and in the Latin School; he entered Harvard College at the age of sixteen years, becoming a member of the Phi Beta Kappa Society; he graduated from Harvard College in 1874; Ph.D., Harvard College, 1883. Was in Europe for four years studying at Trinity College, Cambridge, England, and at the University of Leipzig.

Mr. Piper was a born student, while at the same time becoming actively associated with many organizations, municipal, social, philanthropic, historical, and especially acting as organizer, secretary, director and vice-president of the Associated Charities of Cambridge, Mass., becoming deeply interested in the Avon Home for Children. He became its vice-president in 1888 and from 1892 its president. In his will, he gave a most generous donation to this institution. In 1888 he became a member of the Common Council, and in 1890 a member of the Board of Aldermen of the City of Cambridge. In 1891 his greatest public service was as a member of the School Committee, reaching the presidency of that board in 1892, and retiring in 1909. Mr. Piper became deeply interested in public libraries,—The Boston Athenaeum, The New England Historic Genealogical Society, the Colonial Society of Massachusetts, and the Cambridge Historical Society. In many of these various lines of useful service, he found special encouragement in the helpfulness of his wife, Anne Palfrey Piper, which continued until her death. During the hour of his funeral, July 28, 1911, the Public Library and its branches were closed by order of the Trustees.

Ebenezer*⁵, *John*⁴, *Matthew*³, *Matthew*², *John*¹), born Oct. 31, 1816, in Woodstock, Vt.; died in Scranton, Iowa, Feb. 20, 1879; married Dec. 3, 1841, NANCY ANN, daughter of Thomas and Nancy (Marsh) Bagley, born Feb. 24, 1818; died June 15, 1903, in Pasadena, California, aged 85 years.

James Madison Bridge was an only child of farmer parents. In his youth they put him to learn the shoemakers' trade. He could not have worked at it much or long, for his children never saw him at such work save at long intervals, perhaps mending rough boots of the men folks. They were often amused at his old work-bench and tools in the attic. His children remembered him as always a farmer among industrious farmers; always esteemed by his neighbors for his uprightness, helpfulness and kindness. He was clean of life and speech, and "his word was as good as his bond." He joined with his neighbors in the rural activities and sometimes held office in the township government.

Dissatisfied with the struggle to support his family on a small farm of rocky and infertile land in Vermont, he moved to Illinois at the end of 1856, and bought a farm of unbroken prairie at Malta in DeKalb County. There he created a farm, and there the family lived till 1868, — one son having gone to the war and been lost, and the other just then entering the profession of medicine — when he sold this farm and moved to the village of Sycamore, to spend his remaining years in rest and retirement. He soon wearied of this life, and in two or three years was in the western part of Iowa, building up another and an ideal farm. There he and his wife lived until his death at sixty-three years of age on Feb. 20, 1879.

His wife was a stalwart woman, of great character and intelligence, and of profound influence upon her husband and children as well as on the community.

She died at her son's home in Pasadena, California, June 15, 1903.

Their only child died in early infancy.

Norman Bridge was educated in the common schools of Vermont and Illinois; did some high-school work in DeKalb and Sycamore, Ill., and studied in the medical schools of the University of Michigan and the Northwestern University. He taught a country school one winter.

He practised medicine forty-five years in Chicago and Los Angeles, and taught medicine thirty-five years in medical colleges, mostly in Rush College, affiliated with the University of Chicago, becoming finally Emeritus Professor of Medicine.

He received the M.D. Degree from the Northwestern University in 1868; the Ad Eundem in 1878 from Rush College; the A.M. from Lake Forest in 1889; the LL.D. from Occidental in 1920, and the same from the University of Southern California in 1922; in 1923 the Sc.D. from Northwestern University; and in 1924, the Litt. D. from the University of Vermont.

He lived on a farm in West Windsor, Vt., twelve years; then on a farm in Malta, Ill., for ten years; residing in Chicago continuously for twenty-three years; was expatriated to Southern California for tuberculosis in 1891, and lived there most of the time for many years.

He retired gradually from his medical practice in 1906 and indulged progressively in certain business pursuits, mostly in the petroleum line.

He wrote several books: "The Penalties of Taste"; "The Rewards of Taste"; "House Health"; "Fragments and Addresses"; "Tuberculosis" (lectures); "Mental Therapeutics" "The Marching Years" (autobiographical); and other papers.

He served the City of Chicago seven years: three on the Board of Education (twice elected its president); four years on the Board of Election Commissioners (representing the Republican Party); was elected one of a Board of Freeholders in Pasadena, California, to devise a charter for that city. He was on the Board of Trustees of the California Institute of Technology in Pasadena (formerly Throop Polytechnic Institute), during more than twenty of its early years, and was for a long time its chairman. After retiring from special and official connection with the Institute, he assisted in erecting the "NORMAN BRIDGE LABORATORY OF PHYSICS" of the California Institute of Technology, located in Pasadena, which is a perfect Laboratory of Physics, a bee-hive

SAMUEL LINE

FOURTH GENERATION

11. SAMUEL⁴ BRIDGE (5. *Matthew*³, *Matthew*², *John*¹), the fourth and youngest son of Matthew Bridge, Jr., was born in Lexington, Mass., May 2, 1705; died June 7, 1791, aged 86 years; married (I), in Bedford, Mass., Apr. 9, 1734, SUSANNA, daughter of Nathaniel and Susanna (Lane) Page (Paige) of Billerica and Medford, where she was born Apr. 29, 1711. Her mother was the daughter of Maj. John Lane of Billerica. She died in Lexington and was buried there, Jan. 16, 1734-35 in her twenty-fourth year; (II), Apr. 27, 1738, MARTHA, daughter of Joseph and Phoebe (Barnard) Bowman, of Lexington, born Sept. 8, 1718; died June 27, 1793, aged 75 years. He was a Selectman in 1758-60. He was one of the committee to present resolutions in regard to a "Committee of Correspondence and Safety."

Nathaniel Bowman, Ancestor of the Bowmans of Maine and the Bowmans of our Genealogy, came from England in 1636 and settled in Watertown, Mass., removing thence to Cambridge Farms (afterwards called Lexington), where he died, Jan. 21, 1782. When Matthew Bridge was chosen as a Selectman in the organization of "The Farms," Francis Bowman, the son of Nathaniel Bowman, was also chosen Selectman with him. This Francis Bowman married Martha Sherman, and had several children. He died Dec. 16, 1687. Another Bowman, Joseph, became a leader in Lexington. His wife, Phoebe, bore him nine children. She died Dec. 20, 1751. Joseph died Apr. 8, 1762. It is an interesting fact that Nathaniel, the son of Francis, had a daughter Abigail, who married Matthew Bridge, and Joseph Bowman of Lexington had a daughter, Martha, who married Samuel Bridge, and Joseph Bowman of Westboro had a daughter, Phoebe, who married Edmund Bridge of Dresden, Me. We also find that William Bowman of Wiscasset, Me., married on Jan. 1, 1799, Phoebe Bridge, daughter of Edmund Bridge of Dresden. William died in 1826. She died Feb. 2, 1842. Her son, Edmund Bridge Bowman, was a lawyer and was Clerk of Courts of Lincoln County, and also a graduate of Bowdoin College. It is interesting to note that, in the early history of Lexington, there were two divisions in social life headed by the Bowman and the Reed families respectively, the Bridge citizens affiliating largely with the Bowmans. On the Committee of Correspondence and Safety,

SAMUEL BRIDGE'S HOME, LEXINGTON, MASS., 1739

Capt. John Bridge was a member with Lieut. Francis Bowman. We find also Francis Bowman, Jr., as one of the small committee in 1824 to present to the people of Lexington a public statement of the facts concerning the Battle of Lexington on the morning of Apr. 19, 1775. Samuel Bridge, therefore, in marrying into the Bowman family, did not, by any means, diminish his standing in the town affairs.

The name of Samuel Bridge appears on the Roll of Military Service rendered by the inhabitants of Lexington in the War of the Revolution as follows:

He was a Private in Capt. Edmond Monroe's Detachment in the Lexington Alarm Company, being in service from May 16 to May 20, 1775, five days at Cambridge, by order of the Committee of Safety. The records of Lexington show that Samuel Bridge, with others, furnished a man for the campaign to Bennington; undoubtedly he did the same thing to the Jerseys, and probably also for the guard duty, in December, 1777. It is hardly conceivable that a man of seventy to seventy-three years of age would be called out for soldier duty. There was none other of the name of Samuel living in Lexington at the time, his son, Samuel, having removed to Hardwick, in 1760.

According to the scant records, Samuel was one of the most influential men of the town, in those trying days prior to the Revolution. At a meeting of the inhabitants of Lexington, Dec. 31, 1772, he was chosen one of a committee of seven to draft instructions to their representative, in regard to their rights, as to the best means of obtaining security of life, property and liberty, and to bring in to an adjourned meeting such resolves as they might think best for the town.

He took part in the Eighth Campaign of the Revolutionary War, three months to the Jerseys in the fall of 1776 (£7 10s.), under the command of Capt. John Bridge, Jr. (cousin to Samuel); also the eleventh campaign to Bennington (£9); also the thirteenth campaign, December, 1777, to guard the line near Cambridge, five months (£1 16s.).

FIFTH GENERATION

168. SAMUEL⁵ BRIDGE, JR. (11. *Samuel*⁴, *Matthew*³, *Matthew*², *John*¹), born in Lexington, Jan. 6, 1734–35; married (int.), Aug. 19, 1760, HANNAH TOWNSEND of Greenwich, Mass. He settled in Hardwick, Mass.; later, about 1799, he removed to the neighborhood of Wilmington, Vt. Recent investigations in person fail to locate in and about Wilmington any of the family. Through the arduous work of one of the descendants of Bezaleel Bridge, one of the sons of Samuel, we are fortunate in securing a long line of descendants from John Bridge, the Puritan; as this true "son" of the "Puritan" had kept his line back to Bezaleel, and there he was lost in the "myths" of the past.

Samuel was fortunate in inheriting land in Hardwick, under the will of his grandfather Paige, who died Mar. 2, 1755. We find him engaged in the French and Indian War; he "marched Aug. 9, 1757, as far as Kinderhook, for the relief of Fort William Henry."

Samuel's name is found on the tax list of Jan. 30, 1776 for an amount to help bear the public burdens at the commencement of the Revolutionary War. The date of death of Samuel Bridge, Jr., has not been found by us.

Children born in Hardwick, and thus recorded in the Vital Statistics Record:

- i. JOSHUA⁶ BRIDGE, b. Dec. 20, 1761.
- ii. SUSANNA, b. Feb. 24, 1763.
174. iii. BEZALEEL, b. Nov. 21, 1764.
- iv. HANNAH, b. Jan. 11, 1766; d. Jan. 22, 1767.
- v. HANNAH, b. Apr. 26, 1767.
- vi. SAMUEL, 3d, b. May 1, 1768.

169. EDMUND⁵ BRIDGE (11. *Samuel*⁴, *Matthew*³, *Matthew*², *John*¹), the father of the Bridge family in Maine, was born in Lexington, Mass., Aug. 8, 1739; died in Dresden, Me., Sept. 10, 1825, aged 86 years. He settled in 1760 in the newly incorporated location on the lower Kennebec River, then called Pownalborough, now Dresden. In 1764 he returned to Lexington, and on Sept. 6 of that year, he took for his wife, his cousin, PHOEBE, daughter of Joseph and Thankful (Forbush) Bowman, born in Westboro, Mass., May 7, 1747; died in Dresden, July 24, 1828, aged 81 years.

Edmund Bridge, like all his ancestors, was charged with great energy as a pioneer, and he soon became distinguished as a servant of the people. His first office was that of Town Clerk. He became a Magistrate in the Revolutionary times, an office involving consideration and distinction. When the Revolutionary War actually broke out, he placed himself squarely in opposition to the English Government, and became a member of the "Committee of Safety and Correspondence." In 1782 he was appointed by the Governor of the State, Governor Hancock, as Sheriff of Lincoln County, an office which he held for thirty consecutive years except for a brief period in 1811 and in 1814.

Such a man, with such a history, in such a time, is worthy of the highest recognition by his descendants. In his physique he was compactly built; he possessed an expressive countenance, indicating feelings highly benevolent. By all classes he was honored and beloved. He attended to the education of his children most carefully and gave great attention to the intellectual, moral and religious training of the children in the community, a fact which was greatly appreciated by all.

His wife was a highly qualified helpmate. She was tall and of a large frame; firm and energetic in her personality, — traits which have been transmitted to many of her descendants. She was a woman of large heart and in her home gave unlimited hospitalities. Her visitors seemingly were unlimited, and it is noted of her that at least on one occasion, when her guests came on horseback, as many as twenty-five saddles belonging to as many guests were counted one morning in her kitchen. Foreign visitors also sought her mansion with honorable recognition. Among them were Talleyrand and Louis Phillippe. American guests in large numbers honored her and were honored by her in the hospitable domicile.

In Memory of
Edmund Bridge, Esq.,
A Patriot of the Revolution,
Born at Lexington, Aug. 8, 1739.
Died at Dresden, Sept. 10, 1825,
In the eighty-seventh year of his age.
In 1760
He settled in this town
And became a prominent citizen;
Having at different times
Filled the various offices of honor and trust
Within the gift of the inhabitants;
And being for more than thirty-two years
High Sheriff of the County of Lincoln.
Widely known and greatly esteemed during life,
His death was sincerely lamented by all
Who knew how fully his pure,
Upright and benevolent principles

Were carried out in his daily
Walk and conversation.
And they buried him — And his children
Lifted up their voice and wept at
The grave, and the people wept.

In Memory of
Mrs. Phebe Bowman Bridge, wife of
Edmund Bridge, Esq.
By whose side she is interred.
Born at Westboro, May 7, 1747,
Died at Dresden, July 24, 1828,
In the eighty-second year of her age.
Married on the sixth of September, 1764.
She with her husband patiently bore
All the trials incident to a frontier life,
And with him lived to witness
A wilderness become a habitation of thrift.
Her kind and amiable disposition
Endeared her to all,
And made her death to be more deeply felt
By the relatives and friends
Who survived her.
Aged Christian! May the beauty of thy Daily Life impress on our hearts a love
Of duty by its truth and holiness.

He received a good education; enlisted in the Mexican War in Boston, June 5, 1846, at the age of twenty-one years, attaining the rank of lieutenant, and was admitted to practice law, July 5, 1853. In June, 1861, he recruited a company for the Civil War, going out as its Captain, which became a part of the 29th Regiment of Massachusetts Volunteers. He became overpowered by the sun's heat at Fortress Monroe. His will was proved, May 26, 1898. He left to his nephew, John Tyler, the "swords, pistols and accoutrements to the same, belonging, worn & used by me in the Mexican and Civil Wars." His nephew was appointed executor.

- v. LEVI, b. Feb. 15, 1784; d. in Cambridge, Mass., Apr. 14, 1876, aged 92 years. Like all his ancestors, he was in his early life a man of varied capabilities and diversified activities. An unfortunate and severe mental affliction came upon him, and for many years he was absolutely unfitted for the lines of business to which he had devoted himself. He finally recovered, but with diminished power and endurance. He never married, and having a tender heart toward the unfortunate, and especially children, his own misfortune led him constantly to think of the misfortunes of others.

He presented to the City of Cambridge a small fund (of about one thousand dollars) to be known as the "Bridge Charitable Fund," to be held intact until principal and interest, or gifts of other philanthropists, should amount to two thousand dollars, after which two-thirds of the interest could be expended in Cambridge by the Overseers of the Poor for deserving needy persons. The deed of trust was accepted by the city in September, 1875.

Levi Bridge hoped that the fund might be enlarged by other contributors, so that in time to come it might "afford relief" to many unfortunates in the city in which he had so long lived. Samuel J. Bridge, having a like spirit with his relative, increased the fund by exactly the same amount as Levi's gift.

In Memory of
Levi Bridge,

Second son of Francis and Eunice Bridge.

Born at Winchendon, February 15, 1784,

Died in this city, Apr. 14, 1876,

In the ninety-third year of his age.

He was a man of varied acquirements,

Endowed with a large share of talent,

Improved by education, study and use.

He was modest and unassuming,

A pleasant and instructive companion.

He filled many important positions

Both at home and abroad.

He was patient and cheerful in adversity,

And when compelled by adverse circumstances

To seek the refuge of the unfortunate,

He met the fate allotted him gracefully and without a murmur.

He spent a long life of usefulness to his fellowmen,
 And in the upright discharge of all duties.
 He lived in the esteem and affection of all who knew him.
 He reached an age which few in this world attain,
 And died as he had lived, without fear and without reproach.
 He is interred by the side of his ancestors.
 "Blessed is that servant, whom the Lord, when he Cometh, Shall find so doing."

- vi. OLIVER, b. July 20, 1785; d. June 5, 1842, in Bangor, Me.
- vii. LUCY, b. Oct. 5, 1788, in Lexington; d. Mar. 21, 1855, in Dresden. Her simplicity of manners, goodness of heart, and exemplary piety endeared her to all her relatives and friends who lament her loss.

175. HONORABLE JAMES⁶ BRIDGE (169. *Edmund*⁵, *Samuel*⁴, *Matthew*³, *Matthew*², *John*¹), the eldest son of Edmund Bridge, born in Dresden, Me., Sept. 21, 1765; died January, 1834; married July 4, 1797, HANNAH, daughter of Hon. Joseph and Hannah (Flagg) North, born June 9, 1774; died Apr. 9, 1822. He graduated at Harvard in 1787, and read law with Hon. Theophilus Parsons, along with his classmate and chum, the Hon. John Quincy Adams. He returned from Massachusetts to Maine and opened a law office in Hallowell, succeeding Gen. William Lithgow, and held the legal field alone until 1790. His practice became very extensive; he was remarkable in special pleading, addressing both judge and jury in clear and concise language. He was a remarkable conveyancer, drawing his legal papers with supreme wisdom. He represented the State in the Legislature in 1799; was a Judge of Probate for four years, beginning in 1800. Through remarkable business ability he became a leading financier and very wealthy. He retired in 1812 from business, and soon became a member of the Executive Council of Massachusetts, and was a leading member in the State Convention of 1819, and following that was Commissioner under the act of the separation of Maine from Massachusetts as a distinct State. He was president of the Augusta Bank from 1814 until 1834 and was also commissioned as bank examiner.

Hannah Bridge, the judge's wife, was a woman most graceful in form, medium in stature, possessing much personal beauty; of kind disposition and strongly attached to her kindred and friends. Her charities were numerous. Even the prisoners in jail were always remembered by her bounty on Thanksgiving Day, following the example set to her by her mother on her marriage; and, at her death, her youngest daughter took up these duties. Mrs. Bridge died at the early age of forty-seven, with all Christian faith. Her aged father survived her, and when she passed away, his remark at her death was, "Mrs. Bridge died. It is a dark day for me."

Hon. Joseph North, her father, represented the Plantation of Maine, in the Provincial Congress, in 1774 and 1775; was commissioned Colonel Feb. 26, 1776; appointed Judge Court of Common Pleas for Lincoln County, in 1785; and for Kennebec County, in 1799, which office he held until his death.

June 29, 1798, in Northfield, Mass.; d. in Augusta, Me., Aug. 14, 1842. Mary was a woman of great personal beauty and deemed by her friends a most amiable woman. He was engaged in mercantile pursuits in Augusta, Me. Was a Selectman, 1837-38; Captain of Augusta Light Infantry for a number of years; Adjutant-General in the State of Maine under Governor Kent in 1838. That was a great presidential year when Harrison and Tyler ran for the presidency. The campaign song rang as follows:

“O, say, have you heard how old Maine went?
She went hell-bent for Governor Kent

General Vose was tall, straight, of fine figure and martial bearing.

Children:

 6. HORATIO, b. Jan. 29, 1840; d. in Calcutta, in 1866.
- vii. HANNAH, b. Sept. 23, 1810; d. April, 1905, aged 95 years; m. September, 1832, (as his second wife), HON. DANIEL, son of Seth and Zilphia (Ingraham) Williams, who d. May, 1878. He was Selectman of Augusta, Me., 1828-32; in the Legislature, 1831; State Treasurer of Maine, 1837-40; Judge of Probate, 1848-55; Mayor of Augusta, 1868. Mrs. Williams was a life-long resident of Augusta, and of one of its oldest families; she was reared in an atmosphere of refinement that developed within her all the attributes of true womanhood, and it was these that through all her life endeared her to those who grew to know her best. She inherited, too, a warm-hearted interest in the needy and unfortunate, which was ever uppermost in her mind, and much of her life was devoted to work along these lines. As an instance thereof, on each Thanksgiving Day it had been a custom with her for years to send a contribution of pies to the jail, one for each prisoner. The custom originated with her mother, and, after her death, the daughter took it up. She had faithfully continued the practice ever since, and many are the unfortunates who have, in partaking of the dainty morsels, offered silent thanks to the one who so kindly gave them.

Mrs. Williams had long been an earnest and active member of St. Mark's Episcopal Church, and was ever a regular attendant, until within about a year and a half, when advancing years forbade. But although unable through physical disability to travel much, she retained to the end her mental faculties to a marked degree, and maintained a lively interest in the events of the day. She was in many ways a remarkable woman, and one whose loss will be long mourned.

Child:

1. ABBY⁸ WILLIAMS, b. June 18, 1834; m. June, 1856, CHARLES ALLEN, son of Allen and Sybil Angier (Farnum) Lombard, who was in business in Augusta, Me., connected with the Pacific Railroad enterprise and made a fortune. He d. He graduated at the University of Rochester in 1855 and became a journalist in Boston, where he was assistant editor for a year of the Journal and editor for another year of the Traveler. He removed to New York in 1858 and during the next two years was on the editorial staff of the Evening Post. In 1860 he united with others in founding the World, of which he was proprietor and editor from 1862-1876. In 1885 he was appointed as a special envoy to Great Britain, France and Germany on bi-metallic questions.

Mrs. Marble died, Apr. 10, 1909, in Brighton, England, aged 75 years, where they had lived for several years. Her husband died later, at Allingham Castle, the home of Lady Conway, Maidstone, Kent, England, his wife's daughter, where he resided after the death of his wife.

Child:

KATE GLIDDEN⁹ LOMBARD, b. July, 1858; m. in New York City, SIR MARTIN CONWAY. They removed at once to England. One daughter, Agnes. Unm.

177. SAMUEL⁶ BRIDGE (169. Edmund⁵, Samuel⁴, Matthew³, Matthew², John¹), born in Dresden, Me., Nov. 14, 1778; died

Dec. 12, 1821, in Dresden; married Jan. 17, 1803, MARGARET, daughter of Nathaniel and Margaret (Morton) Paine. She was a niece of Thomas K. Jones, a well-known auctioneer in Boston, with whom Samuel had had his early training for business. She was born in Boston, May 4, 1783; died June 15, 1836, in Boston.

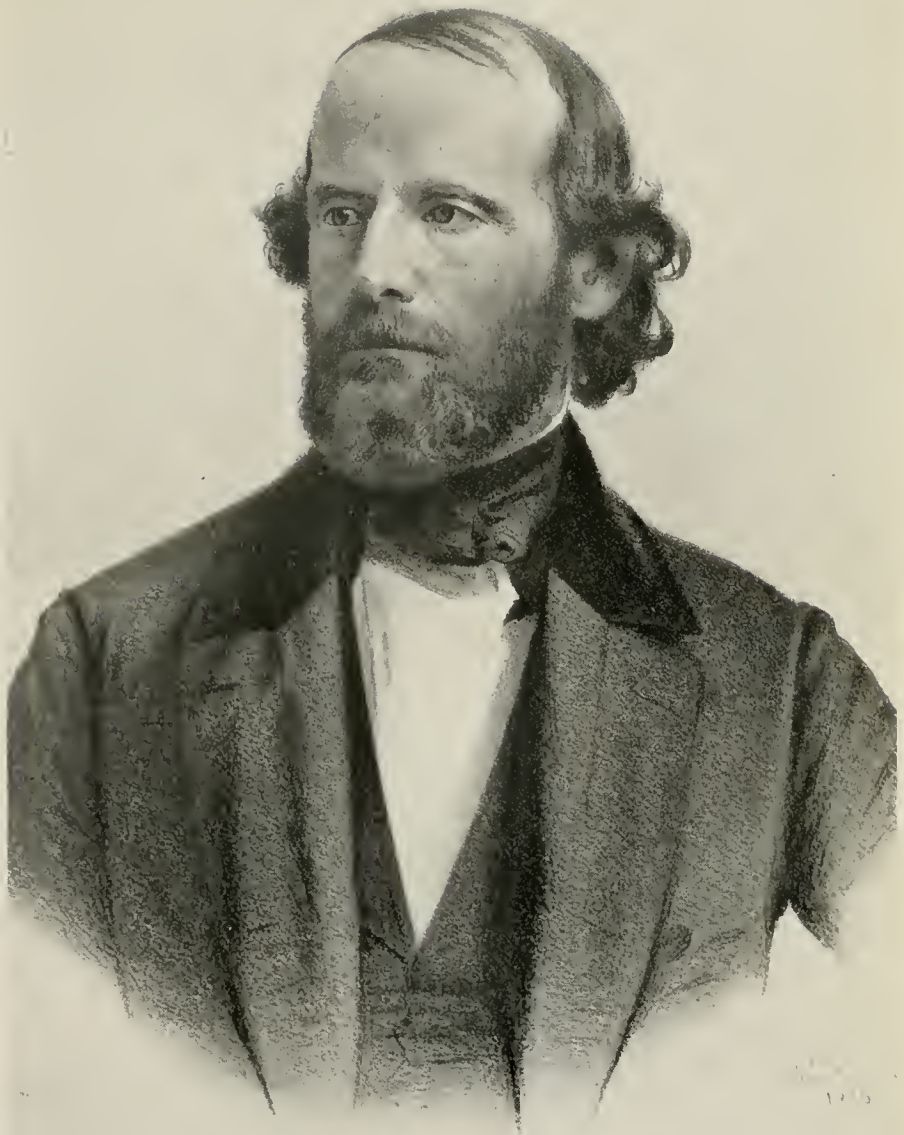

When a little more than twenty-three years of age, he became junior partner with Robert G. Shaw in the firm of Shaw, Barker & Bridge. For years he had already been in Mr. Shaw's employment. The firm was very popular, doing a large auction and commission business. In a few years, Mr. Shaw withdrew, and finally the partnership of Barker & Bridge was dissolved.

In 1811, Mr. Bridge removed with his family to Dresden. From this time he gave himself in his leisure to the service of his native town, as Selectman, as Overseer of the Poor, and as a good citizen and benevolent man. "Respected for his talents and beloved for his virtues."

Children:

- i. MARY HELEN⁷ BRIDGE, b. in Boston, July 17, 1804; d. in Waltham, Mass., Aug. 7, 1846. Unm. She was a great invalid, but believing that ocean journeys would enable her to recover her health, she took long voyages, even to the islands of the Pacific. She was beloved wherever known and her greatest enjoyment was ministering to the happiness of others.
- ii. EDMUND FREDERICK, b. June 14, 1805, in Boston. Lost on a voyage from Gardiner, Me., to Wilmington, N. C., October, 1820.
- iii. THOMAS KILBY JONES, b. Nov. 30, 1807, in Boston; d. Apr. 28, 1808, in Boston.
- iv. SAMUEL JAMES, b. in Boston, June 1, 1809; d. Nov. 6, 1893, in Boston, aged 84 years. He was buried in a cemetery in Dresden, which he personally bought, and in which, with other relatives, he lies.

The donor of the Bridge Statue on Cambridge Common, and fellow donor, with his relative, Levi, of the Bridge Charitable Fund of Cambridge, was a man of great public spirit. He early became a merchant of progressive characteristics. In 1841 he was appointed an appraiser in the United States Revenue Department in Boston; discharging there the responsible duties of his office until about 1856, when he was removed to California as the Appointed Appraiser General of the whole Pacific Coast. The increase in population and development of the country greatly enlarged the business of the United States Customs. Such was the confidence placed in him by every administration of the Government and every Secretary of the Treasury that his reappointment was an almost assured fact. During his term of service, the Custom House in San Francisco, costing five million dollars, was erected; also the United States Mint, costing five hundred thousand dollars; and the United States Marine Hospital worth several hundred thousand dollars.

Mr. Bridge became a great traveler, visiting every quarter of the earth except Alaska; twice encircling the entire globe, making himself familiar with the characteristics and institutions of nearly every land. Mr. Bridge was a man of broad interests and liberal benefactions, and was a judicious philanthropist in the use of his ample fortune. He financed the publication of the first "Bridge Genealogy." As is well known, he was the donor of the Statue of John Bridge, the Puritan, in Cambridge, Mass.; was the donor of the Statue of John Harvard on the grounds of Harvard College, and was the donor of many Bridge memorials, paintings, etc., in the State of Maine. One of the most beneficent and far-reaching of his generousities was the founding of the Bridge Academy at Dresden, Me., placing it trustfully under the trusteeship of Edmund Bridge, of Massachusetts, his brother Nathan's son. The academy is flourishing under competent administration, well honoring all concerned. "A worthy man of a worthy name."

v. THOMAS KILBY JONES (CAPTAIN), b. Nov. 16, 1811, in Boston. Lost on a voyage from the Society Islands to Sydney, N. S. W., December, 1842. Unm. He was a skilled mariner, an active, intelligent merchant and a most kind man.

He moved from Brookfield to Albany, N. Y., and went into business in the wholesale grocery trade with his wife's brother, Harvey Morse, in 1821. He suffered a very severe financial breakdown, and, being an honest man, he sold his household furniture to pay his debts. Later, the family removed to Herkimer, N. Y., where his wife's parents resided. Still later, he located in Sacketts Harbor, N. Y.

Children:

180. NATHAN⁶ BRIDGE (172. *Hon. Matthew*⁵, *Samuel*⁴, *Matthew*³, *Matthew*², *John*¹), born Apr. 18, 1782, in Charlestown, Mass.; died Sept. 18, 1830, in Charlestown; married Dec. 13, 1804, ELIZABETH, the oldest daughter of Josiah and Elizabeth (Call) Bartlett. He was an eminent merchant of Boston. She was born Jan. 17, 1784, in Charlestown; died Aug. 16, 1865, in Boston, aged 81 years.

George Bartlett, the father of Josiah Bartlett, was born in the parish of Slocum Regis, Devonshire, near Exeter, England, on the twenty-first of July, 1733. At the age of twenty-five or thereabouts, he married Katharine Whittemore of Charlestown, Mass., July 18, 1758. He died at the age of thirty-eight leaving three children, of whom Josiah was the oldest at eleven years of age. Josiah entered Harvard College; he became connected with the Medical Department of the American Army. He served at Bunker Hill, where he cared for the wounded and also met Dr. John Warren, serving with him in military hospitals, and became a life-long friend. This form of service lasted until 1780. After retiring from the active hospital service, he settled in Charlestown, Mass., and married Apr. 6, 1793, Elizabeth Cawl, daughter of Caleb and Rebecca Cawl of Charlestown. He served on the school committees; was on the Board of Selectmen as Moderator at town meetings. Was a prominent Mason, repeatedly chosen Grand Warden of the Lodge. The Lodge was held in a hall near the old Warren Tavern, which had a large sign with the likeness of Dr. Joseph Warren on each side of it. Doctor Bartlett delivered an oration which was the first publication in Charlestown. In 1800, three Past Grand Masters, John Warren, Paul Revere and Josiah Bartlett, signed the address of the Grand Lodge of Masons to Martha Washington, in which they requested a lock of Washington's hair to be preserved in a golden urn. This they received with a feeling letter from Mrs. Washington. Doctor Bartlett had a pin set with pearls and containing some of Washington's hair. It is now owned by Mrs. Edmund Bridge, a great grand-daughter.

Dr. Josiah Bartlett served as a Representative, and also as a Senator, in the Massachusetts Legislature, and also as a member of the Governor's Council. He died in 1820. He had sixteen children, five of whom died young. His son, Josiah, became a physician like his father, and practiced for many years in Concord, Mass., where he was very popular. He inherited the oil portrait of his father which had been painted by the great American artist Stuart, which still hangs in his old home in Concord. His eldest daughter was Elizabeth, who married Nathan Bridge, of Charlestown, and their daughter, Susan, married Dr. Charles T. Jackson, of Boston.

He was a physician in Brattleboro; a member of the Vermont Legislature and United States Marshal for the District of Vermont. He was the son of Oliver and Mary (Jones) Chapin, of Milford, Mass. Oliver Chapin was a Revolutionary soldier in 1775-79. At one time, he was a member of Washington's bodyguard.

JOHN BRIDGE FAMILY IN AMERICA

The most interesting event to him during the service was when his bridle was rendered of no use in managing his horse, by a musket ball from the enemy. He was a Representative to the "Massachusetts General Court" (Legislature), in 1799 and 1804. In 1804 he built the bridge across the Connecticut River between Hinsdale, N. H. and Brattleboro, Vt. About that time he removed to Brattleboro, where he afterwards resided. In 1807 he was appointed Assistant Judge of the Windham County (Vt.) Court.

Charles was born in Orange, Mass., July 10, 1803; fitted for college by Rev. Dr. Coleman; graduated Harvard College in 1823, when only twenty years old. He studied medicine in Boston; practiced same for about four years in Springfield, Mass.; returned to Brattleboro, Oct. 19, 1850. He married, secondly, Jan. 8, 1830, Sophia Dwight Orne, of Springfield, by whom he had five children, all born in Brattleboro. Dr. Chapin was an active, energetic man, influential and useful in that community for nearly forty years. He was considerably employed in public affairs; Representative to the Legislature of Vermont in 1833; United States Marshal for the District of Vermont and Disbursing Agent for monies to pay for Government buildings in Rutland and Windsor, Vt. He suffered seven years from paralysis and died on the forty-seventh anniversary of his second marriage, Jan. 8, 1878, aged 75 years.

Dr. Charles T. Jackson, whose name is inseparably associated with the discovery of anæsthesia, had attained, at the day of his discovery, much prominence among scientific men. He had received the degree of M.D. from Harvard University in 1829. He spent three years in Europe making geological explorations, renewed his practice as a surgeon and physician, and turned, almost exclusively, to chemistry, geology, etc. In his scientific discoveries in 1841 and 1842, while performing an operation in a lecture delivered in Boston, he deduced the fact that sulphuric ether can be safely used as an anæsthetic in surgical operations. Rival claims to the discovery of this form of anæsthesia were made by another person. These claims and Doctor Jackson's were laid before Congress, and also before the French Academy of Sciences. Doctor Jackson's claims were substantiated by both bodies, also by Baron von Humboldt, also by the King of Prussia, who gave him the Order of the Red Eagle. He also received the Cross of the Legion of Honor from the French Republic, and various other Orders from European Governments. Many medals were given to Doctor Jackson in honor of his great discovery, by various nationalities.

The family emigrated from Ohio in 1866 to Illinois, only remaining there a few months and continued on farther west and located in Sterns County, Minn.; here they claimed a homestead and the father and older boys cut timbers off of their land and hewed them into logs from which their cabin was built. Here the youngest daughter was born soon after the cabin was completed; in about three years a school was started four miles from their home, and here the youngest children attended. The family lived on this farm for many years, the children starting out for themselves. The old home was enlarged from time to time, and their homestead became one of the finest farms in Sterns County. Here the father lived until his death.

They moved from Union County to Paulding County, Ohio, in 1854, taking all their goods in an old "prairie schooner."

At that time this country was called the "Black Swamps." They hewed for themselves a home out of the dense forest, and lived first on a forty-acre farm. They became large land-owners and left small farms to each of their children, and, while they endured the hardships of a pioneer life, did not forget their spiritual welfare, and when that part of the country gained a few people, they deeded enough land to build a good-sized church and were largely responsible for its erection, and in it both their funerals were held. There were three things uppermost in their minds—their God, their family, and their farm. On this farm they lived for fifty years. They reared here eight children, four sons and four daughters, all of whom became prosperous farmers or farmers' wives.

184. DAVID GIBBS⁷ BRIDGE (174. *Bezaleel*⁶, *Samuel*⁵, *Samuel*⁴, *Matthew*³, *Matthew*², *John*¹), born July, 1802; died Feb. 27, 1876, in Athens County, Ohio, aged 74 years; married (I), Jan. 6, 1825, PHEBE LYONS, of Athens County; (II), Oct. 16, 1848, ANN LOVE, born in Athens County, Ohio. He moved with his father and family to Ohio in 1814 and settled on a farm in Ames Township, Athens County.

Children born in Athens County:

- i. CLARISSA⁸ BRIDGE, b. Aug. 11, 1827. No further record.

After their marriage in Nelsonville, Ohio, they moved to a farm near that city and, in 1853, migrated west, going overland with oxen and wagons, settling first near Woodbine, Iowa, and in 1856 continued west to Nebraska, pre-empting a claim in the Lost Branch neighborhood. Here they built their log cabin, and for a few years endured the hardships of a pioneer life. The Indians were plentiful and many a time one would come to the cabin, and, with fear and trembling, Mrs. Howorth would almost empty the larder to satisfy his wants. It was not an uncommon thing for Mrs. Howorth to kill and dress a deer.

In 1863, Mr. Howorth was elected Treasurer of Johnson County, Nebraska, and moved to the city, where he remained during his several terms as Treasurer. Moving back to the farm, he remained there the balance of his life. Nearly all his family were prosperous farmers or merchants.

- vii. WILLIAM AUGUSTUS STEUBEN, b. Aug. 15, 1836; d. Aug. 15, 1842.

Hannah North Bridge and her sister, Anne Frazier King Bridge, were born in Augusta, Maine, afterwards living in Jersey City and Geneva, N. Y. After the completion of their education, and the death of their parents, they taught a "Private School" in Geneva, N. Y., for several years.

About the year 1868, they were called to Maine by the Bishop (then, Bishop H. A. Neeley) to assist him in founding a Diocesan School, which was called "Saint Catherine's Diocesan School for Girls." They remained principals of this school until the summer of 1876, when they resigned their position, and opened a private school called "Elmhurst" in Concord, N. H., which they closed four years later in order to return to Geneva, N. Y., where they founded a school called the "De Lancey School for Girls," and later incorporated this school under the "Board of Regents of the State of New York." Owners of this school, they were also its principals for ten years, when they retired, and Miss M. S. Smart, one of their faculty, became owner and principal, carrying on the school for twenty-two years, closing it permanently in June, 1912.

These schools carried preparatory, junior and academic departments, the latter covering a college preparatory course.

They were church schools (Episcopal) and the Bishop of the diocese was visitor, and the Rector of the parish was Rector of the school.

We are greatly indebted to Miss Smart for the above. It shows an appreciation for the work of these two sisters with whom she had labored for a time, ere she took the helm herself, [Editor.]

197. ELI⁸ BRIDGE (183. *William*⁷, *Bezaleel*⁶, *Samuel*⁵, *Samuel*⁴, *Matthew*³, *Matthew*², *John*¹), (twin of Jonathan) born Dec. 31, 1839, in Athens County, Ohio; married Oct. 15, 1860, HARRIET, daughter of Thomas and Harriet (Morgan) Booth, born July 17, 1838, in Virginia; died May 6, 1922, in Lincoln County, Oklahoma, aged 84 years.

He moved with his father from Ohio to Harrison County, Missouri and endured all the hardships incident to the early settlers in Missouri. He lived here until 1892, when he went overland with a party in five wagons, and settled in Chandler, Oklahoma, buying property and established a grocery, which he conducted until the cyclone wiped out Chandler and he lost everything he had. Not discouraged, he purchased a farm near Chandler where he is now living (a quiet and retired life) since he lost his life companion with whom he lived happily for sixty-three years. He raised a large family all of whom became prosperous farmers. Res.: Chandler, Oklahoma.

THE GARFIELD FAMILY

If Bond's History of Watertown is correct, there were two Edward Garfields, father and son, who came from England together, and who both died on the same day, June 14, 1672, the father at the age of ninety-seven. They probably came over with Winthrop, and were among the first settlers of Watertown in 1630. Edward Garfield, Jr., was admitted Freeman May 16, 1635, and was Selectman in 1638, 1655, and 1662. His will and inventory are in the Middlesex records. He was one of the earliest proprietors, a grantee of eight lots and purchaser of four lots before 1644. He had thirty acres set to him in the division dated July 25, 1636. About 1650 he purchased of the heirs of the Rev. Mr. Phillips a lot of forty acres, since well known as the Governor Gore place, or Copley Greene place. His residence was a six-acre lot about half a mile northeasterly of the above, lying on both sides of which is now the line between Waltham and Watertown, and adjoining the land of John Prescott, afterward the settler of Lancaster. His wife, Rebecca, the mother of all his children, died Apr. 16, 1654, aged fifty-five, and he married, second, Johanna, widow of Thomas Buckminster.

Joseph Garfield, son of Edward, was born Sept. 11, 1637; married Sarah Gale, Apr. 3, 1663; was admitted Freeman Apr. 18, 1690, and died Aug. 14, 1691. His name is signed, with those of Lieutenant Barsham and eighteen other soldiers, to a certificate on the Middlesex court records, dated Apr. 15, 1690, "Being listed in the service of the country against the French, and ordered down to Charlestown, and being denied quarters elsewhere, the widow Mary Peachee did entertain us." This evidence of his right to his place in the line as one of a race of soldiers is the only memorial of the life of Joseph Garfield.

Capt. Benjamin³ Garfield, born 1643; died Nov. 28, 1717, aged seventy-four years; was admitted Freeman Apr. 18, 1690; was one of the most prominent men of his time in Watertown. He was Captain of Militia, was Representative to the General Court nine times, Selectman twenty years, Town Clerk twelve years, and on the Committee to locate the boundary between Watertown and Newton, Mar. 1, 1704-5. In the earnest and protracted controversy concerning the location of the meeting house, which arose in 1692, he was the leader of the party inhabiting the middle precinct, now Waltham. The town was then divided into three military precincts, the second or middle precinct being sometimes called "the precinct of Captain Garfield's Company." Dec. 27, 1792, Mr. William Bond and Lieut. Benjamin Garfield were appointed by the town to apply to the Governor and Council to obtain a committee to determine the controversy.

Judge Sewall writes in his diary, Apr. 1, 1695: "Three of Watertown came to me and gave an account of their town meeting, which was on Wednesday last, but could do nothing, so adjourned to the 28th instant, and then chose Selectmen. Though the Farmers voted with East End, yet the Middle outvoted them, and have chosen Selectmen to their mind, and Captain Garfield town clerk instead of Captain Prout, who has endeavored much to obstruct their proceedings about the new meeting house. Parties were so combined on either side that 'twas a continued duel in each, one to one, and four score and odd votes apiece." Dec. 20, 1695, he was one of the committee to treat with the Rev. Henry Gibbs to preach in the new meeting house. At a town meeting, June 26, 1696, the dissensions still continuing, the town voted "there should be a day of humiliation kept in Watertown, and that Simon Stone, Captain Barsham, Isaac Mixer and Benjamin Garfield are desired and appointed to entreat the Rev. Mr. Samuel Willard and the Rev. Mr. Cotton Mather to carry on the work of the day of humiliation." At a town meeting held Sept. 21, 1696, a committee of three persons on each side was chosen, "to debate those matters of difference that did keep them from uniting in love and peace as to the worship of God." Captain Garfield was one of the committee on his side. The meeting adjourned for a week. At the adjournment Benjamin Garfield, the Town Clerk, "did state to the town the proposals made by both parties."

Capt. Benjamin³ Garfield born 1643; died Nov. 28, 1717, aged seventy-four years; married, first, 1673, Mehitabel Hawkins, who died Dec. 9, 1675; married, second, Jan. 17, 1677-8, Elizabeth⁷ Bridge, born Aug. 17, 1659, daughter of Matthew² and Anne (Danforth) Bridge. (See page 28.)

Lieut. Thomas⁴ Garfield, born Dec. 12, 1680; died Feb. 4, 1752, aged seventy-two years, in Weston, Mass. He was the third son of Capt. Benjamin. He was established in his father's lifetime in that part of Watertown, afterward Weston, which, Apr. 24, was incorporated into parts of Concord and Lexington as the second precinct of Concord, and Apr. 19, 1754, became the town of Lincoln. Lieut. Thomas Garfield, Jr., and his sons, Thomas Garfield, 3d, and John, are named in the Act of Incorporation of the second precinct of Concord, and the son, John Garfield, was one of the first town officers. He undoubtedly built and occupied the house now standing in Lincoln, about two miles south of the center of the town, which has been owned and occupied by his descendants until within a few years.

Benjamin, in his will, dated May 22, 1717, devises to his son Thomas, "the farme land that I purchased of Mr. Simon Tainter, by estimation one hundred and twenty acres, and the said lands being now in his possession." The deed of this land from Simon Tainter to Benjamin Garfield is dated Mar. 13, 1702-3, and describes "one tract or parcel of farm land, lying in Watertown above said, containing one hundred and twenty acres, bounded easterly with land granted to Simon Eire and land granted to Richard Sautle, southerly with the squadron line against the fifth division, westerly with the line between Watertown and Concord, and northerly with land granted to Isaac Stearns." Thomas Garfield, in his will, dated Jan. 27, 1752, bequeaths to his son Thomas Garfield, Jr., "all my lands and buildings in said Weston, and in Concord adjoining thereto." This house is situated at the end of a grass-grown lane about forty rods from the high road leading from Lincoln to Waltham, and about two miles south from the center of Lincoln. It is a secluded spot of great beauty. The house, a square, unpainted, two-story one, with a great chimney in the middle, stands surrounded by old elms and apple trees in a tract of fertile meadow, with the Lincoln hill in the distance. This estate passed from Thomas, Jr., to his daughter Rebecca, wife of David Fiske; thence to her son Elijah Fiske; from him to his children, who sold it.

Lieut. Thomas Garfield married, Jan. 2, 1706-7, Mercy Bigelow, born 1686; died Feb. 28, 1744-5, daughter of Joshua and Elizabeth (Flagg) Bigelow, aunt of the famous Col. Timothy Bigelow, of Worcester, and great-aunt of Tyler Bigelow, father of the Chief Justice. A daughter, Mercy Garfield, born in 1686, is named in Samuel's will. (See pages 28 to 38 inclusive, for descendants of children, as below.)

The original homestead of the Bigelows was separated by but one six-acre lot from that of the Garfields. Joshua Bigelow was wounded in King Philip's War and received therefor a grant of land in Narragansett No. 2, afterward Westminster, in the County of Worcester. He is said by Mr. Hudson to have been the only soldier actually in service in King Philip's War who moved on to the granted lands in Westminster, where he died, Feb. 21, 1745, aged ninety years.

Thomas⁵ Garfield, Jr., was born Feb. 28, 1713; died in Lincoln Jan. 3, 1774. He married, Oct. 21, 1742-1743, Rebecca Johnson of Lunenburg, daughter of Deacon Samuel and Rebecca Johnson. He lived and died on the Lincoln farm, and attained the rank of lieutenant in the Lincoln Company. Rebecca was born Nov. 2, 1719, and died Feb. 3, 1763.

Thomas Garfield, Jr., the father of Solomon, drew original house lot No. 110, in the right of Samuel Read of Charlestown, on July 9, 1734, at the meeting of the Proprietors of Narragansett, No. 2, held at Watertown on that day. Westminster, then called "Narragansett, No. 2," was one of the townships granted by the General Court by Resolve of June 15, 1728, "to the persons, whether officers or soldiers, belonging to this Province, who were in the service of their country in the Narragansett War, or to their lawful representatives, as a reward for their public service."

Thomas Garfield, Jr., was then a young man of twenty-one. It is quite likely that he was led to acquire this right from the fact that his uncle, Eliezer Bigelow, drew the land of Joshua Bigelow, father of Eliezer and grandfather of Thomas Garfield, on the same day. The Bigelows moved to Narragansett eight years afterward. Thomas Garfield subsequently acquired other lots in Westminster, in the same right, plans of which are recorded in the records of the Proprietors of Narragansett No. 2, preserved at Westminster.

There is a deed on the Worcester Records from Thomas Garfield to his son Solomon, dated Aug. 9, 1773, of four tracts of land. "The first place is an original house lot, number One Hundred and Ten, with a house and some improvements there, and lyes in the Northeasterly part of the Town, containing by estimation eighty acres." The second is "a third division of upland drawn from the abovesaid house lot No. 110, and lyeth in the Westerly part of the Town, and containeth sixty-nine acres." The fourth is a meadow lot containing three acres, "and lies on the stream the sawmill stands on." This fourth lot was sold by Solomon Garfield to Seth Harrington, Nov. 16, 1778, and is then described as "lying in the meadow below the Wachusett Pond, called the Great Meadow." Feb. 20, 1779, Solomon Garfield, with his sisters Hannah and Lucy, their husbands joining, conveys to Daniel Fiske of Lincoln, the husband of the third sister, a tract of land in Westminster, "late the property of Abraham Garfield of said Lincoln." This tract had undoubtedly come to Abram from his father. Apr. 12, 1781, Solomon Garfield conveys to his brother-in-law, Caleb Parker of Reading, his house lot and another lot of twenty-five acres, probably the third in the deed from his father.

Of the children born in Westminster, Thomas, the eldest son, and second child, was the grandfather of the President.

The graves of Thomas Garfield, Jr., and Rebecca, his wife, of their son Abram, of their daughter, Mrs. Rebecca Fiske, and her husband, Daniel Fiske, are together in a row in the Hill Burying Ground in Lincoln, marked by simple stones of slate. The grave of John Garfield, brother of Thomas, and his wife, are in the Old Burying Ground near Major Flint's in Lincoln, close by the spot where five British soldiers, killed in Lincoln on the retreat from Concord, were buried in one grave.

The death of Thomas and Rebecca Garfield and of their son Abram, and the marriage of their son Solomon and Sarah Stimson, are recorded in the Lincoln Records. This ends the connection of the Garfield line with Middlesex.

- iii. ABRAHAM GARFIELD, b. Apr. 3, 1748; d. Aug. 15, 1775; was in the fight at Concord Bridge on the morning of the nineteenth of April, 1775. Abraham, whose name has been continued in the family to the President, died unmarried, at the age of twenty-seven. He was probably a soldier when he died. His name is annexed to one of the depositions carried to England from Salem by Captain Derby giving the American account of the occurrences at Concord, and published in The Remembrancer.

Corporal Solomon⁶ Garfield, born July 18, 1743; died 1807, in Worcester, N. Y.; married Aug. 27, 1769, Sarah (Briant) Stimson, born Jan. 29, 1721-2, daughter of Abraham and Sarah (Frinks) Briant, of Sudbury, Mass.; widow of James Stimson, of Sudbury. Of the children born in Westminster, Thomas, the eldest son and second child, was the grandfather of the President. Solomon gave to the eldest daughter the name of his mother, Rebecca; to the eldest son the name of his father and grandfather, and to the others his own name and those of his two sisters, Hannah and Lucy. Solomon was married in 1766, when he was less than twenty-three years old. He is found dwelling in Westminster in 1770. He probably moved there soon after his marriage.

Solomon started with one of the Westminster Companies, under the command of Capt. Noah Miles, for the scene of action on the alarm of Apr. 19, 1775. The Company left Westminster, thirty miles from Concord, about noon, and did not, of course, arrive in time to take part in the combat that day, but remained eight or ten days at Cambridge. Solomon was Corporal in the Company commanded by Capt. Elisha Jackson, sent from Westminster to reinforce the army at Bennington, September, 1777, and was in service twenty-seven days at that time. The town of Westminster voted unanimously against the Constitution in 1778, and put on record its reasons: "It is our opinion that no constitution whatever ought to be established, till previously thereto a bill of rights be set forth, and the constitution be framed therefrom, so that the lowest capacity may be able to determine his natural rights and judge of the equitableness of the constitution thereby."

Solomon Garfield remained in Westminster as late as Feb. 19, 1785, when his daughter Lucy was born. He moved to Cherry Valley, Otsego County, N. Y., within a few years from that time. From Cherry Valley was set off on the third of March, 1797, Worcester, a small and hilly town in the Southwestern corner of Otsego County, about fifty-six miles from Albany, where Thomas Garfield, the President's grandfather, grew up, and where his father, Abram, was born and married. It is quite possible that the name Worcester may have been given to the new home by Solomon Garfield in memory of his old home.

234. ABRAM⁸ GARFIELD, born Dec. 28, 1799; died May 3, 1833, in Otsego County; married Feb. 3, 1820, ELIZA BALLOU, born Sept. 21, 1801; died January, 1888, aged 87 years, daughter of James and Mehitabel (Ingalls) Ballou, a farmer of Richmond, N. H. James Ballou was a man of rare and peculiar abilities, and was uncommonly well educated. He had large views of God and human destiny. He did not live to be old, having only reached his forty-seventh birthday. His widow is said to have been eminently worthy of her relationship to her departed husband. A log cabin, 18 by 20 feet, containing but one room, was the home to which Abram, only twenty years old, brought his young bride of only nineteen summers, a humble abode, but true love put as much happiness into it as could have been there if it had been a palace.

From the effect of being over-heated by mastering victoriously a terrible forest fire, which brought on him a chill and fever, two days later, in his thirty-fourth year, he passed away. The sorrows, hardships and painful struggles of the widow and children can be but imperfectly imagined, much less described. The venerable mother was always lovingly cared for by her noble son down to the tragic termination of his earthly life; she lived in the home of his widow and children, affectionately fostered till the end of a glorious life.

Children:

The first four were born in the log cabin in Ohio, the fifth, JAMES ABRAM, was born in another log cabin in Orange, Ohio.

235. PRESIDENT JAMES ABRAM⁹ GARFIELD died Sept. 19, 1881, in Long Branch, N. J.; was entombed in Cleveland, Ohio. He had married Nov. 13, 1858, LUCRETIA (RUDOLPH), born Apr. 29, 1832; died in Pasadena, Cal., Mar. 13, 1918, aged eighty-six years. She was the daughter of Zeb and Arabella (Mason) Rudolph, of Hiram, Ohio.

President Garfield was the twentieth President of the United States. Being left fatherless when two years of age, his youth was spent in alternating periods of study at school, and for his own support he had to work on a farm until his seventeenth year, when he left home, and was engaged to drive horses and mules on the towpath of the Ohio Canal; later he was engaged as deck-hand. On returning home, he entered the Geauga Seminary in Chester, Ohio, in his eighteenth year, and began the study of Latin, Greek and Algebra. In 1851 he entered the Western Reserve Eclectic Institute (now Hiram College), in Hiram, Ohio, and in 1854 entered Williams College, Williamstown, Mass. He graduated with high honor in 1856. The same year he became teacher of Latin and Greek in the Institute in Hiram, and a year later was elected as its president. Before entering college, he had united with the Disciples Church, in which he had been brought up, and, according to the order of that denomination, though never ordained to the ministry, he often preached.

In 1858 he entered his name as a student of law with a firm in Cleveland, and, though his studies were carried on by himself at Hiram, he was admitted to the Bar in 1861. Having taken some part as a Republican in the campaign, he was in 1859 elected to represent the Counties of Portage and Summitt in the State Senate. In August, 1861, he was appointed Lieutenant Colonel of Volunteers, and in September, Colonel, and in December he had to report for duty to General Buell, in Louisville, Ky., and was given the command of a Brigade of four Regiments of Infantry, to repel the Confederates under General Marshall from the valley of the Big Sandy River.

PRESIDENT GARFIELD

He was a Member of Congress from 1863–1880. In January, 1880, he was elected by the Ohio Legislature to the United States Senate. On Mar. 16, 1866, he served as a member of the Committee on Ways and Means. In 1871–75, he served as Chairman of the Committee on Appropriations. In this capacity he introduced many important reforms. He was elected President in 1880 and inaugurated Mar. 4, 1881. He was shot July 2, 1881, in the railway station in Washington by Charles J. Guiteau (a man whose vanity had been offended, and whose unbalanced brain had been excited by the dissensions in the Republican Party). He died Sept. 19, 1881, in Elberon, N. J.

APPENDIX II.

THE LITHGOW FAMILY

Judge William Lithgow, the father of Col. Arthur Lithgow, the husband of Martha⁶ Bridge, prominent in the early settlement on the Kennebec, near the junction of the Sebasticut and Kennebec rivers, Me., was the only son of Robert Lithgow, a gentleman of Scotch descent, his ancestors having fled from Scotland at the time of the Rebellion, who emigrated from Ireland to Halifax, Nova Scotia, and thence to Boston at an early day. He was born in Boston prior to 1713, for he died in Georgetown, Me., Dec. 20, 1798, aged 86 years. In early life he was a gunsmith, and probably employed at some of the Eastern forts in the line of his profession. He was attached to the garrison of St. George's Fort at the age of nineteen years. He was early in command of Fort Richmond, from which he was transferred to Fort Halifax in 1754, at which time he had been twenty years in the employment of the Government. He continued at Fort Halifax for some years after the war, engaged in trade with the Indians, and became possessed of considerable property. Before the Revolution, he removed to Georgetown, Me., where he purchased a farm and erected a conspicuous house in which he dwelt for the remainder of his days.

He was a Magistrate for many years, and was Judge of the Court of Common Pleas, at the organization of Lincoln County in 1760 and was a Judge of the same Court in November, 1775, which office he held through the Revolutionary period. It was said of him that "he possessed a fine natural disposition, was facetious, had pleasant manners, and was exceedingly hospitable in his home to rich and poor." This was a characteristic of all his family who were remarkable for their gentle and elegant deportment.

Before 1746, he married SARAH NOBLE, one of nine children, daughter of Col. Arthur Noble, who was killed while in command of the English troops in the Battle of Minas, Nova Scotia, Jan. 31, 1747. She died in Georgetown, Me., Nov. 11, 1807, aged 82 years.

Colonel Noble is said to have been born in Enniskillen, Ulster, Ireland. He came to America, perhaps with, or certainly not many years after, Robert Lithgow. He was commissioned Lieutenant Colonel of Colonel Waldo's Regiment to be raised for the expedition to reduce Louisburg. That fort was the strongest on our continent. The French cruisers, whom it protected, were a sad annoyance to our fishing vessels. Within fifty-six days, the Provinces raised forty-three hundred men for the reduction. Waldo was made Brigadier General, and gave about a fourth of his command in charge to Colonel Noble.

The fall of Louisburg, June 17, 1745, excited the fears of the French lest they should lose all Canada. They accordingly sent out from Brest, in the following year, the most powerful fleet that had been raised for North America. They intended with this fleet to retake Louisburg, then to capture Annapolis, to destroy Boston, and to lay waste as much as possible of the coast as they proceeded to the West Indies. But a tedious voyage of ninety days, a severe storm that destroyed many a ship, sickness, the lateness of the season, the death of the commander, followed by that of the vice-admiral, all conspired to force them to give up their plan of recapture.

In November, 1746, Governor Shirley of Massachusetts, who had in charge the management of Nova Scotia, was induced to send out a thousand New England troops to quarter in Acadia, and so to harass the inhabitants that they should find it convenient, taking their families with them, to abandon the Province. This was nine years before the expulsion which is celebrated by Mr. Longfellow in his "Evangeline."

That Colonel Noble had done yeoman service in the taking of Louisburg in the previous year is shown otherwise, and also by his appointment to lead this expedition in the heart of winter, for it was a peculiarly laborious and perilous enterprise.

He sailed in December, and conducted his little army by land, heroically and wisely, over ridges and through deep snows, along the border of the Bay of Fundy and of the basin of Minas, one hundred and fifty miles up from the entrance of the bay. The tides here are prodigious. Spring tides are of seventy feet height. "With the large volume of water from nineteen rivers, and the monstrous fall of the tide, the current at half tide is fearful. The great fall loosens any ice formed at the mouth of the rivers, and these ice floes grow continually heavier from the excessive cold, as they drive up and down the bay, for, by the time the wind has driven them down to the entrance of the ocean, the tide bears them back again." So no enemy was to be feared by the sea, nor in their rear.

And the appearance of a foe by land from the north and Prince Edward Island, through snow two or three feet deep on the level for more than a hundred miles, seemed as little to be feared, especially at the time of a driving storm that had lasted thirty hours.

But the attack came in this latter way, by land, and from Prince Edward Island. On Jan. 31, 1747, Colonel Noble was at Grand Pre with a detachment of five hundred men. At two o'clock in the morning the officers' quarters were nearly all surrounded at the same time, the troops being quartered in houses scattered over a space of a mile and a quarter's length. Seventy were killed, sixty taken prisoners. Several were wounded. Noble's quarters were the first attacked. He had received two wounds, but, after that, he returned three times the enemy's fire, in his shirt, before he was shot dead. Bravery and self-possession characterized his death, as fidelity and resolute perseverance and endurance had marked his life.

For a full account of this heroic man, of whose history little is known, see Collections of the Maine Historical Society, Vol. VIII, Art. II.

Robert Lithgow, the eldest son of Judge Lithgow, was a sea captain. During the Revolutionary War he sailed in his father's vessel, which he commanded, for the West Indies, but was never heard from afterwards.

James Noble Lithgow, another son, resided in Dresden. He married Ann, only daughter of John Gardiner, of Pownalborough, who was a son of Dr. Sylvester Gardiner, and a lawyer of celebrity. Their son, Llewellyn W. Lithgow, resided in Augusta. Their daughter, Louisa, died in 1824, aged 26 years.

Gen. William Lithgow, Jr., the most distinguished of Judge Lithgow's sons, studied law. In the Revolution he entered the army as Major of a Massachusetts Regiment, and was wounded on the retreat from Ticonderoga in 1777, for which he received a pension. He was an honorary aide-de-camp to General Washington. He was at the surrender of Burgoyne, and his likeness is in Trumbull's painting of that event which hangs in the rotunda of the Capitol at Washington. After the war he commenced the practice of law in Pownalborough, and became Major General in the Militia in 1787. He was the first lawyer who established himself north of Pownalborough. President Washington appointed him as District Attorney for the Maine District at its foundation in 1789. This office he held for five years, when, on account of ill health, he resigned and surrendered his military commission. He was twice Senator for Lincoln County in the General Court of Massachusetts. He was esteemed a good lawyer, eloquent and forceful and was remarkable for his noble figure, manly beauty and accomplished manners. He died at the age of forty-six on Feb. 16, 1796.

SIXTH GENERATION FROM JOHN BRIDGE

176. MARTHA⁶ BRIDGE (169. *Edmund*⁵, *Samuel*⁴, *Matthew*³, *Matthew*², *John*¹), born in Lexington (or Pownalborough), Me., April, 1768; died in Charlestown, Mass., Apr. 6, 1852, aged 84 years; married COL. ARTHUR, ninth child of Col. William and Sarah (Noble) Lithgow, born in Kennebunk County, Me., Dec. 25, 1751; died in Roxbury, Mass., Aug. 11 or 14, 1835, aged 75 years. She was a noble-hearted, cheerful, excellent woman, having many of the characteristics of her mother, who was a Bowman, remarkable for a shrewdness, energy and intelligence, which she seems to have transmitted to very many of her descendants. Colonel Lithgow early engaged in trade in Winslow, Me. In 1799 he became High Sheriff of Kennebec County and removed to Augusta, Me., holding that office until 1809. When he first moved to Augusta he built the mansion house where he resided until he lost his office, when he moved to a farm, living there a number of years. Afterwards he removed to Boston and was appointed to the office of Weigher and Measurer in the Custom House, which office he held until 1829. He became a Colonel in the Militia of Maine; was a popular Sheriff, portly in person, hospitable and generous, though with favorable opportunities he failed to accumulate much property.

SEVENTH GENERATION

241. ARTHUR⁷ LITHGOW (176. *Col. Arthur Lithgow and Martha*⁶ *Bridge, Edmund*⁵, *Samuel*⁴, *Matthew*³, *Matthew*², *John*¹), born in Augusta, Me., Dec. 25, 1789; died in Puerto Plata, Santo Domingo, Nov. 13, 1867, aged 78 years; married ANA MARIA, daughter of Aristede de Peligrin, born in Marseilles, France, July 17, 1813; died in Puerto Plata, Oct. 7, 1886, aged 73 years.

He was a merchant and for twenty-five years United States Consul to Hayti. At the Spanish evacuation in 1863, he and his son William, in earnest to protect, even at the risk of their lives, the American interests, were the last to leave the place. "His house was completely perforated by shot and shell."

- iv. MARTHA BRIDGE, twin to Phoebe, b. July 26, 1826; d. in New York City, Apr. 18, 1831.

243. JANE CAROLINE⁷ LITHGOW (176. *Martha*⁶ Bridge, *Edmund*⁵, *Samuel*⁴, *Matthew*³, *Matthew*², *John*¹), born in Winslow, Me., July 16, 1795; died Feb. 9, 1874, aged 79 years; married Oct. 12, 1815, RICHARD, son of David and Elizabeth (Goodwin) Devens of Charlestown, Mass., born Sept. 2, 1784; died Oct. 28, 1847. The History of Charlestown calls Jane Caroline "a remarkably energetic and intelligent woman," and also says, "how to entertain elegantly was never a secret to the family". "The first fair in Charlestown was held in the parlors of Mrs. Devens for the benefit of the Sunday School of the Unitarian Society, and all benevolent work in town found encouragement and ready help from the occupants of this home." Three of their daughters married naval officers. Mr. Richard Devens was a merchant and ship-owner. Several vessels, such as the Heraclide, Cabinet and Commissary, were built for him and his brother Samuel. He was a director of the Bunker Hill National Bank; was a member of the House of Representatives in 1819, 1820, 1822.

Before the War of the Revolution the grandfather of Mr. Devens (named also Richard) was a prominent citizen of Charlestown. He became Commissary General of the Patriot Army; was a member of the Provincial Congress and of the Committee of Public Safety. He was a Selectman and Representative to the Legislature. He died February, 1792, aged 86 years. Most of his property was given by will to religious institutions. His residence was opposite the head of his wharf, near the spot where Paul Revere was furnished with a horse by Deacon Larkin for his famous ride to Lexington and Concord.

David, the eldest son of Commissary Devens, was a merchant. He was the father of Samuel and Richard Devens and of David and Charles Devens, who were prominent citizens of Charlestown. David, to whom a part of the wharf property was given by his grandfather, and who afterwards acquired all of it, continued its management for many years. He was Town Treasurer for almost a quarter of a century and for thirty years was one of the Board of Directors of the Bunker Hill Bank, twenty of which years he was its president. He was also one of the original members of the Unitarian Society; one of the first Vice-Presidents of the Warren Institution of Savings, and a Director in the Charlestown Mutual Fire Insurance Co. He died in August, 1855.

245. FRANCES⁷ LITHGOW (176. *Col. Arthur Lithgow and Martha*⁶ Bridge, *Edmund*⁵, *Samuel*⁴, *Matthew*³, *Matthew*², *John*¹), born in Augusta, Me., Dec. 8, 1800; died suddenly of heart disease, in England, Oct. 20, 1877, aged 77 years; married Dec. 19, 1821, JOHN LARKIN, son of Phillips and Ruth (Larkin) Payson of Cambridge, Mass. John Larkin, father of Ruth, was a very successful East India merchant of Charlestown. During the Revolution he moved to Cambridge, lived in the house later occupied by General Washington and still later by the poet-professor, Henry W. Longfellow, the well-known Craigie House, built on a part of the John Bridge estate. (See Introduction.)

The Payson Genealogy is so wonderfully interesting and the Payson family has had such a remarkable influence, not only in this country, but in Europe, that we are glad to insert a bit of the history here. These Payson records have been furnished us by Lieut. Col. F. L. Payson, U. S. A., retired, of whom more later on. The first record of the name, in England, is of Stephen and Christiana Peysson (A.D. 1301), who owned the manor of Berghly, Lincolnshire. There were three branches on record in 1550. The names of Pawson and Payson appear on the records in the Nazing Essex Church Register interchangeably. Among the sturdy men who followed Winthrop and Hooker to the new world seeking freedom of worship from the restrictions of Archbishop Laud, and also new farm lands to cultivate, came Edward Payson, a boy of eighteen, of Nazing, who soon established himself in the new colony. He is thought to have come over in the ship Lion in 1631, with the Rev. John Eliot and his sister. The Eliots were an old English family; Rev. Philip and Rev. John were Oxford graduates. Edward Payson was born in 1613; died in 1691, aged 78 years. He was admitted to the Church in Roxbury in 1634 and made Freeman in 1640. In 1643 he married MARY ELIOT, sister of the Rev. John Eliot, "Apostle to the Indians," just mentioned, by whom he had eleven children; later, for fear of the Indians, they moved to Dorchester. His son, Rev. Edward Payson, graduated at Harvard College in 1677. His youngest son, Samuel, was born in 1662; died in 1721; married MARY, daughter of Rev. Samuel Phillips of Rowley. He lived in Dorchester and had eleven children. His son, Rev. Phillips Payson, M.A. (Harvard College 1724), preached in Walpole, Mass. for forty-seven years, and had seven children; his son, Rev. Samuel Phillips Payson, D.D., Edinboro (Harvard College 1754), was pastor in Chelsea, Mass., forty-four years. He took an active part in the battle of Bunker Hill, helping, among other things, to capture a British ammunition train. He was offered the Presidency of Harvard College but declined it on account of his wife's health. His half-brother, Seth Payson, was the father of the famous saintly Dr. Edward Payson of Portland, Me., the father of Elizabeth Payson Prentice, author of "Stepping Heavenward," and other books. More babies in the United States were said to have been christened "Edward Payson" than with any other name except that of George Washington. Phillips Payson, son of Rev. S. Phillips Payson, the father of John Larkin, was graduated from Harvard College, A.B. in 1778.

John Larkin Payson was born in 1797; died in Eastbourne, England, Apr. 18, 1884, aged 87 years; graduated Harvard College 1817, in the class which included Caleb Cushing, as well as George Bancroft and other distinguished men. He traveled abroad for his health, and decided to live in Messina, Sicily. He was made American Consul there in 1827, continuing in service until 1845. He was distinguished for hospitality, especially to our naval officers in the Mediterranean. Although so much a resident abroad, his attachment to his native country was very deep. He took the greatest interest in the suppression of the Rebellion, and his benefactions for the support of the soldiers received the warm thanks of Governor Andrew of Massachusetts. In Messina he did a large business exporting Sicilian products to Boston, and was the agent for "Barings," the English bankers. He retired while still young; tried living in Boston, then in New York, but found England best for his health. He spent the last fourteen years of his life in Leamington and Eastbourne. He was tall in figure, stately and courteous, a deep student of affairs, and was of strong religious feeling. His loss even at his advanced age was deeply felt by all who knew him.

Mrs. Payson was a handsome woman, and of great culture. When presented at the Neapolitan Court, she was called "La bella Americana." She was a wonderful chess player. They had thirteen children, all born in Sicily, but only four reached maturity.

247. HON. WASHINGTON⁸ LITHGOW (241. *Arthur*⁷, *Martha*⁶ Bridge, *Edmund*⁵, *Samuel*⁴, *Matthew*³, *Matthew*², *John*¹), was born in Puerto Plata, Santo Domingo, July 4, 1840. In 1865 he, then living in Charlestown, Mass., was chosen to serve on the School Committee. Through the Civil War he had done, young as he was, efficient service to the country. In 1880, he was President of the Republican State Convention of New Jersey; has been Consul-General from Santo Domingo at New York, and Vice-Consul of the United States in Puerto Plata and Consul General of Hayti in Puerto Plata in the seventies and eighties. With his brother William, he owned one of the largest central sugar factories in the world, having the capacity of eight thousand tons. He owned also the first railway built on the island. He has been four times elected President of the Common Council in Puerto Plata. During his first term, 1888, he had the streets made, Puerto Plata being the first town in Santo Domingo to have real streets. He also organized the schools and opened a boys' and also a girls' high school. His last term began in 1912. He served six years. During this time occurred the American occupation of Santo Domingo and the bombardment of the fort in Puerto Plata. Washington Lithgow used his influence quite effectively to adjust matters between Americans and Dominicans. The oldest social club there is the "Club di Commercio." It has always been the best of its kind and still holds its honored place. Washington Lithgow was the principal founder and has been its president twenty times. Because he is gifted with a powerful brain and tender heart and has given of both lavishly, his age is crowned with goodly memories. He is living in 1924, aged 84 years.

He married (I), in Charlestown, Mass., June 17, 1863, ELLEN PRENTISS, daughter of William and Ellen (Prentiss) Peirce, of Andover, Mass. She died April, 1885; (II), in 1887, MARIA ALTAGRACIA, daughter of George Lithgow and Mercedes Sigollen.

248. FREDERICK⁸ LITHGOW (241. *Arthur*⁷, *Martha*⁶ Bridge, *Edmund*⁵, *Samuel*⁴, *Matthew*³, *Matthew*², *John*¹), born in Santo Domingo, April 10, 1842; died in 1910. When the Dominicans rose against the Spanish rule, his sympathies were with them in their desire for independence. He enlisted in the country's service as a volunteer. Fidelity and energy soon raised him to a Colonel's rank. Thence he was passed to the honor of General of Division, the highest office in the Dominican Army. He was also Minister of Foreign Affairs, and for years was Military and Civil Governor of the District of Puerto Plata. In 1880, he was nominated for

President of Santo Domingo, but declined the honor. He was always a leader in the Liberal and Reform Party. He married SOFIA ARZENO, daughter of José Maria Arzeno and Gertrudis Weston, both much beloved for their goodness and charity.

249. GEORGE⁸ LITHGOW (241. *Arthur*⁷, *Martha*⁶ Bridge, *Edmund*⁵, *Samuel*⁴, *Matthew*³, *Matthew*², *John*¹), born April 19, 1845; died July 6, 1915, aged 70 years; married Feb. 11, 1868, in Santo Domingo, MARIA MERCEDES SIGOLLEN, b. in Santiago de los Caballeros; she was noted for her beauty. She died Aug. 22, 1890. He was associated with his brother Washington on the sugar estate.

In a country of frequent revolutions it is difficult to find facts in relation to any thing or person. George Lithgow was honored by the President of the Dominican Republic for a very brave action that enabled the garrison of Puerto Plata, that was besieged in the fort and would have surrendered for want of water, to hold on. He was Captain of the Port at the time, and the Pilot and marines followed him to the fort, taking their boats with them; with six marines in a boat, he crossed the harbor in the face of the enemy; and, although the boat was riddled with the rifle balls, not a man was hurt and the garrison was saved.

Children:

- i. MARIA ALTAGRACIA⁹ LITHGOW, b. Nov. 30, 1868; m. in 1887, WASHINGTON LITHGOW, of Puerto Plata.

250. WILLIAM⁸ LITHGOW (241. *Arthur*⁷, *Martha*⁶ Bridge, *Edmund*⁵, *Samuel*⁴, *Matthew*³, *Matthew*², *John*¹), born Mar. 24, 1847; died June, 1888. At his father's death, though he was only twenty-one years old, William was appointed Vice-Consul of the United States. This place he continued to hold for several years. His home, as well as the Consulate, was always open during the frequent revolutions incident to the forming republic, as an asylum to the proscribed. At the risk of his life, he saved many eminent men by the protection of the American flag. He organized the First National Bank of Santo Domingo, and continued from the first its president until his death. For three years he was Judge of the Court of Commerce. He was partner with his brother Washington in their very extensive sugar works. Sugar prices went down so suddenly in 1886-7 that the Lithgow brothers were unfortunate, and lost all of their property.

He married (I), Mar. 24, 1867, in Santo Domingo, ANA LUISA ALLONZO, who died July 26, 1879; (II), May 27, 1882, AMELIA ARZENO.

Sept. 5, 1853; d. Oct. 25, 1905, in Boston. He was an expert accountant; an ex-member of the well-known 7th Regiment, New York City. He held a commission as Colonel in the Dominican Republic for services rendered in 1875. He was also foreign correspondent for H. K. Thurber and Company of New York City.

Children:

- i. JOSEPHINE CAROLINE⁹ LITHGOW, b. in Boston, Feb. 7, 1883; m. Dec. 21, 1904, JOSEPH PRINCE, JR., son of Joseph Prince and Ellen Maria (Hall) Hawes, b. in Boston, Oct. 2, 1851. His father was a well-known East India merchant in Boston, originally "from the Cape" (Cape Cod), as were so many of the old Boston families.

He entered business with his father, then went into business as a commission merchant and broker; also was an importer of nitrates and potash, and raw materials for fertilizers. He was a member of the Union Club, was considered quite a yachtsman; had Masonic as well as sports club affiliations, including being one of the founders of the famous sporting club of its day, the Cribb Club, of which John Boyle O'Reilly was president. He is also a member of the "Hasty Pudding," ΔKE, and ΑΔ Clubs of Harvard University. He entered the class of 1873, but left to enter business. No children.

252. MARTHA⁸ LITHGOW DEVENS (243. Jane Caroline⁷ Lithgow, Col. Arthur Lithgow and Martha⁶ Bridge, Edmund⁵, Samuel⁴, Matthew³, Matthew², John¹), born in Charlestown, Mass., Aug. 15, 1816; died in Jamaica Plain, Boston, May 23, 1900, aged 84 years; married Oct. 12, 1836, LIEUT. ALBERT EDWARD, son of Jesse and Naomi (Taunt) Downes, born Nov. 13, 1805. He was the youngest of eleven children, the oldest being Comm. John Downes, United States Navy. Lieutenant Downes was drowned and all on board, May 20, 1843, when the United States Ship, The Grampus, went down off the coast. They resided in Charlestown, in the old Devens' homestead, which was directly opposite the Commandant's house in the Navy Yard, where their children were born.

Children born in Charlestown:

- i. CAROLINE LITHGOW⁹ DOWNES, b. Sept. 8, 1837; m. July 15, 1868, JAMES, son of James and Ella Norah Hoy. He was a paymaster in the United States Navy. She was living in 1914, aged 77 years, with her daughter Nora, in England.

Children:

1. MARTHA¹⁰ HOY, b. in France; m. PIERRE ROGESTVENSKY.
2. ERWIN.
3. NORA, b. in Charlestown; m. CHARLES PIERRE WENZEL.

Doctor Burnham was elected Professor of Surgery in the Worcester Medical Institute, which position he held with great credit to himself for ten years. He served one year during the Civil War, 1862-63, as Surgeon of the famous 6th Mass. Reg. Vols., and during the first nine months lost but thirteen men by sickness from a full regiment of one thousand men, although they were exposed for the whole time to the malaria of the Dismal Swamp of Virginia.

253. CAROLINE⁸ DEVENS (243. *Jane Caroline*⁷, *Col. Arthur Lithgow and Martha*⁶ *Bridge, Edmund*⁵, *Samuel*⁴, *Matthew*³, *Matthew*², *John*¹), born Jan. 30, 1818; married Sept. 3, 1840, LIEUT. CHARLES WILLIAM, eldest son of Comm. Charles and Harriet (Bowen) Morris, United States Navy. He was born in Jamaica Plain, Boston, Sept. 5, 1815. He was appointed Midshipman in the United States Navy, Sept. 12, 1829; Lieutenant, Feb. 25, 1841. During the war with Mexico, in 1846, he was engaged in an expedition against Tobasco, when in the Tolona River, and in a boat under a flag of truce, going to the assistance of a brother officer, he was shot in the neck and mortally wounded. He was taken on board the flagship to the squadron where he died Nov. 1, 1846.

Commodore Morris was in the service of the United States nearly fifty-seven years. It would be impossible to give a sketch of his career on these pages. The Morris Genealogy devotes twenty pages to him. Items as to Commodore (then Captain) Hull, in command of the Constitution, in the famous fight with the Guerrierre, are in our papers of today, which permit us to say that the then Lieutenant Morris was the executive officer, the most important post in a man-of-war next to the Commander, and to him Captain Hull gives generous credit for his "consummate skill and ability." Lieutenant Morris with his own hand lashed the two ships together, and was severely wounded in the fight. He was soon after, in September, promoted for special services, over the heads of some of his seniors in the navy, to the rank of post-captain, and received his commission dated from the day of the surrender of the Guerrierre, Aug. 19, 1812. Three sons and the husbands of three daughters of the Commodore rose to high rank in the service of the United States.

He served under General Custer in 1867 against hostile Indians in Wichitaw Mountains. From 1878-81, he was Professor of Military Art and Science at the Massachusetts Agricultural College, in Amherst, Mass. During the Spanish-American War he served as Major, Seventh Artillery, commanded at Fort Banks, Mass., and Fort Schuyler, N. Y. He reached the rank of Brigadier-General, U. S. A., Apr. 29, 1908, and retired from active service May 3, 1908. At the time of the San Francisco earthquake he was in command at the Presidio, and at once prepared his troops, awaiting news to go into the city; he received same within two hours, and with about fourteen hundred men kept order for hours until reinforced from Mare Island.

Immediately after leaving college he entered upon the study of the law in the office of his father in Portland, and was admitted to the Bar three years later, May, 1893. Shortly afterwards he became a member of the firm of Clifford, Verrill & Clifford.

He early displayed a great interest in politics, always on the Democratic side. After filling various minor offices he was in 1905 elected mayor of Portland, and re-elected the following year, this event being the first instance in the history of the city where a Democrat had been his own immediate successor.

He was a member of the Cumberland Club of Portland, of the Maine Historical Society, of the Maine Genealogical Society, and was at one time Vice-President of the Harvard Club in Maine, Director of the Harvard Alumni Association, Vice-President of the New England Federation of Harvard Clubs, and a member of various other organizations.

257. HON. CHARLES⁸ DEVENS (244. *Mary Lithgow*⁷, *Martha*⁶ Bridge and *Col. Arthur Lithgow, Edmund*⁵, *Samuel*⁴, *Matthew*³, *Matthew*², *John*¹), born in Charlestown, Mass., Apr. 4, 1820; graduated at Harvard College in 1838 at the age of eighteen, James Russell Lowell and William W. Story being among his classmates. He received the degree of LL.B. from the Harvard Law School in 1840, and was admitted to the Bar in 1841. He was elected to the State Senate, and served in 1848-49; became United States Marshal for the District of Massachusetts, serving for the years 1849-53.

During this period, Mr. Devens was conscientiously compelled to do the most sorrowful act of his life, to contradict all the emotions of justice, of humanity, and of human justice, by returning to slavery one Sims, a slave belonging in Georgia, who had escaped to Boston in April, 1851. The obligations which rested upon him by reason of the superior authority to execute the laws of the land, led him to the act which was entirely obnoxious to him as a man.

Retiring from the office of United States Marshal, he resumed his law practice. On the outbreak of the Civil War, Mr. Devens was commissioned, Apr. 16, 1861, as Major in a Massachusetts Rifle Battalion, speedily becoming Colonel of the 15th Regiment of Massachusetts Volunteers. During his military service, he was wounded several times, and was at the front in the fierceness of combat in many engagements. Before the arrival of Colonel Baker, he commanded at Ball's Bluff, and again after that officer's death. In April, 1862, he was commissioned Brigadier-General; served on the Peninsula; was wounded at Fair Oaks; was in the battles of South Mountain, and Antietam and Chancellorsville. His achievements were highly commended by the highest authorities. He was continually engaged in the Richmond Campaign of 1864-65, and in December, 1864, he was in temporary command of the 24th Army Corps. In April, 1865, he was breveted Major General of Volunteers. At the close of the war, he still continued in service for a year, being mustered out in 1866. Returning to Boston in 1867, he was appointed a Justice of the Superior Court, and speedily, in 1873, to the higher position of the Supreme Judicial Court. He became Attorney-General in the Cabinet of President Hayes, in March, 1877, when Harvard College conferred the degree of LL.D. In April, 1881, he returned to Massachusetts and was reappointed to the Supreme Judicial Court by Governor Long, remaining in that office until his death, which occurred on Jan. 7, 1891, aged 71 years. He was buried with Military honor, the burial service being read by the Rev. Phillips Brooks, D.D., who later was ordained a Bishop of the Protestant Episcopal Church. His remains were interred in the family lot in Mount Auburn

HON. CHARLES DEVENS
Attorney-General of the United States, 1877-1881

Cemetery. A memorial service was held by the Massachusetts Commandery of the Loyal Legion on Mar. 19, 1891, in the Boston Music Hall. The tribute was paid by Gen. Rutherford B. Hayes, Commander in Chief (President Hayes), and the eulogy by Gen. Francis A. Walker.

Hon. Charles Devens' fame is three-fold. He was an orator, a judge, and a general. His figure was erect and commanding, his head intellectual, his countenance genial, and his eye luminous, a man of dignity, and yet of suavity. He remained a confirmed bachelor, acquainted with all social accomplishments, which made him extremely welcome in the most cultured and refined circles of society. Judge Devens came to the high judicial positions which he occupied, easily and naturally, and returned to his judgeship in Massachusetts very properly after retiring from the Attorney-Generalship of the United States. He will long be remembered in Boston for the course he took in freeing the slave whom, as United States Marshal, he had aided in returning to his Southern master, when his official duty compelled him to violate his human feelings, for he took the first opportunity to show how deep and true to the best of nature was his humanity.

A true patriot and a descendant from one of the heroes of Bunker Hill, it was appropriate that in due time he should serve as president of the Bunker Hill Monument Association, and one of his most notable addresses was given by him on the Centennial Anniversary of the Battle of Bunker Hill, in 1875. Another was at the dedication of the Soldiers' Monument on Boston Common, in September, 1878. He was a popular speaker, an orator of solid intellectual quality, and was especially popular in giving historical and commemorative addresses.

Those who were present at the unveiling of the Bridge Statue on Cambridge Common, in 1882, will gladly recall the address which he gave on that occasion, on John Bridge, the Puritan, which was published by the City of Cambridge as a part of the printed Proceedings of the Acceptance and Unveiling of the Statue of John Bridge, the Puritan. (See this in the supplement.)

General Devens was a partner of United States Senator, George F. Hoar, their law office being in Worcester, Mass. It was a kind of Damon and Pythias friendship, between these two great men of Massachusetts. Senator Hoar said of him, "I think he was unsurpassed in this country, in the generation to which he belonged in native gifts of oratory. He had a fine voice, of great compass and power, a graceful dignified presence."

He never married, but he lavished on his relatives, as a life-long friend of him said, "the love he would have given to wife and children; he was a devoted son and brother, and his younger relatives were very dear to him."

258. ARTHUR LITHGOW⁸ DEVENS (244. *Mary Lithgow*⁷, *Martha Bridge*⁶, *Edmund*⁵, *Samuel*⁴, *Matthew*³, *Matthew*², *John*¹), born in Charlestown, Mass., Apr. 27, 1821; died July 22, 1867; married July 20, 1852, AGNES HOWARD, daughter of Abijah and Anne Maria (Howard) White, of Watertown, Mass.; died in 1914. Harvard College 1840, LL.B., educated at the Law School and admitted to the Bar, 1842; practiced law for seven or eight years; became agent for the Otis Manufacturing Company for several years; moved to Boston and became partner in the house of J. W. Paige & Company, of Boston; afterwards Treasurer of Hamilton and Appleton Manufacturing Companies.

Children:

1. CLAIRE MORTON¹⁰ PRINCE, b. in Boston, Dec. 19, 1885; m. June 7, 1904, in Boston, COL. ROGER, son of Hon. Roger and Edith (Prescott) Wolcott, b. in Milton, Mass., July 25, 1877. He graduated: A.B., Harvard, 1899; LL.B., Harvard University Law School, 1902; entered the Law Department, Boston Elevated Railway, 1902-6. During the following four years he tried hundreds of tort and criminal cases, and when he left the Elevated was in charge of all its lower court work. In July, 1906, he resigned and set up for himself in independent general practice at 60 State Street, Boston, where he has been ever since.

He served as a private in the 1st Massachusetts Heavy Artillery, United States Volunteers, 1898, afterward as private, corporal, second and first lieutenant, captain and regimental adjutant 1st Heavy Artillery and as lieutenant-colonel and inspector-general on the General Staff, M.V.M., retiring as colonel, Sept. 1, 1910. Shortly after the adjournment of the Legislature in 1917 he was commissioned Major of Infantry, United States Army, and placed in charge of the Draft in Massachusetts. He was offered a commission of Major and Judge Advocate, United States Army, which he declined, and was discharged May 8, 1919. Before the United States entered the World War he was Vice-President of the New England Italian Relief Fund and Treasurer of the Friends of Poland, and throughout the war was a member of the Massachusetts Committee of Public Safety. He has served fourteen years on Milton Republican Town Committee, eleven as treasurer, one year as secretary of the Republican Club of Massachusetts; one year as secretary and two as president of the Roosevelt Club of Massachusetts. He served in the House of Representatives from 1909 until 1912, being Clerk of the Committee on Railroads, and Chairman of the Committees on Street Railways, House Elections, Constitutional Amendments, recess and special committees.

In 1917 he was again in the Legislature, serving on the Committee on the Judiciary and was re-elected without opposition to the House of 1918, but did not qualify, owing to taking charge of the Draft; was elected an Overseer of Harvard University in 1921, and has served as chairman of the committee to visit the Department of Botany; is now chairman of the Executive Committee and of the Committees to visit the Arnold Arboretum and the Botanic Garden.

The list of organizations to which he has belonged is long, including the Boston and Massachusetts Bar Associations, Director Lowell Machine Shop, Everett Mills, York Manufacturing Company and Lawrence Manufacturing Company, Provident Institution for Savings, Suffolk Savings Bank, United Spanish War Veterans, American Legion, Military Order of the World War, National Security League, Military Historical Society, Massachusetts Military Efficiency Association, Society of Colonial War, Society of the Cincinnati Loyal Legion, Perkins Institute for the Blind, Old South Association, Metropolitan Mutual Aid Association, Associated Charities, Prison Association, Milton Education and Historic Societies, Club of Odd Volumes, Harvard, Union and Somerset Clubs of Boston.

Colonel Wolcott's father was Lieutenant-Governor of Massachusetts for three years; then Governor for the succeeding three years, 1897-99, much beloved by every one in the State; died Dec. 21, 1900, in the prime of life. His statue has been placed in the State House by popular subscriptions from over forty thousand people. He was a great grandson of General Oliver Wolcott, Governor of Connecticut and a Brigadier-General in the Revolutionary War.

Mrs. Edith (Prescott) Wolcott is granddaughter of William Hickling Prescott, the historian, who was a grandson of Col. William Prescott, the Commander of the American Troops at the Battle of Bunker Hill.

260. FRANCES RUTH⁸ PAYSON (245. *Frances*⁷ Lithgow, *Col. Arthur Lithgow and Martha*⁶ *Bridge, Edmund*⁵, *Samuel*⁴, *Matthew*³, *Matthew*², *John*¹), born in Sicily, Jan. 10, 1826; died Jan. 15, 1912, aged 86 years; married Apr. 10, 1844, at the British Legation in Florence, Italy, the REV. JAMES GRANTHAM, son of the Rev. Francis Joseph Faithfull, Rector for thirty-six years at Hatfield, Herts, England, born May 1, 1817; died in 1872. After being curate to his father, was successively rector of two parishes in Herts; travelled widely with the late Lord Salisbury, Prime Minister. He had a remarkable gift for sketching in pencil; some twenty volumes of his drawings in all parts of the world remain. He suffered from asthma. Mrs. Faithfull was a woman of great culture and splendid mind, wide knowledge and deep religious faith; tall and handsome, and of a sweet, unselfish nature. Her great interest was in Foreign Missions. She retained to the last her love of Italy and Sicily, where her girlhood was spent. She was buried with her husband, in the same grave, at Broxbourne, Herts.

Three children reached maturity:

- i. FRANCES LITHGOW PAYSON⁹ FAITHFULL, b. Feb. 5, 1845; d. Jan. 10, 1890; buried at Bristol; m. January, 1880, REGINALD, son of Rev. John and Elizabeth (Upton) Fanshawe, Fellow of New College, Oxford, and Professor of Moral Philosophy and the Classics in University College, Bristol, England. She was a very cultivated, able woman. Drew in water colours. Upon the death of his wife, her husband published a book of verses, of deep feeling, "Two Lives," highly commended. He also published (1) "Undercurrent and Afterglow," an Elogy of England, under the nom de plume, Maurice Arden; (2) "Corydon, an Elogy," Matthew Arnold and Oxford. He lives at Parkstone, Dorset (1923).

Children:

Jane is sister to the distinguished Hugh McNeile, Dean of Ripon. James Arthur was Vicar of Holy Trinity, Leicester, and of Holy Trinity, Scarborough, and of St. Mary Magdalene Highbury (London), and Rector of St. Mary's Whitechapel. Buried in London. An ancestor of Alexander, an Englishman, received a grant of land for his services at the siege of Derry. This land his grandsons still hold. James Arthur went into business with his uncle, Frank Payson, in New York City; then went to University College, Oxford. Was the only man of his year to get a First Class in the Honour School of Theology. He was an admirable preacher, and much loved as a parish clergyman; was examining chaplain to Bishop Ryle of Liverpool. The widow lives at Exmouth with her nieces, Caroline and Eleanor Mabel Storr. No children.

261. CHARLES⁸ PAYSON (245. Frances⁷ Lthgow, Col. Arthur Lithgow and Martha⁶ Bridge, Edmund⁵, Samuel⁴, Matthew³, Matthew², John¹), born in Messina, Sicily, May 2, 1837; married in Madison, Wis., June 5, 1872, FANNY, daughter of Hon. Cadwallader C. and Jeannette (Garr) Washburn, Governor of Wisconsin, born in New York City, Mar. 23, 1852. Charles was in the Boston Latin School from 1851 to 1855; A.B., Trinity College, Cambridge, England, 1861; Second Lieutenant, Massachusetts Cavalry, 1862; severely wounded, while Aide-de-Camp for General Devens at the Battle of Cold Harbor, 1864; brevetted Captain for distinguished gallantry on the field; honorably discharged from United States Service, May 16, 1865; Librarian of Department of State in Washington, June 1, 1870; appointed by President Hayes, Third Assistant Secretary of State, Apr. 26, 1878; Charge d' Affaires de Denmark, by President Garfield, July 1, 1881. They were very popular hosts, but after a few years in Washington, they made their home in Paris. Mr. Payson was a remarkable chess player and won several prizes for amateurs. He was one of the earliest members of the Metropolitan Club in Washington; was an accomplished scholar and linguist, a courtly gentleman. In 1913, he died at Aix Les Bains, aged 76 years, and was buried in St. Martin's, Vevey, Switzerland.

It is well to call attention to the record of Governor Washburn. He was elected to Congress in 1854, as a Whig and re-elected the two succeeding terms, when he declined re-election. On the breaking out of the War of the Rebellion, he entered the Service as Colonel of the Second Wisconsin Cavalry, in 1861. He was made Brigadier General, June, 1862, and Major General, November, 1862. He had a brilliant record throughout his Army Service. In 1866, and again in 1868, he was elected to Congress; and was elected Governor of Wisconsin in 1871 for two years. He founded the Washburn Flouring mills of Minneapolis, and amassed a large fortune which he gave generously in public and private donations. The largest, perhaps, of his bequests, was three hundred seventy-five thousand dollars for the Washburn "Home for Orphans," in Minneapolis, to which gift he referred as follows: "I wish to leave some memorial behind me of my devoted mother. I have thought I could do no better than to establish in her memory a home for orphan children." Mrs. Charles Payson is still living (1924), aged 72 years. Residence, Paris, France.

Children born in Washington, D. C.:

- i. EDITH WASHBURN⁹ PAYSON, b. July 24, 1873. Lives in Vevey, Switzerland. Unm.
- ii. JEANNETTE GARR, b. Jan. 9, 1875; m. in Washington, Oct. 28, 1895, RAYMOND LE GHAI, then Secretary of the Belgian Legation, and son of the Belgian Minister to Washington; he has also been Secretary of Legations in Rome, Stockholm and Vienna, then, in 1911, was appointed Minister to Portugal, and from there in 1920 to his present post of Belgian Minister to Vienna.

Children:

1. MARGUERITE¹⁰ LE GHAI, b. in Paris, France, Nov. 21, 1896.
 2. EDOUARD, b. October, 1901. He has finished the Ecole Central, Paris, and is now doing his military service in Belgium.
- iii. FRANCES LITHGOW, b. Jan. 8, 1878; m. in Paris, July 29, 1896, PIERRE BOTKINE, Secretary of the Russian Embassy in Washington. Having graduated at the Petersburg University with Medal, he went to Paris, to the Ecole de Sciences Politiques in preparation of entering Diplomacy. After three years service in the Foreign Office at St. Petersburg, was appointed Secretary to Washington, then to Darmstadt, Sophia, Lisbon, Brussels, London. He was appointed Minister to Tangier, Morocco, in 1907, where he remained until he went to Portugal in 1912. He was Russian Minister to Portugal at Lisbon, when the Russian Revolution broke out. Soon after the breaking out of the Revolution in Russia, Mr. Botkine sent in his resignation to the Foreign Office not wishing to serve the Revolutionary Government who had imprisoned his Sovereign. He is a contributor to "Le Figaro," "Le Gaulois," and several English and Russian papers, his contributions consisting mostly of political articles on Russia. He is a man of ability, of a family of high culture and character. They reside in Riant Chateau, Territet, Switzerland; each will be needed by unhappy Russia when the reaction comes. They have no children. His brilliant brother, Doctor Botkine, was private physician to the Czar and followed him to prison to care for the Royal Family. When the Czar and his family were massacred, Doctor Botkine and their lady in waiting were destroyed with them. Doctor Botkine's son escaped to the United States.

Doctor Botkine, father of these brothers, was one of the most eminent physicians in Europe. He founded the Medical Academy in St. Petersburg, thus forming a Russian School of Medicine, the profession until then being mostly in the hands of Germans. Professor (Dr.) Botkine was the physician and personal friend of Tsar Alexander II. The Botkine family has given many distinguished men to Russia in different branches, Literature, Art and Science.

262. FRANCIS⁸ PAYSON (245. *Frances Lithgow*⁷, *Col. Arthur Lithgow and Martha*⁶ *Bridge, Edmund*⁵, *Samuel*⁴, *Matthew*³, *Matthew*², *John*¹), twin of Charles, born in Messina in the American Consulate, May 2, 1837; was educated at Vevey, Switzerland, and Göttingen, Germany, a classmate of Mr. J. P. Morgan, Sr.; married MARY FARQUHAR, daughter of Charles H. and Ellen Maria (Jones) Dabney, of Dabney, Morgan & Co., now J. P. Morgan & Co. He was an importer of wool from Russia, of the firm of Wood and Payson, New York City; was a member of the Union Club, New York, also of the Riding Club. As a recreation, he used to go to England for fox hunting and was a member of the North Warwickshire Hunt Club, living at Leamington. After many years prosperous business, the "McKinley Bill" ruined his Russian trade and he retired about 1901. He was an affectionate father, a gentleman of the old school. He was splendidly educated and a finished correspondent. After a long ride in 1901, he caught a severe cold, and an unsuccessful operation led to his death, Jan. 20, 1904. He always had the most vigorous health and believed in exercise and especially riding as a panacea. After many years of fashionable life, Mrs. Payson became much interested in Bible study and charitable work. She was one of the "Original Ten" who started the "Society of the King's Daughters." She is still living (1924) in New York, with her daughter, Mrs. Stephen Baker.

ENGLISH RELATIONSHIPS

Search has been made, to some extent, to discover the exact birthplace, in Essex County, England, of John Bridge, the Puritan. The circumstances existing in England, and locally in Essex County, when John Bridge came across the seas, have been quite studiously examined, said investigation leading back directly to 1630 or 1631. The present Editor desired to determine various dates and relationships with persons of the Bridge name in England. A peculiar incident opened the way. An American newspaper presented in its local columns a picture of a Mrs. Bridge, the wife of Mr. Charles Edward Dunscomb Bridge, an attache of the British Embassy at Washington, D. C. I was interested to know about this English officer; wrote him an account of myself and my ancestry and asked him for similar facts concerning himself and his origin. We received a very prompt and gracious answer. He referred me, however, to his uncle, Sir Cyprian Arthur George Bridge, a retired admiral of the British Navy. We opened a correspondence with Sir Cyprian, which has been of a most delightful character. The Admiral sent me his photograph and a most valuable volume entitled "Some Recollections," containing, in one or more chapters, an account, genealogically speaking, of his origin. In this volume, he traces his connections back to Essex County, England, in 1640. This date brings Sir Cyprian's ancestor within ten or a dozen years of the life of John Bridge, the Puritan, in the same County (Essex), England. Sir Cyprian has visited our country, is acquainted with our Bridge antecedents, has looked upon the statue of John Bridge, the Puritan, in Cambridge, and is in hearty sympathy with our investigations as to our Essex County origin.

We have had a most pleasing correspondence with several others bearing our Bridge name in England, all of whom hold high and notable positions in their several lines of intellectual labor, and from some of these we have received valuable data. Up to the present writing, we have not been able to span the ten years intervening between 1630 and 1640, to which dates the Admiral and myself go back in direct lines to our antecedents of the Bridge origin.

I can but think that if time and effort were at command, a diligent investigation on English soil would locate the exact place and other interesting facts which would connect us with our friend across the sea, as the missing link was found connecting the New England and the New York Bridge families and the Ohio Bridge families with the New England family. It is earnestly hoped that this interesting question will be illumined by future investigations.

From Sir Cyprian A. G. Bridge's "Recollections"

SPELLING OF NAMES

"Our name, according to the earliest records of it that we can find, was originally spelled Bruges; and as French was still much spoken in England at the time, it was pronounced — and, indeed, sometimes written — Bruge without the final 's.' In the English pronunciation it became Brudges or Brudge, it being common in English speech to put a 'd' sound before the 'g' of words borrowed from the French; for example, age, page, rage, loge, which we pronounce aidge, paidge, raidge, lodge. In some parts of England a partridge is called a rudge, showing how easily 'i' and 'u' sounds were confused. In the latter part of the fifteenth century, and often in the sixteenth, the name was spelled Bridge, but Bridges sometimes occurred in documents. As a learned Herald has observed, the spelling of surnames in former times was 'accidental.' No one minded very much how he spelt somebody else's name, varying the spelling even in the same document. The owner of a particular surname usually, but not invariably, adhered to one way of spelling it, but his brothers and near relations varied it at their pleasure and indeed seemed purposely to write it differently one from another.

In the case of our name, Bridge and Bridges were often written Brydge and Brydges. I have had letters addressed to me in both of these last two spellings, and many people who are good enough to write to me believe that my surname is Bridges. The great variety in which a name, apparently so simple, can be written is extraordinary. I once made a collection of these varieties and was astonished at the number of them. It has lately been found that all were not included in my collection, as one member of the family, several generations back, beat all records by spelling his name Bredge.

There is reason to believe that the name, as formerly spelled, viz., Bruges, came from the well-known city in Flanders, and was applied by Englishmen to the Flemings who migrated to England a great many years ago. Corroborative of this belief is the fact that the name was sometimes spelled Brugge, the Flemish name of the city above mentioned. The early Flemish settlements here were by no means confined to one part of the country, which accounts for the occurrence of the surname Bridge or Bridges in more than one county, and does not betoken any blood relationship. In some instances, as seems to be the case in Kent, the name came from a place in the county and was borne, when surnames had been generally assumed, by families which lived in, or owned property in, a parish or district so named."

HISTORICAL MEMORANDA

ARNULPH, — fifth and youngest son of ROGER DE MONTGOMERY, first Earl of Arundel and Shrewsbury, — who led the Center of William the Conqueror's Army at the Battle of Hastings, 1066, A.D., following the custom of Cadets in those times, styled himself DE BRUGGE, after his father's castle in Shropshire.

Such is the alleged Norman descent of this family.

The real Founder was one SIR SIMON DE BRUGGE, circa 1250–1302, temp. Henry III and Edward I, who flourished in these reigns and became, by his marriage with the heiress of the Solers family, Lord of Bruge-Solers in Herefordshire. Later on members of this family settled in Essex County and are the ancestors of the Bridge family of Essex.

Members of this family were:

1. SIR JOHN BRIDGES or BRIDGE, Garter-King-at-Arms at Agincourt, 1415.
2. SIR JOHN BRIDGES or BRIDGE, Sheriff of London in reign of Henry VII, circa 1514.
3. SIR JOHN BRUGGES or BRIDGE, Lord Mayor of London, 1520–1521; buried October, 1530 in St. Thomas Hakon or Accon in the city.
4. SIR THOMAS BRIDGES or BRIDGE, Lieutenant of the Tower in the reign of Queen Mary I, 1553.
5. THOMAS BRYDGES, BRIDGES or BRIDGE, created Baron Chandos of Sudeley, by Queen Mary I, in 1554, who gave him the Manor and Castle of Sudeley.

The historian Morant states that Sir John Bridge, or Bridges, Lord Mayor of London 1520, is the ancestor of the family of Bridge in Essex. He is stated to have come from Dymoke, Gloucestershire, a village close to the borders of Herefordshire.

To this Essex family of Bridge is supposed to belong Major-General Tobias Bridge, one of Cromwell's Ironsides, and probably Captain William, R. N., Captain of the Royal Yacht "William and Mary," and buried at Harwich 1743.

Sir Cyprian Arthur George Bridge says, in his volume "Some Recollections":

The Bridge family was prolific. My great-grandfather had eight sons besides daughters. My grandfather had seven children, and my father had nine. This was a characteristic of the family. With its large numbers, it soon spread widely over the County of Essex. There was a Cyprian Bridge in Essex in 1585. One of the Bridge family, in 1648, lived at Great Oakley, and his grandson, who was born in 1690, lived and died at Dovercourt. His portrait, painted in 1707, is in my possession. He had a son called Cyprian, and his son, also Cyprian, was my great-grandfather; born in 1737 and died in 1814. His portrait, painted in 1759 by Sir Joshua Reynolds, I have in my possession. My great-grandfather owned landed estates amounting to several hundred acres, but he sold his property in parcels between 1780 and 1790. His eldest son, Cyprian, was lost at sea, in 1783, and Cyprian's brother, Baker Phillips Bridge, was also drowned at sea. A third brother of Cyprian, Walter Sickelprice Bridge, of the Navy, became a merchant and settled on the continent.

My grandfather, Thomas, became a midshipman of the East India Company and became the Commodore of the Admiralty Packet Service. I have two gold medals presented to him in 1798 for special war service.

My grandfather and his family lived in Brussels and were there when Waterloo was fought. My father, though but eight years old, was taken out to the battlefield three days after the contest. Later, my grandfather was back in England, and my father was sent by him to the Charterhouse.

THOMAS FINCH HOBDAY BRIDGE

THOMAS FINCH HOBDAY BRIDGE, Archdeacon, born Dec. 20, 1807, in Harwich, Essex County, England; died Feb. 29, 1856, in St. John's, Newfoundland; married Oct. 27, 1835, in St. John's, SARAH CHRISTIANA, daughter of John Dunscomb, born Dec. 12, 1814; died Jan. 9, 1882, in Dawlish, England.

One hundred and five years ago Charterhouse School was then in its glory under the mastership of the celebrated Doctor Russell. Sir Cyprian's father, when but eleven years old, was sent to this school by his father, where he spent eight most interesting years and went from there to Oxford University, as top boy but one of the school and won thereby a beautiful silver medal. The Charterhouse was ever retained in warm affection by him in after life, for among many of his contemporaries was the afterward famous writer, Thackeray, who was his companion for several years, though two years younger.

Sir Cyprian's father took his degree in honors in 1829 at Christ Church Collège, which he had entered in 1825. On graduation, three pathways were open before him. His mother desired him to become a minister of the Church; he personally desired to enter the Navy but nearsightedness made that impossible; and his father's expressed wish was that he would enter the legal profession. Therefore he started to become a barrister; but his mother's death, about the time he left Oxford, led him to decide to enter the Church. He was ordained in 1831 and appointed to a curacy in Norfolk. This action greatly displeased his father. His fondness for the sea led him frequently to cross the English Channel and visit Holland, Belgium, Sweden and Russia; and in 1834 he was offered and accepted a position on the staff of the Governor of Newfoundland, Admiral Sir Thomas Cochrane, becoming his chaplain.

While thus serving on the Admiral's staff, he married and decided to devote himself to church work in Newfoundland. And he became rector of the Parish of St. John's at the Capital. Here he remained until his death in 1836. Here also Sir Cyprian was born, and, coming up into boyhood, he was nominated as a Naval Cadet by Sir Thomas Cochrane. Sir Cyprian's father died in 1856 at the early age of forty-nine, having caught an infectious fever when visiting certain parishioners.

Sir Cyprian's father married Sarah Christiana, youngest daughter of Mr. John Dunscomb, Honorary Lieutenant Colonel and A. D. C. to the Governor. Her parents were then residing at St. John's, Newfoundland.

Sir Cyprian says concerning his mother's family that, though called Dunscomb, it was of French origin, the members coming to England in Queen Elizabeth's reign. With other Protestant refugees who were driven out of France, her family name Dunscomb, which had been the name of the estate on which they resided in Devon, England, was taken as the family name. The Dunscombs went into business as American and West Indian merchants and were greatly prosperous.

SIR CYPRIAN'S MOTHER

Sir Cyprian says: "My mother had three married sisters, all of whom I remember. The eldest, my Aunt Eliza, Mrs. Camman, whom I knew only as a widow; my Aunt Margaret, Mrs. Vallance; and my Aunt Caroline, Mrs. Crowdy, wife of Mr. James Crowdy, sometime Administrator or Acting Governor of Newfoundland. Like my mother, both Mrs. Vallance and Mrs.

Crowdy were beautiful women. I last saw the latter at Southsea, some years after I entered the Navy, when she was in delicate health, not long before her death. Even then, her beauty was striking.

A miniature of my mother, which we now have, shows how great was her share of good looks. These were the least of her merits. There never could have been a more perfect parent. She was left a widow, with only a moderate income, and a young and very large family, — nine children, of whom seven were dependent on her. The position and welfare of those still living, as well as of those whom we have lost, bear convincing testimony to the admirable manner in which she brought up her children.

It is my sincere belief that she was one of the most accomplished women of her day. She had an exceedingly sweet and engaging manner, which was especially attractive to children. She had very unusual powers of conversation, and was as good a listener as talker. She had a marked talent for drawing, and some of her water colors of human figures were admirable. She was quite up to the average as a performer on the piano; and I remember her voluntarily giving some lessons on the harp to a young friend of hers who had been presented with one. She spoke French fluently. She had complete mastery of all branches of domestic economy; could tell cooks how to do their work; could prescribe for and treat children's ailments; and could also direct their games and amusements.

In my early days, many things, now bought in shops, were produced at home, — jams, jellies, sauces, butter, cream-cheeses, and bottled fruits. My mother was a skilful superintendent of the manufacture of all such articles. Her hands were rarely idle as they usually plied sewing, crochet, or knitting needles.

It is difficult, even now, to understand how she found time to read; but she was a great reader. I remember being allowed to look at the illustrations of an English translation of Thiers' 'History of the French Revolution' which she was reading. I can also remember the name of Macaulay's 'History of England,' which was being read by my father and mother as a new book. Fiction was by no means excluded, and I think that I can see now the paper covers and the drawings in the successive monthly parts of Thackeray's 'Vanity Fair' and Dickens's 'Dombey & Son.' I believe that I inherited from both my parents my strong liking for reading.

During the latter years of my mother's life, she suffered much from rheumatism, and visited many spas to undergo the 'cure.' She lived long enough to see me reach the rank of Captain in the Navy."

CORRESPONDENCE

LETTER BY THE EDITOR

November 11, 1921.

Admiral Sir Cyprian A. G. Bridge,
 Coombe Pines,
 Coombe Warren,
 Kingston Hill,
 Surrey, England.

My dear Admiral:

I am ashamed that I have been so negligent as I have been in acknowledging the reception by me of the excellent picture of yourself which came duly to hand. But my genealogical work has a heavy grip on all my time and my strength, and I fear I have been a negligent man in more than one respect. Pardonnez mois, mon frere.

I am succeeding up to the full measure of my expectations in my genealogical explorations. I have sent blanks to about four hundred persons bearing the name BRIDGE, and the "Returns" are coming in splendidly.

Quite a number of the people to whom I sent blanks have returned them, stating that they were new-comers to this country, and are in no respect (so far as they know) derived from the original JOHN BRIDGE, who came to this country in 1631.

Of course some of them may have come down from relatives of that John Bridge in England; but unless they have kept their Genealogical Tree, we cannot decide.

As you trace your ancestry back to 1640, in Essex County, we are only separated by ten years in that section. I have sent a letter to a gentleman now dwelling in that county, and asked him to find out, if possible, whether there are any records of Essex County people removing to New England. If so, we may be able to trace some other matters. I hope to hear from him duly. If there exists a History of Essex County, England, it may throw some light on Puritans crossing the ocean in 1630.

I have wrought out from your volume, so kindly sent me, a Genealogical Tree of your own family, in so far as you show that tree in the book itself. Part of that tree I have written in shorthand, and if I can get the time soon, I will send it to you for correction and expansion. Meanwhile, I am sending with this specimens of what I am sending out to the BRIDGE TRIBE in this country.

Will it trouble you too much to fill out this blank yourself? It may even throw a ray of light into a dark corner.

Yours most truly,

WM. D. BRIDGE.

Coombe Pines,

Dear Mr. Dawson Bridge:

I am greatly obliged to you for your letter of the twenty-ninth ultimo, and for the interesting genealogical information included in it. I wish that I could help you in your researches; but that my age makes impossible.

My own researches, begun when I was many years younger than I am, were stopped by my frequent and long absences from England on distant service.

I never came across any evidence that an ancestor of mine, direct or collateral, was one of the "Pilgrim Fathers." Of course there are reasons for thinking that it was not impossible.

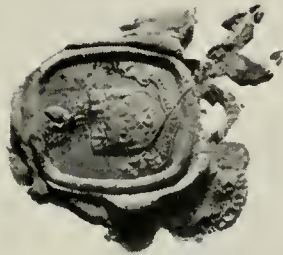

My father's sister, Mariana Margaret, born in 1800, told me, when I was a boy of twelve, that one of our ancestors was a "Pilgrim." On the other hand my grandfather, born in 1772, did not believe it. He seems to have made some researches, but they were slight and insufficient. In the first half of the seventeenth century, the branch of the Bridge family in Essex was important enough to have the movements of its leading members recorded. This, I believe, you will see if you will refer to an early page of my little book — “Some Recollections.” That we have not found any record of any of the family joining the “Pilgrims” may be negative evidence against such joining.

I wish all good things to you and yours; and I renew the expression of my regret that I cannot help you in your researches which, I hope, will continue and prosper.

Yours sincerely,

COPY OF LETTER FROM T. F. DUNSCOMB BRIDGE

4 Southwick Place, Hyde Park, London, W², England.

Dear Sir:

First of all let me wish you a happy New Year and many Happy New Years.

I thank you for your letter and for your photograph. I am very glad to hear that you have made such good strides in completing the Bridge Family History. I expect you have read “Morant’s History of Essex,” and the “Heralds’ Visitations of Essex,” and also had a look into the Church Records of Harwich, Devenport, Dedham, Little Wallingfield, Edmeston, Great Wallingfield, Milden, etc.

N.B. Please note that some of the places are in Essex and some in Suffolk. And I should add Monkton in Essex. The Parish Registers would supply you with facts. Also the Parish Registers of Norwich would also give you facts about the Bridge Family, as some of the Bridge Family went to the United States from Norwich about 1666.

Yours truly,

T. F. DUNSCOMB BRIDGE.

I think there is no doubt that the Bridge Family was in a good position in Essex in 1630, or thereabouts. “Palman qui meruit fiat.”

LETTER TO THE EDITOR FROM THE LIBRARIAN OF THE COLLEGE OF ARMS (HERALDS’ COLLEGE)

Drapers’ Hall, London, E.C. 2.

21st June, 1923.

Dear Sir:

I am in receipt of your letter of the fourth instant. A careful search has been made in the company’s records between the years 1630-40, but the only member of the Company at that date of the name of Bridge was one Humphrey Bridges, son of Richard Bridges of Preston in Gloucestershire, a husbandman; Humphrey was apprentice to Edward Cadwell on the 6th December 1626, and was admitted to the Freedom of the Company on the 5th February 1633. He died in St. Mary Axe.

Sir John Brugge (probably Bridge — often spelt Brygge) was Master of the Company in 1516, 1521, 1527; Sheriff 1513; Alderman of Vintry Ward 1510-15, of Langburn Ward 1515-30; Mayor 1521; Member of Parliament 1510; Knighted 1521; died 1530.

George Brygge (probably his son) was admitted to the Livery in 1531.

These may be your Ancestors. I enclose a rough sketch of the Arms of Sir John Brugge which may interest you.

I am very sorry the Company Records do not give any information to help you in your researches, a good many of the documents were destroyed in the Great Fire in 1666.

Thank you for sending me copies of illustrations in your book. I am most interested in them — and wish you all success in your researches and in your book.

If there is any further information that I can give you, I shall be very pleased to do so at any time.

Yours faithfully,

M. S. GREENWOOD, Librarian.

OTHER PROMINENT BRIDGE FAMILIES

The following was given me by Stephen Henry Howard Bridge, of 49 Telford Avenue, Streatham Hill, London, S. W.

“My great, great-grandfather lived at Colne Engaine Essex, but I have no records. Rev. Stephen Bridge, A.M., of Denmark Hill and Droxford Rectory, Hants, England, said we were connected distantly with Admiral Cyprian Bridge’s family, but as his father died when he was young, he learnt little about his ancestors, and had no near relations to give him information. He was connected through Great Aunt Mary Bridge with the Sewells from Colne Engaine, but I have been able to learn little from the present Mr. Sewell as to the Great Aunt Mary Bridge who married Mr. Francis, his grandfather. The Bridge family were connected with the land in Essex for several centuries and, as far as I can learn, migrated from Essex at and after the repeal of the Corn Law in 1846. Prior to that, they were numerous in that county. They went, I believe, to Australia, New Zealand, the United States; now in the eastern counties, Norfolk, Suffolk, and Essex. They were almost extinct. We believe we came from John Bridge (1632).

I visited General Bridge at Boston some years ago and he took me over Harvard College and the cemetery where Longfellow, the poet, is buried. He claimed (he told me) to come from Colne Engaine in Essex with which my family for several generations has been connected, but we have all left Essex."

STEPHEN BRIDGE, baptized Apr. 27, 1753, in Colne, Engaine, Essex County, England; died Jan. 12, 1833. Buried in St. Martins, Colchester, Essex County, England; married ELIZABETH, who died May 14, 1841. Buried in St. Martins, Colchester, Essex County. He was a retired farmer living in Colchester.

PEDESTAL AND STATUE OF JOHN BRIDGE, THE PURITAN
On Cambridge Common

UNVEILING OF STATUE OF JOHN BRIDGE, THE PURITAN

In the "Genealogical Register," which forms the supplement to Paige's "History of Cambridge," is the following:

"BRIDGE, JOHN, was among the earliest inhab. of Camb. and owned land here in 1632. He resided in 1635 at the N. E. corner of Dunster and South Streets, and soon afterwards owned a house at the N. W. corner of Holyoke and Winthrop Streets. About 1638 he purchased a house near the spot where the Washington Head Quarters now stand, with twelve acres of land, and resided there. He was early elected Deacon of the church; was Selectman twelve years, between 1635 and 1652; Representative four years, from 1637 to 1641; and was frequently employed in the settlement of estates and in determining the boundaries of towns. He m. Elizabeth Saunders 1658 (marriage contract dated 29 Nov., 1658), who had previously been the wife of Roger Bancroft of Camb. and Martin Saunders of Braintree. He d. about 1665, leaving wife, son Matthew and granddaughter Dorcas, dau. of S. Thomas, deceased. His wife Elizabeth subsequently m. Edward Taylor of Boston and was living in 1685."

The subject of the foregoing notice had one son, Matthew, who survived his father, dying April 28, 1700, when upwards of 80 years old. The remains of father and son were deposited in the burial ground in Harvard Square. Memorial stones were placed over their graves and over that of a descendant, Levi Bridge (hereinafter mentioned as the founder of the Bridge Charitable Fund in this city), July 4, 1876, by Samuel J. Bridge, the donor of the statue of the first of the name.

Shortly after the city of Cambridge was the recipient of a donation from another member of the family, the late Mr. Levi Bridge, who, by a deed of trust, dated Aug. 12, 1875, gave the sum of $773.95, which had been deposited in the Cambridgeport Savings Bank in the name of the late Hon. John Sargent as trustee. It was stipulated in the deed that, after the death of Mr. Bridge, this sum was to be transferred to the city of Cambridge, and a statement of the facts relating to the gift was made by the trustee in a communication to the City Council, dated Sept. 6, 1876, the donor having deceased.

By the provisions of the deed of trust, the money thus given was to form the nucleus of a fund to be known as the "Bridge

Charitable Fund" to be forever held by the city upon this further trust, to add the interest of said fund to the principal, until such time as said fund, by the accruing interest, or by gifts from other philanthropic persons, shall amount to two thousand dollars, after which time one third part of the interest of said fund shall be added to the principal annually forever, and the remaining two thirds of such interest shall be paid over annually to the overseers of the poor for the time being, to be by them expended for the deserving poor of the city of Cambridge, in such manner as they shall deem best."

The donation of Mr. Bridge was formally accepted by the City Council, Sept. 27, 1876, and an ordinance was subsequently adopted creating a board of commissioners of the fund thus established. The bank-book was delivered to the commissioners by Mr. Sargent, Jan. 24, 1877, the sum on deposit then amounting to $891.83. In the month of October following, this sum was doubled by the gift of Mr. Samuel J. Bridge, who was a distant relative of the original donor, thus making the total amount given to the fund $1,783.66. In the letter from Mr. S. J. Bridge, dated Oct. 15, 1877, covering the gift made by him, he said, referring to the original donation by his kinsman: "It was his wish, and it is mine, that beyond a proper record, there may be no unnecessary publicity in the annual distribution of the fund, nothing that would have a tendency to wound the pride of the recipient." In this communication, allusion is made to the graves of his ancestors, John and Matthew Bridge, and of his kinsman Levi, over which he had caused the erection of memorial stones, and the hope is expressed that the city "will always have a fostering care over them."

Samuel James Bridge, who will hereafter be especially remembered in this community as the generous donor to the city of Cambridge of the statue of the first of his name in this country, is a native of the State of Maine, where many of the descendants of John Bridge still reside. He removed to Boston many years ago, and in the year 1841 was appointed by President Harrison as an appraiser in the Boston Custom House, where he remained until 1856, when he was appointed appraiser-general of the Pacific Coast. His unwavering fidelity to the trust reposed in him by the Treasury Department while appraiser for the port of Boston, is well remembered by the older merchants of that city. Mr. Bridge had the confidence of every administration of the national government from the time of his appointment in 1841 to the close of the administration of President Grant. He was the commissioner having charge of the erection of the Custom House at San Francisco, costing $5,000,000; and also of the United States Mint and Marine Hospital in the same city. In his later years he has travelled much, visiting every quarter of the globe, and by his rare powers of observation has made himself familiar with the characteristics, institutions, and population of nearly every country in the world.

The commission to execute a bronze statue of John Bridge, the Puritan, was given by Mr. S. J. Bridge to the eminent sculptor, the late Thomas R. Gould, of Boston, in the autumn of 1881. He designed and modelled a statuette, which was satisfactory to Mr. Bridge, and subsequently carried it with him to Florence, where he arrived on the first of November. Preparations for the clay model of the "Puritan" were soon after begun, and about the twenty-third of November the artist personally worked upon the statue for the first and last time, also giving suggestions in regard to certain changes desired. Mr. Gould died on the twenty-sixth of November, 1881, and the completion of the figure devolved upon his son and co-worker, Marshall S. Gould, who devoted his entire time and energy to the execution of his father's conception of the "Puritan." In advancing and completing the work, he made such changes from the small model as had been previously suggested to him by his father, together with such alterations as every artist finds necessary in making a colossal statue from a diminutive study. The names of T. R. and M. S. Gould are thus properly connected in the production of the finished work, — the one as the original designer of the statue, the other as the skilled and appreciative co-worker, than whom none could have more fully realized the father's conception of the character to be produced in monumental bronze.

It has been said that this generous and artistic gift is believed to be the first statue of a Puritan pioneer that has been erected in New England. Through the pious forethought of the donor, it is also the first sculptured representation of one of its early settlers that has been set up in the city of Cambridge.

The stormy periods of our early history have heretofore been commemorated by us from time to time, and such localities as have been rendered historical through their association with leading men and events of the past have been marked by memorial tablets placed at different points in our city. To Samuel James Bridge, now for the second time the city's benefactor, must be accorded the merit of having brought to our view the lineaments and figure of the Puritan himself, as idealized in the artist's mind.

STATUE OF JOHN BRIDGE, THE PURITAN

At a meeting of the Mayor and Aldermen, Sept. 20, 1882, a communication was presented by his Honor the Mayor, from

City of Cambridge.

ACCEPTANCE AND UNVEILING

OF THE STATUE OF

JOHN BRIDGE, THE PURITAN,

PRESENTED TO THE

CITY OF CAMBRIDGE, SEPT. 20, 1882,

BY

SAMUEL JAMES BRIDGE.

STATUE ERECTED ON CAMBRIDGE COMMON, AND UNVEILED
NOVEMBER 28, 1882.

CAMBRIDGE:
TRIBUNE PUBLISHING COMPANY.

REPRODUCTION OF FIRST PAGE OF PROGRAM OF UNVEILING

Samuel James Bridge, Esq., of Boston, offering to the city a bronze statue of his ancestor, John Bridge, one of the first settlers of the town, and an active and useful man. The kind offer thus made was met with an appreciative spirit by the City Council, as appears by the following order, which was adopted in concurrence:

City of Cambridge,

In Board of Alderman, Sept. 20, 1882.

Ordered, That the statue offered to the city by Samuel James Bridge be accepted, and that the thanks of the City Council be given to Mr. Bridge for his generous offer. Also that a joint special committee, to consist of his Honor the Mayor, and Aldermen Read, Corcoran, and Fairbanks, with such as the Common Council may join, be appointed to take such action as may be proper in relation to the reception of the statue and the selection of a location for the same. Sent down for concurrence.

Attest: JUSTIN A. JACOBS, City Clerk.

In Common Council, Sept. 20, 1882.

Concurred. The President, with Councilmen Bent, Pear, Russell, Doyle, and Thorogood, are joined on the part of this board.

Attest: J. WARREN COTTON, Clerk.

JAMES A. FOX, Mayor.

The Joint Special Committee thus appointed was composed as follows: His Honor James A. Fox, Mayor, Alderman John Read, Alderman Michael Corcoran, Alderman John W. Fairbanks, President George H. Howard, Councilman George C. Bent, Councilman Isaac S. Pear, Councilman William E. Russell, Councilman James E. Doyle, Councilman John G. Thorogood.

The committee immediately proceeded to the duty assigned to it, receiving assistance in the suggestions of William S. Barbour, Esq., city engineer, and Marshall S. Gould, Esq., the sculptor. After visiting several localities in the vicinity of the former abode of John Bridge, the committee finally selected a spot deemed suitable as a site for the statue upon Cambridge Common. There was a slight delay, owing to the non-arrival of the statue from France, where it was cast, and on account of the illness of the donor, with whom the committee wished to consult in reference to the location to be selected, and whose views it was desired to meet in the fullest manner.

The general superintendence of the work of locating the statue was committed to Mr. Barbour, city engineer; the labor of putting in the necessary foundation, placing the pedestal thereon, and setting up the statue, being performed by Mr. Alexander McDonald, of this city. The granite base was firmly set, and the statue placed in position under the immediate supervision of the sculptor, and the work was completed on Saturday, Nov. 25, after which it was covered to await the inauguration ceremonies. The statue is located in that part of Cambridge Common, near the junction of North Avenue and Waterhouse Street, and faces in a nearly southerly direction, looking towards the College grounds. The figure is about nine feet in height, and that of the pedestal about the same, the entire structure being about eighteen feet from the foundation.

The day of the formal acceptance and unveiling of the "Puritan" was fixed for Tuesday, Nov. 28, at three o'clock, P.M. It was intended by the committee that the ceremonies should take place around the base of the statue, but a fall of snow and subsequent cold weather intervening, it was decided to ask that Shepard Memorial Church, on Garden Street, opposite the Common, be opened for the purpose. The attention of the public had been called to the occasion, through the various local newspapers, all being invited, while special invitations were also sent to a large number of prominent citizens and others. A special form of invitation was also sent by the donor to the descendants of John Bridge, numbering as far as known one hundred and thirteen in all, including one infant seven months old, of the ninth generation from his ancestor.

The invitations to descendants of John Bridge were sent to the following:

UNVEILING OF THE STATUE

The services connected with the unveiling of the statue of the "Puritan" on Cambridge Common were held, in accordance with previous arrangement, in Shepard Memorial Church, the members of the city government, invited guests, and citizens generally assembling informally at the hour appointed.

The church was well filled, among the audience there being many distinguished citizens, conspicuous among whom was the venerable donor. There were also numerous other descendants of John Bridge, including Nathan William Bridge, Esq., of West Medford, Mass., and Judge Charles Devens, of the Supreme Court of Massachusetts.

The opening exercise was the performance of a voluntary on the organ by Edwin L. Gurney, organist of Broadway (Cambridge) Baptist Church, at the conclusion of which Alderman John Read, chairman of the committee of arrangements, made the following announcement:

FELLOW CITIZENS AND GUESTS: We are assembled at this time for the acceptance of the statue of John Bridge, the Puritan. I invite the Rev. Dr. Alexander McKenzie to invoke the divine blessing.

Rev. Alexander McKenzie, D.D., of the Shepard Memorial Church, then offered prayer, at the conclusion of which the audience joined in singing the following hymn, accompanied by the organ:

HYMN BY REV. LEONARD BACON, D.D.

O God, beneath thy guiding hand,
 Our exiled fathers crossed the sea;
 And when they trod the wintry strand,
 With prayer and psalm they worshipped thee.
 Thou heard'st well pleased the song, the prayer:
 Thy blessing came; and still its power
 Shall onward through all ages bear
 The memory of that holy hour.
 Laws, freedom, truth, and faith in God
 Came with those exiles o'er the waves;
 And where their pilgrim feet have trod,
 The God they trusted guards their graves.
 And here thy name, O God of love,
 Their children's children shall adore,
 Till these eternal hills remove,
 And spring adorns the earth no more.

Alderman Read:

“The statue which will be unveiled immediately after these exercises is the work of the late Thomas R. Gould, completed by his son. It is of one who, having held offices of high trust, was a representative man of the early times. Samuel J. Bridge, a descendant in the sixth generation, has made this gift to the city of Cambridge, and his letter of presentation will now be read by George H. Howard, Esq., the President of the Common Council.”

President George H. Howard then read the following letter:

To the Honorable JAMES A. FOX, Mayor of Cambridge:

Sir, — I beg to offer to the city of Cambridge, through you, a bronze statue of my ancestor, John Bridge, one of the first settlers in the town, and a man useful and influential in his day and generation.

The sculptor, the late Mr. T. R. Gould, has tried to figure forth the Puritan pioneer, and upon the pedestal for the statue I have caused to be described the typical services and character which seem to me to make John Bridge worthy of lasting commemoration.

If the City Council accepts this offer, I shall ask leave to set up the statue in one of the public squares of Old Cambridge, the exact site to be determined in whatever way may seem to the Council suitable.

I have the honor to be, Sir, with respect,

Your obedient servant,

SAMUEL JAMES BRIDGE.

Mayor Fox accepted the statue in behalf of the city as follows:

FELLOW CITIZENS: From the communication of Mr. Samuel James Bridge, dated Sept. 20th last, to which you have just listened, you are informed that that gentleman — not now for the first time, I may say, a liberal donor to us, and happily present with us today — has presented this statue of his sturdy and heroic ancestor to the city of Cambridge, — believed to be the first statue in Puritan garb that has been erected in New England.

With becoming acknowledgment, the generous and artistic gift was promptly accepted by our City Council, and now being set up on our principal public ground not far from the spot of his early home on Dunster Street, we have assembled together formally to accept the finished work.

It gives me great pleasure to be the recipient, in behalf of the corporation and the citizens at large of Cambridge, of this statue of one of the early Puritans and settlers of our ancient and favored town from one of his worthy descendants in the sixth generation.

John Bridge must indeed have been “a man useful and influential in his day and generation.” Born in 1578 in old Braintree, in Essex County, England, during the reign of Queen Elizabeth of brilliant fame, he came in 1631, at the mature age of fifty-three, and settled here, as the inscription upon the pedestal states. He was our original supervisor of the public school, first townsman or selectman for twenty-three years, representative to the Great and General Court for four years, and was appointed by that body to lay out lands in this town and beyond.

We find his name prominently mentioned in the early records of the town in connection with those of Dunster, Hooker, Shepard, and others.

"Among the reasons," says the Rev. Thomas Shepard, "which swayed me to come to New England, divers people in Old England of my dear friends desired me to come here to live together, and some went before and writ to me of finding a place, one of which was John Bridge."

But I will not go into detail on these points, and thus encroach upon the province of the accomplished gentlemen who are to follow me, and who will illustrate the lives and the times of our Puritan progenitors much more ably than I can do.

It is surely well to "remember the days of old," and the men as well, who, by their sacrifices in any department of human endeavor or toil, have set forward the state of human progress on earth; and it is particularly fitting to erect statues to perpetuate the forms, the character, and the labors of our Puritan ancestors, that coming generations as they rise may not forget those devoted pioneers of freedom in religious truth and observances who preferred to emigrate to an unknown and inhospitable land, where they might worship God according to the dictates of their own consciences, rather than to wage a long and doubtful conflict with the strongly entrenched ecclesiastical system of England, united as it was to the complete civil power of the kingdom.

The Puritans brought to this land the highest principles of religious and civil liberty; and if we would witness the ultimate outcome of their principles, we may well say, with the epitaph in St. Paul's Cathedral, London, on the great architect of that church, "Look around you."

This statue has been executed by an American artist of genius and exquisite taste, of whom we have good reason to be proud, the late Thomas R. Gould, a native of Boston, but who long dwelt and wrought in Florence, Italy. His untimely death left the unfinished work to his son, Mr. Marshall S. Gould, who has admirably and successfully completed the original design of his father. The elder artist has impressed his genius upon many portrait statues and busts in this city and vicinity. In yonder library of Harvard University is his fine bust of Ralph Waldo Emerson; the Town Hall of Lexington contains a statue of John Hancock; while in the Public Library Building of Concord is one of its liberal donor to the town, William Munroe. By commission from the Grand Army of the Republic, he executed the beautiful statue of the noble Andrew which stands in the burial lot of our great war governor at Hingham-by-the-Sea. New York City claims a bust of the elder Booth; while in the vestibule of the Boston Herald Building his artistic illustration of steam and electricity may be admired. His portrait statue of King Kamehameha the First, at Honolulu, is a notable one, as well as that ideal conception entitled the "Ascending Spirit," which is appropriately placed on the burial lot in Forest Hill Cemetery where the mortal remains of the talented sculptor now repose.

And now need I repeat, as the representative of the city, that I accept with pride and pleasure this statue of the devoted Puritan and non-conformist, so liberally and handsomely bestowed by Mr. Bridge? and we will ever preserve it amid its pleasant surroundings with especial care, so that it may teach to our children's children to a late generation the courage, the self-denial, the humble yet heroic religious spirit of as brave and honest a body of Christian adventurers as, acting under their own light, have ever existed, who did so much towards setting forward the Redeemer's kingdom upon earth, and who so honestly labored to establish on this western continent what they deemed to be a great good, viz., "A Church without a Bishop, and a State without a King."

After the close of his address, the Mayor said:

"A descendant of the Puritans has been invited to speak to you today. I take pleasure in introducing Col. Thomas W. Higginson."

Colonel Higginson then delivered the dedicatory address of the occasion, as follows:

The man whose name we today commemorate represents none of those classes which have hitherto almost monopolized bronze and marble. He was neither general nor statesman, neither poet nor author. No encyclopædia records his name, no history of the nation mentions him. Is it not strange that under these circumstances we should meet to dedicate his statue? On the contrary, it is for this very reason. It is a characteristic of the rising art of America, that, unlike the art of older nations, it celebrates the common man. Yonder silent figure upon our soldiers' monument does not wear the uniform of the brilliant general of cavalry, whose name heads the inscription below, but that of the hundreds of private soldiers whose names follow. It is the same with nearly all of the thousand other soldiers' monuments throughout the land. In the same way, going back to the Revolution, we have French's "Minute-Man" at Concord. Following the same instinctive tendency, going back to the settlement of the country, we have before us not Winthrop, not Endicott, but the private soldier, or at most the non-commissioned officer of the early Cambridge settlement, the typical Puritan, plain John Bridge.

It is the first time, so far as I know, that the every-day Puritan has appeared in sculpture. In the time when the clergy were kings or viceroys, this man was content to be a deacon. In the time when this very Cambridge Common, where we stand, was the scene where governors were elected, John Bridge was satisfied with an office which is to this day a school of humility, and was member of the "Great and General Court." He was, in the expressive phrase of that day, a "townsman." He stands for the plain people, who founded the little settlement, and built for their defence the great "pallysadoe" and "fosse" which once passed within a rod or two of where the statue stands, and which have left their memorials to this day in the willow-trees of yonder playground. John Bridge probably worked in person on those defences; he was one of those who kept back the Indian and brought civilization forward; he stands for the average ancestry of us all. Whatever we now possess we owe, in a general sense, to the fact that our forefathers were even such men as John Bridge.

But, beyond this, we owe a peculiar debt to him individually. It happened to him to be instrumental, in a special way, for preserving the very existence of the little settlement. He came to America in 1631, probably as a member of a company from Braintree, England, which settled first near Mount Wollaston, and then was removed hither by order of the General Court, being soon joined by Rev. Thomas Hooker, who became their pastor. John Bridge came to Cambridge, then Newtown, in 1632; owned land here in that year, and became a freeman March 4, 1635. He lived at that time on the northeast corner of Dunster and South Streets, owning also a house on Holyoke Street soon after. In 1636 came an event which very nearly brought about the extinction of the little settlement. Parson Hooker, moved by the earliest outbreak of what has since been called the Western fever, made up his mind that the village, with its sixty-two houses, was too crowded for him and too near other villages. This was at least the nominal reason why he and the bulk of his congregation resolved to set off through the woods to Connecticut with wife and child, bag and baggage, cows and oxen, there to establish a transplanted Newtown at what is now Hartford. It is very possible that this formidable secession might have been the death of the little town, but for one fact, that John Bridge decided, in his sturdy Puritan spirit, to stay where he was and save the settlement.

The way in which he saved it was this: There was at that time in England a young clergyman named Shepard, not yet thirty years old, but of such repute for piety and eloquence that he has come down to posterity with four resounding epithets forever linked to his name, — “the holy, heavenly, sweet-affecting, and soul-ravishing Mr. Shepard.” We know from his own autobiography that he came to America by the urgent request of friends; but the only friend whose name he mentions is John Bridge. He came at the most opportune time, with a company of sixty, and was persuaded to remain temporarily, at least, in Cambridge. He and his party stayed permanently; they took the meeting-house of Mr. Hooker, the dwelling houses of his parishioners; and when, upon a day in June in 1636, Mr. Hooker and his hundred men, women, and children went with their oxen and cows through the streets into the wilderness, Mr. Shepard and his sixty stood at their newly acquired front-doors and bade them farewell. Exit Hooker; enter Shepard: but John Bridge was the link between. He was like the French herald whose duty it was to proclaim the king’s death and the accession of his successor. “Le roi est mort, vive le roi.” It would have been strange indeed if when the new church was organized John Bridge had not become its first deacon. He was, as the facetious Cotton Mather would undoubtedly have said, had he but thought of it, “the Bridge that carried us over.”

And, as it turned out, by securing Mr. Shepard he secured not the town only but the college. That was placed here partly for the sake of the climate, but more for Mr. Shepard’s sake. It was because of him, Cotton Mather tells us, that this, “rather than any other place, was pitched upon to be the site of that happy seminary.” There was thus a regular chain of circumstances. It was because of Deacon Bridge that Mr. Shepard came; because of Mr. Shepard that the college came; because of the college that the name came, taken from the English university town. Whether John Bridge was or was not identical with the "Mr. Bridges" who gave the infant college £50 in 1638, and who united with others in giving it £20 worth of goods four years after, this cannot now be determined; but the point beyond question is, that he indirectly secured its presence in Cambridge and all the advantages that have come to both college and city from the combination.

Under such circumstances, John Bridge began the duties of what an English poet calls the "mild diaconate" — not so mild then as now. In those days when the village and parish were one, the minister was commander and the deacon was orderly sergeant. In that capacity John Bridge may have personally beaten the drum which was used in 1636, according to Johnson, to call the people of the village to church. At any rate he doubtless superintended the offices of the church, and the schooling of the children, so far as it went; he was deacon for twenty-two years, selectman for twelve years, and member of the Legislature for four. He was frequently employed in the settlement of estates and in determining the boundaries of towns. He was one of the commissioners appointed by the town when Billerica was set off from it, and his son was one of the first settlers of Lexington, both of these towns having been included in the unwieldy Cambridge of that day. John Bridge's own homestead was outside the village, and included twelve acres not far from where Craigie House now stands; he also owned a strip opposite, on the south side of the Watertown road, and running to the river. It included five acres of marsh and one of upland, perhaps including part of the very field across which our poet Longfellow loved to look at the winding Charles. In this homestead, then a rural region, he lived until his death in 1665; and it is pleasant to find that his son, in transferring a part of the real estate at a later period, describes it as "the mansion house of my honored father, deceased." It is not always that sons remember to express respect for their fathers when disposing of their property.

It is in a similar feeling of respect to that worthy man that we honor his monument today. Bronze corrodes and marble crumbles, but they are, nevertheless, among the most permanent of earthly things; and this modest Puritan name will take long life from this event. One of the most famous of modern English sonnets describes an imaginary traveller in the East as finding in the desert two vast and trunkless legs of stone, with a carved and broken head resting near them. On the pedestal appears:

"My name is Ozymandias, king of kings,

And the poet adds:

"Nothing beside remains. Round the decay
Of that colossal wreck, boundless and bare,
The lone and level sands stretch far away."

But of what consequence was this desolation? The statue fulfilled its object. The disappearance of all else only vindicated the foresight of the monarch, and the name of Ozymandias is immortal. And thus the pious reverence of the descendants of this plain Puritan will achieve its end. The name of John Bridge, rescued from oblivion and made the type of the founders of our civilization, is destined to be transmitted on the lips of children's children yet unborn.

When Colonel Higginson had concluded, the Mayor said:

"From what has been said by the orator of the day, there is no doubt that John Bridge, whom we commemorate, was deeply interested in education, and might have been a worker in its behalf in the early days of our college. It seems eminently fitting, therefore, that a representative of that college should be heard upon this occasion. I introduce to you President Eliot."

President Eliot said:

"What is this durable monument in stone and bronze to say to us and to coming generations? It will say, —

"It is good to stand stoutly in one's lot, doing faithfully and generously the homely duties of each day.

"It is good to leave behind sturdy and thrifty descendants to transmit one's name and recall one's memory through long generations.

"It is good to have one's life, though humble and obscure, represent to posterity great ideas.

"The simple life of this Puritan pioneer in barren Newtown foretold the life of the teeming millions who in two centuries were to vivify the wild continent. It was a worthy vehicle of three pregnant principles, — freedom of thought, political freedom, and freedom to worship God."

Mayor Fox:

"You have heard from a descendant of the Puritans, you have also heard from the representative of Harvard College; let me now introduce to you a lineal descendant of John Bridge himself, General, and now Judge Devens."

Judge Devens' Address:

MR. MAYOR: — As a descendant from John Bridge, one degree further removed than my kinsman whose graceful liberality has presented this statue of our ancestor to the city of Cambridge, I thank you for the opportunity of being present upon this occasion. There is little to remind us in this splendid city, adorned with the buildings of its great university, in external things at least, of the humble hamlet defended by its palisade in which a band of exiles struggling with the stern soil, the inhospitable climate, the hostile savage, sought to make for themselves a home in which they could worship God according to the dictates of their own conscience.

It may be true, it no doubt is true, that there are others equally worthy to be commemorated with John Bridge, yet as he has been described to us in the remarks of Colonel Higginson, to whose researches we are all sincerely indebted, as its first townsman for many years, as the deacon of its church, as its representative in the councils of the infant colony, he is a suitable representative of the founders of this town. He is in this place also a suitable representative of that great race of men to whom he belonged, the English Puritans.

The Puritan emigration to New England was a part of the struggle which had already commenced between King Charles and his people. However that might end, one place they were determined should exist where they should be free to practice their own faith and to act as that taught them. Profound as was their belief in a higher power, they knew that God works by human means and agencies, and that it was for them to endeavor to compass that for which they prayed by all the instrumentalities at their command. They believed in the sword of the Lord and of Gideon, but the sword of Gideon for them was the good weapon that hung in their own belts, and whose hilt was within the grasp of their own strong right hands.

We may imagine, if we cannot know, the intense interest with which, during the years John Bridge lived here, these people watched the progress of that English Revolution which has made of all who speak the English tongue a free people. Here they heard of the open war in England between their king and his Parliament, of the first doubtful and undecided conflicts under the inefficient commanders on behalf of the Parliament, of the rise of the great Puritan soldier Cromwell, of the victories of Naseby, Dunbar, and finally of Worcester, and of the complete triumph of the Puritan party. Here, too, came later the sad news of that September day when the Lord Protector sank to his eternal rest, and the way was open for the return of the king to England. Although he heard of all these events, John Bridge did not live long enough to know of the second English Revolution which was so promptly responded to in Massachusetts and which finally drove the Stuart kings into exile. To him it may have seemed as if this contest had failed. He certainly could not have realized how vast was the work which the Puritans had done and were to do on this as well as the other side of the water, or how great was the impression they would make on the people of a vast continent.

Mr. G. W. Curtis has said, "Through all our history, from the deposition of Andros to Bunker Hill, and from the Declaration of Independence to the Proclamation of Emancipation, the dominant power in American civilization has been the genius of Puritan England."

If we look back to the days of the Revolution we see how strong was its influence over those who conducted it. Mr. Winthrop, who (I may, without impropriety say, now that he is absent from us and separated by the stormy sea) emulates so well the dignified and scholarly virtues of his illustrious ancestor, has in one of his recent orations preserved a letter of Colonel Prescott which might in its spirit have been written by one of the Puritans themselves. I quote it from memory, and not with entire verbal accuracy. "Our forefathers," says he, "passed the vast Atlantic, spent their blood and treasure that they might enjoy their liberties both civil and religious, and transmit them to their posterity." . . . "Is not a glorious death in defence of our liberties better than a short and infamous life, and our memory to be had in detestation to the latest posterity? Let us all be of one mind, and stand fast in the liberties wherewith Christ has made us free: and may he of his infinite mercy grant us deliverance out of all our troubles!"

This was a letter written on behalf of the farmers of Pepperell to the inhabitants of Boston some months before the Battle of Bunker Hill. As we stand here we recall that summer night of the sixteenth of June, 1775, when the two regiments selected by Prescott, one his own, the other commanded by Col. Ebenezer Bridge of Lexington, the great-grandson of John, stood here upon this very Common together, and the venerable president of the College came from his study to invoke the blessing of God on their expedition.

Nor, Mr. Mayor, when the hour of trial came in our day and generation to us, was the influence of these Puritan forefathers absent. It is at such a time they will always be freshly remembered. Let then this statue stand, in its simple Puritan garb, in memory of one of the founders of this city, of the race of men to whom he belonged, and in honor to their simple lives, their high courage, and their unswerving faith.

At the conclusion of Judge Devens' address, the audience again joined in singing "America" with the organ accompaniment.

A benediction was then pronounced by Rev. Edward H. Hall, of the First Parish Church, and the audience then adjourned to the Common to witness the ceremony of unveiling.

When all had reassembled around the statue, which was entirely covered with cloth, Mayor Fox spoke as follows:

"This statue of John Bridge, the Puritan, presented to the city of Cambridge by one of his descendants in the sixth generation, having been formally accepted, it is my direction that it be now unveiled."

At the signal of the Mayor, the folds of the covering quickly separated, and it fell to the base of the statue, disclosing an undoubted impersonation of the typical Puritan, in whose stern and resolute countenance is fully reflected the strong character of the men who founded our New England institutions of freedom and education. The following inscriptions are upon the pedestal of the statue:

2. CHARLES HARRINGTON KILHAM

Charles H. Kilham, one of the oldest and best known residents of Beverly, died at his home on Lothrop Street in that city yesterday [Oct. 9, 1923] in his eighty-ninth year. He was born in the old mansion house on Cabot Street, which was in the Kilham family for more than one hundred years, and had been a citizen of Beverly for his entire life.

He was for many years in the banking and brokerage business in Boston and later in life became treasurer of the Beverly Savings Bank until he gave up active business about ten years ago. He was a member of the First Parish (Unitarian) Church. Coming from a long line of seafaring ancestry he always had a deep interest in maritime affairs which he kept to the last. He was married in 1858 to Maria Frances Ober, whom he survived two years.

He leaves a daughter, Mrs. C. H. Low of San Diego, Cal., and a son, Walter H. Kilham of Boston.

74. REV. HENRY MARTIN BRIDGE. (See page 184.)

Mrs. Elizabeth Cady Bridge, the relict of Rev. Henry Martin Bridge, of Colebrook, N. H., was the oldest person in the town when, having reached within a few days the extreme age of ninety-nine years, she peacefully "fell on sleep." She had lived in the lovely village of Colebrook for sixty-five years. She became a widow very shortly after coming to the community, and the training of five young children was her joy and privilege. She was of a frail body but heroic spirit. She outlived all her children, and only grandchildren and great grandchildren survive her. She was over ninety years of age when she lost her charming daughter, Mrs. Mary Gleason, the widow of a Congregationalist minister; and but very shortly before her departure, her noble son (of whom we also speak elsewhere in this Addenda) passed very suddenly away. His departure was kept from her. He had lavishly provided all possible comforts for his aged mother. Immediately, Mrs. Homer Dean, of Newport, Vt., who had been with aunt and grandmother from her own childhood, stood nobly by, as a real angel of mercy to her grandmother. After a funeral characterized by the greatest tenderness and love, attended by a very large company, she was laid to rest by the side of her husband, the companion of her early years.

Mrs. Elizabeth Cady Bridge was for very many years the oldest and only surviving aunt of the Editor of this Genealogy and, many years ago, he was privileged to be with her in her lovely home, while he was the principal of the Colebrook Academy, one of the prominent institutions of that community.

We are happy to present on another page the sweet face of Mrs. Bridge, the oldest of the JOSEPH LINE for many years.

100. JONATHAN DAVIS⁹ BRIDGE. (See page 206.)

The limited characterization of Jonathan Davis Bridge (commonly known as "John D. Bridge" by his associates) demands of us a more extended statement. After conducting, for many years, various papers in Northern New Hampshire, he purchased The Coos County Democrat, which he conducted for a dozen years, which was a great success. This success induced United States Senator Chandler to urge him to become a partner with him in the conduct of a printing establishment in Concord, N. H., which had been known as "The Republican Printing Company." The name had been changed to "The Rumford Press." It was greatly in need of a thorough-going, enterprising and every way efficient man. Mr. Bridge proved to be the man needed. From 1902 until his untimely death, Nov. 12, 1923, Mr. Bridge made remarkable advances in the conduct and growth of this printing enterprise, with several hundred employees on his pay roll; and the excellence of the output was such as to win and hold the publication of several of the very largest and best literary magazines of the country as well as the special publications of the State of New Hampshire. It was truly a strenuous task to build up a printery of such high quality as successfully to compete with similar establishments of the great cities of our country, but this was done.

He lived to realize all of these ambitions.

The relations existing between Mr. Bridge and his associates were always of affection and honor. A writer in the Concord Daily Monitor says of him: "Although sometimes blunt in manner, he was absolutely straightforward, sincere, direct and ever ready to appreciate and join in the lighter side of things, and to sympathize with a deep tenderness wherever human contact seemed justified. It is doubtful if any employer in the printing industry in our town has held so completely the loyalty and respect of his employees."

Constance Whitney, Mrs. FRANZ EDOUARD ZERRAHN. (See page 26.)

- v. CONSTANCE, b. May 11, 1865; m. Sept. 11, 1890 FRANZ EDOUARD ZERRAHN.

Following an illness with which she had been afflicted for about a year, Mrs. Constance Whitney Zerrahn passed away on Wednesday, June 11, 1924, at her home, "Overbrook," Blue Hills, Mass. Mrs. Zerrahn had been deeply interested in civic and philanthropic affairs in Milton. She was the daughter of Mr. Henry A. Whitney, president of the old Boston & Providence Railroad, and of Fanny Lawrence Whitney. As a devoted member of the Episcopal Church of

The Holy Spirit at Mattapan, she took a lively interest in its religious, social and philanthropic work; engaged in all forms of helpfulness during the World War, especially on the Committee for Devastated France. She was one of the Board of Managers of Chickering House in Dedham, and was a member of the Society of Colonial Dames, and an interested member of the New England Historic Genealogical Society. Mrs. Zerrahn is survived by her husband and two daughters, Mrs. Charles B. Bradley of Morristown, N. J., and Mrs. Theodore Chadwick of Boston. A brother, Ellerton P. Whitney, of Milton, also survives her.

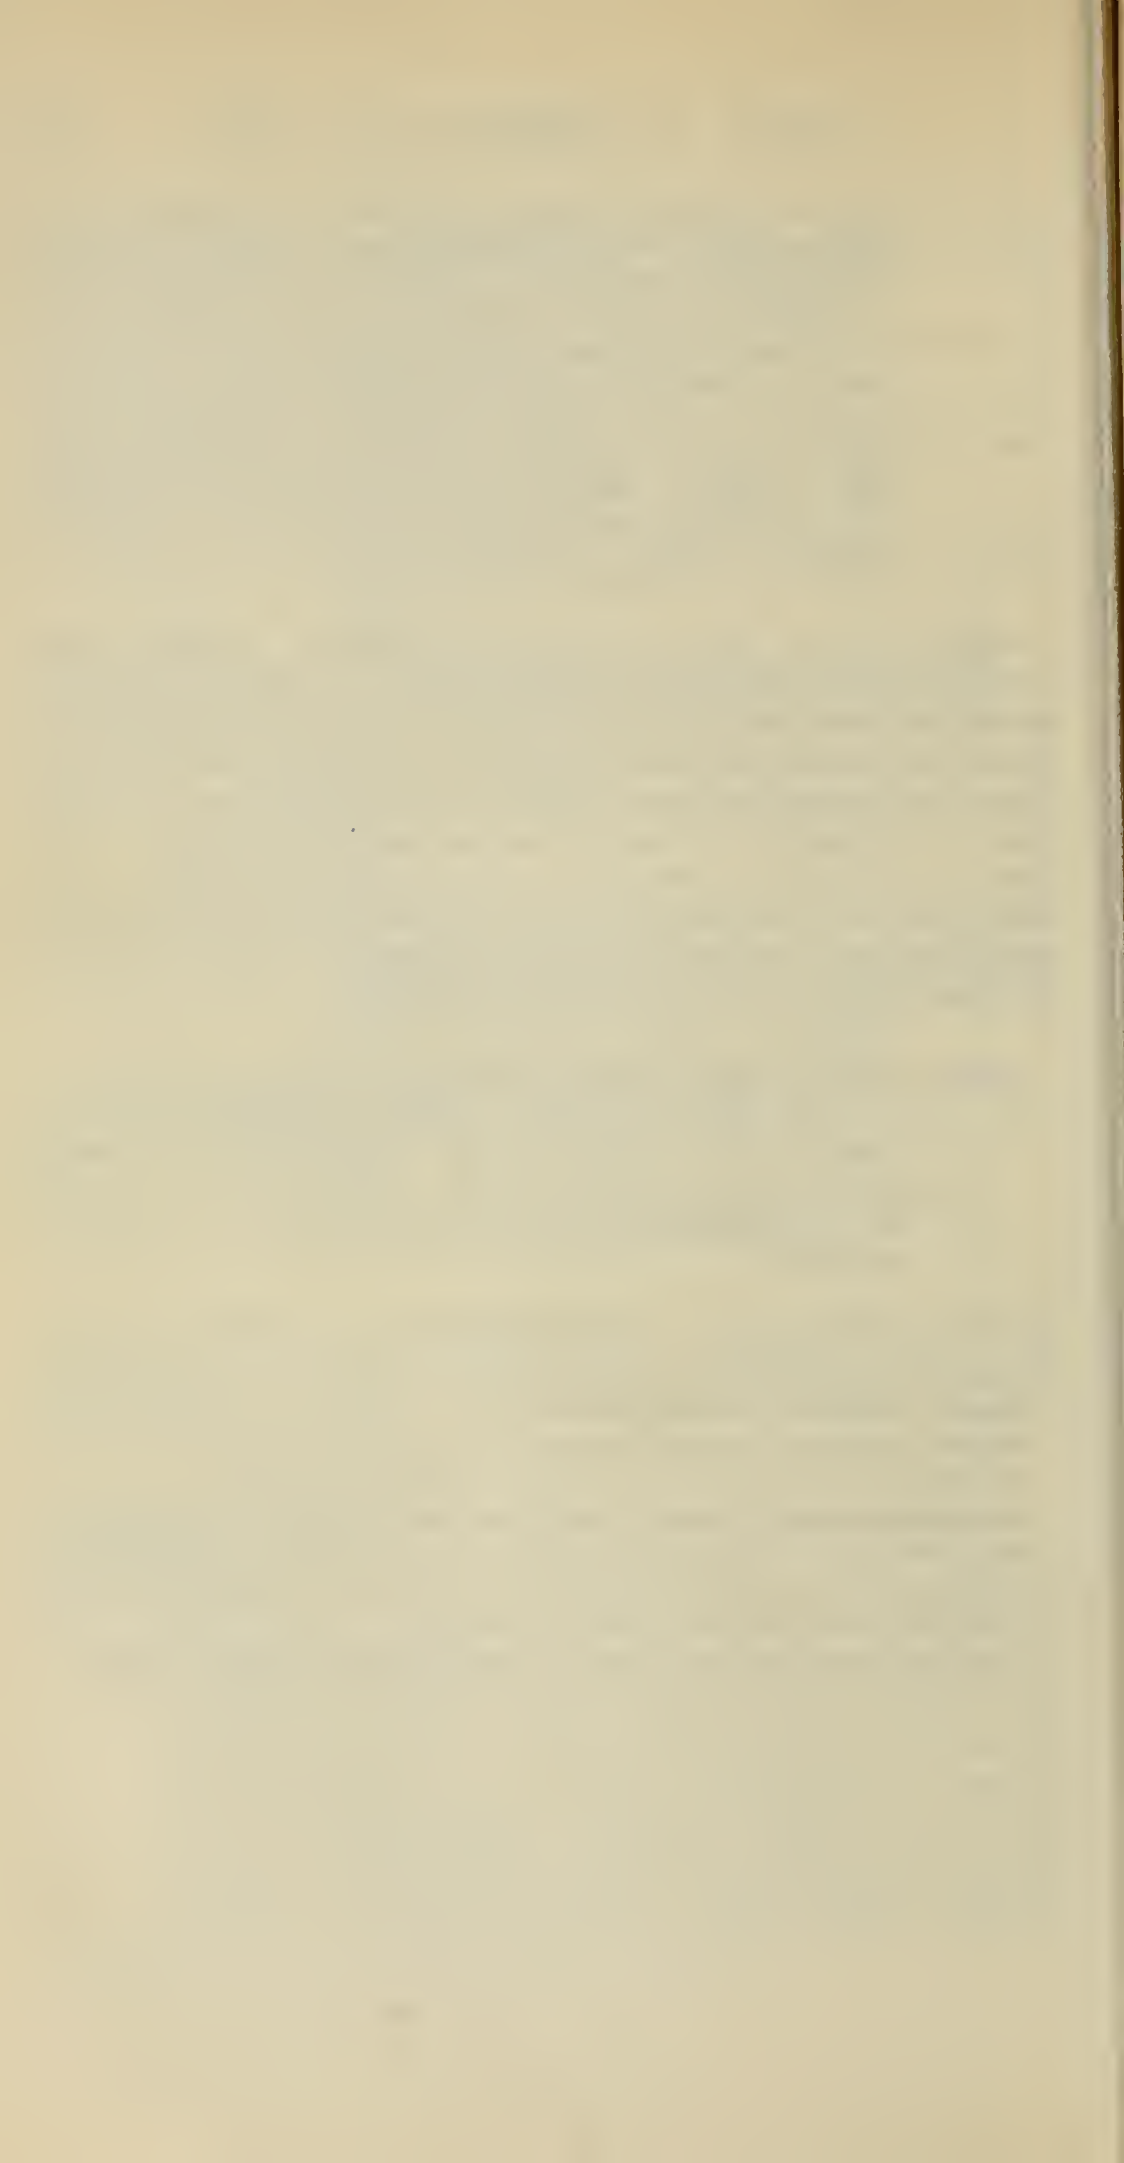

EDWARD E. KING (page 198) husband of Olive Anna Bridge had the high honor of being elected by the Board of Directors as the first president of the East Hartford (Conn.) Trust Company at its first meeting in June, 1915, being chosen for his fitness for the office, though not one of the original incorporators. In eight years the depositors increased from one hundred and fifty to more than six thousand, and the resources from $63,000 to over $2,457,000, under his wise direction. A new and every way enlarged and beautiful bank building was dedicated on June 18, 1924, an ornament and in every way suitable structure.
